

We found our new residence a convenient one, and we are, upon the whole, "as well as could be expected." The air is salubrious and invigorating, if we may judge by the hungry looks of the Democrats, as they passed us. The soil is fruitful, and produces a fine crop of regrets and unavailing resolutions, but we are determined not to cultivate despair.

Soon after our arrival, a large public meeting was called, which assembled near Cape Turnagain. Hon. Stay-at-home Grumbler, was appointed Chairman, and Job Doo Little, Esq., Secretary. Hon. Mr. Facing both ways, made some lacrymose remarks, which were promptly hissed down; when Mr. Stick-to-the-right Great-heart, offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously passed:

Resolved, (1) That after mature deliberation, we come to the conclusion that we are rowed up Salt River.

Resolved, (2) That we are alarmed!

Resolved, (3) That every rooster of the settlement that crows once shall be immediately decapitated.

Resolved, (4) That in the investigation of the causes of our defeat, we do not think it was owing to Winfield Scott's splendid services, or to Franklin Pierce's fitness, but to the fact that we had not votes enough.

Resolved, (5) That we stay here until we go down the stream again.

Resolved, (6) That in the words of the poet, we say, "it will never do to give it up, Mr. Brown."

A Rattlesnake Story.

Last fall, a woman residing in the vicinity of Worcester, was picking blackberries in a field near her house, having with her only child a bright-eyed little fellow of less than a year old. The babe sat upon the ground in an open space, amusing itself with grasping at a crump of yellow weeds that grew within reach, and eating berries brought him from time to time by his mother.

The latter at length, intent upon gathering the fine fruit, passed around a rock which hid her child from view. She was about to return to him, when hearing him laughing and crowing in a great glee, and thinking he must be safe as long as he was happy, she remained there some time.

Suddenly the little voice ceased and after another minute's delay, the young mother stepped upon the rock and looked over, expecting to see her babe asleep; and instead of which, he was sitting perfectly motionless, his lips parted, and his wide open eyes, fixed with a singular expression upon some object which at first she was unable to discern.

You who can judge of her horror when on closer scrutiny she perceived some four feet from the infant, a rattlesnake with his glittering eyes fastened upon his and near him by an almost imperceptible motion.

The sight of her darling's peril so nearly paralyzed her, that for an instant she half-believed the dreadful fascination had extended to herself but the certainty that, unless she was the instrument of salvation to her powers. She glanced wildly around for something that might be used as a weapon, but nothing appeared, and already the venomous reptile had passed over the space which divided him from his victim. Another moment and all would be lost! What could be done?

In her hand she held a broad tin pan, and springing from the rock quick as thought she covered the snake with it, and stood upon it to prevent his escape.

The charm was broken, the child moved swayed to one side and began to sob. At the same time the mother recovered her senses and screamed for aid retaining her position till it arrived when the cause of her terrible fright was dispatched.

Evidences of Christianity.

A few weeks since sitting by his own fireside, after a day of severe labor in the Supreme Court, Mr. Webster introduced the last Sabbath's sermon and discoursed in animated and glowing eloquence for an hour on the great truths of the Gospel. I cannot but regard the opinions of such a man in some sense as public property. This is my apology for attempting to recall some of those remarks which were uttered in the privacy of the domestic circle.

"Said Mr. Webster: 'Last Sabbath I listened to an able and learned discourse upon the evidences of Christianity. The arguments were drawn from prophecy, history, with internal evidence. They were stated with logical accuracy and force; but, as it seemed, to me, the clergyman failed to draw from them the right conclusion. He came so near the truth that I was astonished that he missed it. In summing up his arguments he said the only alternative presented by these evidences is this: Either Christianity is true, or it is a delusion produced by an excited imagination. Such is not the alternative, said the circle; but it is this: The Gospel is either true history or it is a consummate fraud; it is either a reality or an imposition. Christ was what he professed to be, or he was an impostor. There is no other alternative. His spotless life, his earnest enforcement of the truth, his suffering in its defence, forbid us to suppose that he was suffering an illusion of a heated brain. 'Every act of his pure and holy life shows that he was the author of truth, the advocate of truth, the earnest defender of truth, and the uncompromising sufferer for truth.—Now, considering the purity of his doctrines, the simplicity of his life, and the sublimity of his death, is it possible that he would have died for an illusion? In all his preaching the Saviour made no popular appeal.—His discourses were all directed to the individual. Christ and his apostles sought to impress upon every man the conviction that he must stand or fall alone; he must live for himself and die for himself, and give up his account to the omniscient God as though he were the only dependent creature in the universe. The Gospel leaves the individual sinner alone with himself and his God.—To his own master he stands or falls. He has nothing to hope from the aid and sympathy of associates. The deluded advocates of new doctrines do not so preach, Christ and his apostles, had they been deceived, would not have so preached.

"If clergymen in our days would return to the simplicity of the Gospel, and preach more to individuals and less to the crowd, there would not be so much complaint of the decline of true religion. Many of the ministers of the present day take their text from St. Paul, and preach from the newspapers. When they do so, I prefer to enjoy my own thoughts rather than to listen. I want my pastor to come to me in the spirit of the Gospel saying, 'You are mortal! your probation is brief, your work must be done speedily. You are immortal, too. You are hastening to the bar of God; the Judge standeth before the door.' When I am thus admonished, I have no disposition to muse or to sleep." These "topics," said Mr. Webster, "have often occupied my thoughts; and if I had time I would write upon them myself."

The above remarks are but a meagre and imperfect abstract, from memory, of one of the most eloquent sermons to which I ever listened.—Congregational Journal.

Best Breed of Swine.

The breeds of swine now most valued at the North, are the Suffolk and Middlesex.—These two are very like in every respect; and after having bred both for many years we would not give the toss-up of a copper for a choice. To be general favorites they are hardly large enough, though their early maturity small consumption of food, and wonderful inclination to fatness, more than compensate in cash for their want of size. Suffolk pigs have been slaughtered at 6th month old that weighed three hundred and ninety-four pounds. No man need have a finer breed than this. If he wants a bigger breed, let him select one of those Noah's Ark race, that weigh hundred dressed (at Methusalem's age) and try to make a breed by using a full blood Suffolk, Middlesex, or Essex boar. We wonder that no one has imported the Leicestershire, to gratify this taste for large swine.

We had collection on our own farm the materials and molds for making swine on a large scale and some of them after a large pattern when we were summoned away from the pig-pen to the pen editorial. And we have no hesitation in saying, that we have in the country all that is needed to build up breeds adapted to every reasonable taste and to all localities except a good knowledge on the part of farmers of the true principles of breeding.—J. Agriculture.

Valuable Real Estate,

Tavern Stand, Store and Private Dwelling

FOR SALE.

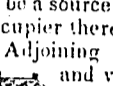

The undersigned offers for sale the following very valuable real estate, to which the attention of capitalists is invited:

No. 1. A Commodious Tavern, and tract of land, situate in Salisbury township, Lehigh county, near the Borough of Allentown, at the junction of the public roads leading from Saucon, Salisbury, Upper Milford and Lower Macungy townships to said Borough, on which is erected

 A Large and Convenient HOTEL.

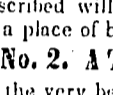

(now occupied by Mr. William Kichlein,) with extensive Stabling—a plentiful supply of the best water before the door, and every thing necessary for the convenience and comfortable accommodation of travellers and strangers. This Tavern Stand in addition to advantages arising from its position as above mentioned, is in the immediate vicinity of two of the best established Merchant and Grist Mills in this section of country, the trade of which is now, and will continue to be a source of great profit to the owner or occupier thereof.

Adjoining the Tavern House, is a new and very large and convenient

 Brick Building, finished in the best manner, for Storekeeping, with all the necessary shelving, counters, drawers, hoisting machine, &c. for carrying on that business. Its location as above described will sufficiently indicate its value as a place of business.

No. 2. A Tract of Meadow Land, Of the very best quality; in the rear of the above mentioned property, containing two and three quarter acres. This is perhaps the only piece of Meadow Land along the Little Lehigh, that will be offered for sale for many years.

No. 3. A Brick Dwelling, A new and well finished two story

 Brick House, near the above mentioned property, with very convenient Stabling, and other necessary outbuildings, required for the accommodation of a family, erected on a lot, which is 30 feet in front, by 180 feet in depth, and in the highest state of cultivation. There is a well of the best water near the kitchen door with a chain pump. The parlors and chambers are neatly papered, and the whole appearance of the property is that of a comfortable and very elegant private dwelling.

The above property will be sold together or separately to suit purchasers. Terms reasonable. But little cash capital being required.

If the property is not sold by the 25th of December next, it will be rented away by Auction for one year from the first of April next.
