

Important from the Rio-Grande.

Five Men Killed by Mexicans and Indians. Steamer Camanche Fired into Again. Government Officers Wounded.

By the arrival at New Orleans on the 1st inst. of the steamship Yacht from Brazos Santiago, we have received dates from Brownsville to the 20th ult. The news is of the most exciting character.

The Flag of the 15th ult., states that on the evening of the 10th ult., a gang of about forty men, consisting of Mexicans and Indians attacked a party of seven Americans, who were encamped at a lake called Campacus; five of those at the camp are said to have been murdered, and all property taken into Mexico. Two of the men, fortunately were on the margin of the lake shooting ducks at the time, and succeeded in making their escape. These robbers and murderers are said to have crossed the river some forty miles above Brownsville, on Friday the 7th ult., and a detachment of them recrossed it again soon after perpetrating the murder, bearing with them the bright hand of each of their slaughtered victims, while the remainder of the savages fully encamped on the ground where the massacre occurred, expecting no doubt another feast of blood from those whom they deemed absent from the camp, and would probably return unsuspecting of danger.

The population of the neighborhood was not only too sparse for resistance, but afraid to venture out to bury the dead, after the murderers were gone. The Flag contains a letter from Warren Adams, which says that it is understood that these Mexicans and Indians were instructed by the authorities in Mexico to kill and plunder all American citizens near the frontier and that acting as they did, under the instructions of the aforesaid authorities, they mutilated the bodies of the murdered men taking the right hand of each to testify that they were entitled to the reward of thirty or forty dollars offered by Mexico for each American they murdered on the frontier.

The Rio Bravo of the 20th says, that the steamer Camanche was again fired into last week, and a custom-house officer residing at Rio Grande, city, Mr. Brashear, was dangerously wounded. His little son was only wounded; and a lady passenger, Mrs. Rogers, the wife of the murdered man spoken of above who was on her way up to join her husband, very narrowly escape a similar fate.

On the evening of the 11th inst., Mr. Philip Rogers, a merchant of Rio Grande City, while standing behind his counter was stabbed to the heart and killed by a Mexican, who had, ostensibly, come in to purchase goods. The object of the fellow was no doubt, to rob the house, as Mr. Rogers was not known to have an enemy in the world. Another Mexican was upon watch outside of the house, but both succeeded in making their escape to the clappertop. They were discovered almost in the act, and one of the fellows, in coming out of the house, brushed against a gentleman who hearing the cry of Mr. Rogers, hastily ran to his assistance. All efforts to discover and arrest the assassins have so far proved abortive.

As strange as it may seem abroad, says the Rio Bravo, this is the tenth murder which has taken place within the last three weeks. For the last two months the average has been three killed per week. No man's life is safe from these Mexican assassins for a single hour. It has become a grave question, what is to be done in this state of things? If it should continue, there will not be an American on the river in six months.

Mr. G. N. Clark, who recently arrived at Brownsville, from New Orleans, was found dead in old Fort Brown, on the 16th inst., and it was evident from shot and other wounds that he had been murdered.

Terrible Crime.

The Maysville (Ky.) Eagle, of the 26th ultimo, has an account of the conviction of four murderers, who killed a man and his wife.

Our readers will remember the horrid murders committed in the latter end of February last, on the persons of Justice Brewer and his wife in Greenup county. These deeds were perpetrated by a band of desperadoes, four in number, three of them named Clark, and one named Hood. They blacked their faces, and far in the night proceeded to the premises of their victims. Going into the poultry house, they set the hens to squalling, by which trick Mr. and Mrs. Brewer were enticed out of the house. Mrs. B. went out first, in her night gown, to protect her chickens from the fangs, as she doubtless thought, of wild beast of prey little dreaming that they were prowling in human form, and that herself and husband were the object of their bloody hunt. Mr. B. followed immediately, and both were set upon beaten to death with heavy clubs—the being killed out right, and she left for dead though she lingered insensible and speechless till next morning. Their poor little children, five in number, the eldest but eleven years old, unconscious of the horrid tragedy by which they were plunged into the miseries and sorrows of orphanage, slept undisturbed till morning, when missing their parents, they wandered to the house of the neighbors in search of them. This awakened suspicion and alarm, and soon the people of the country round about were roused. The first party arriving at the house found the prostrate bodies where the assassins left them—the husband dead and stiff, the wife only exhibiting signs of life by an involuntary contraction of her lower limbs. At eleven o'clock that morning her sufferings ended with her life.

Antecedent circumstances furnished ground of suspicion that John Collins, a near neighbor of Brewer, was the instigator if not the actor of the tragedy. A chain of circumstances, slight indeed in their origin, but corroborated and strengthened until they amounted to proofs clear and conclusive, fixed the eyes and the hand of justice on Collins and his accomplices.

To make a brief story of the evidence, Collins, purely out of malice, had induced the three Clarks and Hood, by threats and bribes, to undertake the murder. One of the Clarks was a son-in-law of Collins. Two of the Clarks were brothers, the third a cousin, and Hood, we believe, a relative. One of the Clarks and Hood are lads about seventeen years of age. These four were the parties actually engaged in the murder—the inhuman but cowardly Collins, the planner of the wicked conspiracy, purposely remained at home, because he would be charged with the murder. A part of the scheme, designed to provide for Collins's security was that the young men should leave their hats with Collins, which would make it necessary for them to return to his house, and by this they would be able to testify that Collins was at home on the night of the murder. The plot did not probably contemplate that suspicion would light on the young men.

The Emperor of Russia, with one Aid-de-Camp, a few yards in advance of the Emperor of Austria, and staff, rode in front of the line, (or rather of three lines) stopping at the head of each battalion, and addressing a few words to the officers. This occupied nearly an hour. He then, with his staff, which consisted of more than 300 splendidly mounted officers, took a position in front of the centre of the line, which immediately passed him in review. The different corps, whether by battalion, regiment, or brigade, formed in sections of three files, fifty feet deep, giving 150 men to each section or company. There was a marching distance of about six rods between each section. The band of each division, as they reached the Emperor moved out to the left and playing until their corps had passed, was succeeded by the next. The line was two hours in passing. After this there was a review of a regiment of lancers, whose horses were put to the top of their speed. The effect was thrilling. And this closed the day.—The Emperors return to the palace, and the troops to their quarters. There were a large number of Court ladies in Court carriages, upon the field.

The circumstances establishing the conspiracy between Collins and the four young men were so convincing that we understand each of them, except Collins, separately made a full confession, even before the trial. A narrative of the evidence in this case would furnish a chapter of circumstantial evidence perhaps as marvellous, but at the same time clear and conclusive, as ever was detailed. The very plot of the conspirators, designed to hide their crime, served to develop the guilt.

Destructive Hail Storm.

On Thursday afternoon last a hail storm passed over a considerable portion of this county, unequalled for severity and destruction of property for many years past.

The precise compass of territory within its range we do not know, but it extended for several miles in length and 3 or 4 miles in breadth. Its greater force was spent upon the townships of Whitepain, Norriton, Worcester, Lower Providence, Upper Providence, Horsehan and Perkiomen—where buildings were blown down, trees felled in great numbers, the grain destroyed, and an immense number of window lights broken. The hail was exceedingly large, hailstones said to measure 9 inches in circumference being picked up after the storm had subsided. There has perhaps never been so general a destruction of property by storm in this vicinity, since the settlement of the country.

The greatest amount of destruction was probably in the vicinity of Centre Square and Franklinville. The following are some of the principal sufferers in that vicinity:—Charles Kriehle, barn destroyed loss probably about $1000. Samuel Greenwalt, barn partly destroyed; George Barnhart's barn partly destroyed; Charles Smith's barn destroyed; Mr. Lewis, wagon house destroyed on the farm occupied by Mr. Benjamin Zarfoss, and barn upon the farm occupied by Jacob F. Weber—loss on the last two farms probably $800. These are all in the vicinity of Franklinville. On the Skip-pack road, near Centre Square, Mr. Philip S. Gerhart's tavern property was very damaged—the chimney stack being blown over upon the roof, breaking 17 rafters and ceiling of two rooms, and the windows of one and side of the large building were demolished; loss upwards of $200. The barns of Andrew Yeager, Mathias Yeager, and Mr. Kinkeuer were also destroyed. In Gwynedd township, the barn of James Wilson was destroyed, and also a new barn just putting up by Mr. Cleaver. The carpenters were at work at this building when the storm arose and just left it a moment before it fell. Mr. Jarret, of Lonsban township, also a barn blown down, in which were four horses at the time. Luckily the falling timbers lodged so as to protect the animals, and they were taken out the following day unhurt. These embrace but a small portion of the sufferers. In the vicinity of Wannier's tavern and Providence Meeting House, the storm was also very severe, overturning barns and snapping off large trees like glass. In its passage through the upper portion of Norriton township much damage was also done to buildings, timber and grain. In Whitpain township the greatest destruction of timber was upon the farms of Jesse Frantz, Henry Greenwalt, Mercedes Conrad, and Eli P. McGlathery. The farms of Mr. Jacob Sheive, in Gwynedd township also suffered severely in loss of timber and destruction of crops.

Two Emperors at a Review.

The following description of the Imperial Review at Vienna, is from a late letter of Thurlow Weed, to the Albany evening Journal:

MONDAY, MAY 10, 1852.

Well, we have seen one of the great Military Pageants of the Earth. We have looked upon two live Emperors, NICHOLAS, I. of Russia and JOSEPH II. of Austria, at the head of an Army with Banners. It was understood that the review was fixed for 10 o'clock. Knowing that the Russia Emperor was prompt in his movements, we drove out to the "Glasic Josephstadt," at that hour: The troops were arrayed and in line, and at 10 minutes past 10 the Emperors, with a magnificently dressed Staff of Aids, Arch-Dukes, Princes, Marshals, Generals, &c., dashed, with their high-blooded and proud steeds, upon the ground. A bright sun gave the fullest effect to all this gorgeous and glittering paraphernalia of war. The Emperors were dressed in the uniform of the Polish Lancers—their Aids in crimson and gold—the others of the Staff in the uniforms of the respective corps. There were upwards of 30,000 troops in the field, of which 20,000 were infantry and rifle and 10,000 cavalry and artillery. Of the mounted men, 3,000 were lancers, and streaming from each lance was a black and yellow flag.

The Emperor of Russia, with one Aid-de-Camp, a few yards in advance of the Emperor of Austria, and staff, rode in front of the line, (or rather of three lines) stopping at the head of each battalion, and addressing a few words to the officers. This occupied nearly an hour. He then, with his staff, which consisted of more than 300 splendidly mounted officers, took a position in front of the centre of the line, which immediately passed him in review. The different corps, whether by battalion, regiment, or brigade, formed in sections of three files, fifty feet deep, giving 150 men to each section or company. There was a marching distance of about six rods between each section. The band of each division, as they reached the Emperor moved out to the left and playing until their corps had passed, was succeeded by the next. The line was two hours in passing. After this there was a review of a regiment of lancers, whose horses were put to the top of their speed. The effect was thrilling. And this closed the day.—The Emperors return to the palace, and the troops to their quarters. There were a large number of Court ladies in Court carriages, upon the field.

Also Lessons on the Violin.

The attention of the public is called particularly to his system of teaching upon the violin, which is designed especially to be beginners. The course consists of 100 lessons with 25 extra lessons in the rudiments of music. The lessons are progressively arranged so as to gradually develop the talent of the pupil and are sure in their operation, as no pupil is dismissed until he can perform independently all the exercises embraced in the first course of lessons. The object of these lessons is not merely to learn the pupil to play a few tunes, but to give him a correct knowledge of the instrument, bowing, fingering, tuning, after which he will be able to find his way through more difficult composition. Those persons wishing to take lessons, are assured that no music of a light or frivolous character will be introduced, but such as is calculated to elevate the taste and lay a correct foundation. Terms $5 00 for the course, 4 lessons can be given each day at alternate hours, and a lesson in the evening on the rudiments of music, or one lesson each day. But in no case will less than three lessons be given per week, nor to a less number than 5 persons at a time for the term above mentioned.
