Allentown Academy.

J. N. GREGORY, A. M., Principal.
Mrs. Emily Dunbar Gregory, Teacher of Vocal and Instrumental Music.
Miss Jane Gregory, Principal of the Female Department.

The Fall Term of this Institution will commence on Wednesday the first day of September next. In making this announcement the trustees cannot refrain from expressing their firm conviction that the Academy is now in most efficient hands. Better advantages in all the branches of a thorough education have never been offered to this community. The satisfactory result of the Spring term which has just closed, commenced and carried on as it was under embarrassing circumstances incident to the introduction of new preceptors and a comparatively new system has convinced us that the Institution will ere long become one of the best in Pennsylvania. Parents wishing a school where their children will be well governed and correctly taught the English language, where their sons will be well prepared for College or Mercantile life, will do well to patronize this our own Institution.

A Newspaper in a Family.

A school-teacher, who has been engaged a long time in his profession, and witnessed the influence of a newspaper on the minds of a family of children, writes to the editor of the Ogdensburg Journal, as follows:—

I have found it to be a universal fact without exception, that those scholars, of both sexes and all ages, who have access to newspapers at home, when compared to those who do not are—

1st. Better readers excelling in pronunciation and emphasis, and consequently read more understandingly.

2d. They are better spellers, and define words with greater ease and accuracy.

3d. They obtain a practical knowledge of geography in almost half the time it requires others, as the newspaper has made them familiar with the location of all the important places, nations, their governments, and doings, on the globe.

4th. They are better grammarians; for having become familiar with every variety of style in the newspaper, from commonplace advertisements to the finished and classical oration of the statesman, they more readily comprehend the meaning of the text, and consequently analyze its construction with greater accuracy.

5th. They write better compositions, using better language, containing more thoughts, more clearly expressed.

6th. Those young men who have for years been readers of newspapers are always found taking the lead in debating societies, exhibiting a more extensive knowledge upon a greater variety of subjects, and expressing their views with greater clearness and correctness in the use of the language.

Early Impression Always Lasting.

A correspondent of the Muncy Luminary says—I was lately much interested in a conversation between a prominent localocofoco Pierce man, free trader, and Henry Colony, a distinguished mill wright, now of Williamsport, but formerly of Washington county, N. Y., a frontier county. In reply to the Pierce man's urgent desire that Colony should adhere firmly to the loco ticket for President, Mr. C. made the following observation:—

"That during the late war I was a boy of 9 years old, and after hearing of several engagements in Canada, his parents and neighboring families were fearful that the English army and Indians would cross to the American side, and make a general havoc and massacre of the residents upon the frontier, that he and his little school associates, frequently assembled in little groups, and were talking about the dangers that surrounded them and their friends on their little hearts beat tumultuously and anxiously but we parted each night with the consoling reflection that with Scott as our Protector, Commander-in-chief, (who we considered the Napoleon of America,) we need fear no evil, and while we kept near him and his army, our lives and the lives of our neighbors were secure."

"That little band of boys is now scattered far and wide and the survivors thereof, to a man still remember the gallant Scott and the impression he made on their youthful hearts; that impression never, never can be effaced, and in manhood's prime they will never turn their backs upon their old war-worn friend and Protector. Now, sir, although I have heretofore supported the Democratic ticket, and know many of the survivors of that little band who voted with me, that now burrah for Scott and will aid in his election for President of the United States."

On Saving Seed Corn.

But few farmers justly calculate the extent to which their crops are affected by the seed. "Like begets like." "As we sow so we reap," are old aphorisms particler talking of both sound and practical philosophy. If we sow imperfect seed we may expect to reap imperfection, with a decrease in quality in a just ratio
