A Canadian girl born blind, named Sarah Hawley, 21 years of age, has lately been gifted with the power of seeing by Dr. Cadwell. All her ideas to objects had been de-rived entirely from touch. She was almost instantaneously endowed with the power of sight. What must have been her new sensation on such a remarkable event! It was utterly out of her power to tell what anything was though she had known it long and well by the sense of feeling. She trembled at the brightness of the light, and stood in wonder and awe at the view for the first time of of the miracles of nature and art, that burst upon her all at once. Her emotions were inexpressible, and of the most vivid kind. She was amazed and overcome with the liveliest astonishment; but utterred not a word.

The doctor inquired, if she saw him.—
"Yes, how white you look." Some articles where shown her, but she was still incredulous, when told, they were brass candlessticks. She touched them, and then said, NO yes, they are candlesticks; how bright they look !" "What a queer thing it is," said she on being shown a watch, "why, both sides are not alike."

When the sausages are intended to be When the sausages are intended to be iliar with in thought, some of which she had become acquainted with by touch, is similar to what we all feel on seeing for the first uime, and conversing with distinguished men of whom we have read or heard of .-They are rarely the same which we imagine them, greater or less then the report, generally, perhaps, the later, but certainly very different. We had perused the work of a witty writer, and are disappointed on meeting-confound him-sober and actiurn. One who had somehow or other made a great noise at a distance, surprises you, on being introduced, with his mean, even sneaking person and spiritless conversation. The great man dwindles to ordinary dimensions or something worse; and now and then a man, before heard little of, strikes you with the dignity and attractiveness of his manners and the superiority of his intellect .--The secret seems to be that to make a noise and be famous, one must never cease to whip his humming top. The great and ambitious man of talents feels and enjoys the possession of great powers, but cares not whether others hear of them or not. He would not take the trouble to inflate his balloon if he could sail over other people's heads for a brief hour of intoxication, and not tumble down collapsed at last.

To confine ourselves to the first thought, however, we venture to say that when we set our eyes for the first time upon the men, about whom the world talks most we shall all be astonithed at the sight as much as the Canadian Girl was on looking at Dr. Cadwell, the watch and the brass candlestick -They do not look avail as we expected the would look .- Newark Advertiser.

Mr. S. describes La Pointe, a town, on the lake, as being situated at the head of a bay some 25 miles from the High Lake, and secluded from the lake by several islands. He saw there a ware-house 300 feet long, built of tamarac poles and roofed with bark This building is very much warped by the pressure of age; it is entered by a wooden railway. Grand Concert.

The public is respectfully informed that grand concert of vocal and instrumental music will be given on the evening of Saturday the 1st of January next, at the Odd Fellows' Hall, for the benefit of the Sabbath School, at the Presbyterian Church.

The public cannot fail on this occasion to enjoy a rare treat, as the choice amateur musicians and vocalists of our town have kindly volunteered their assistance. In the instrumental department, Mrs. Gregory and Messrs, Wise, Eninger, Samson, Herman and Faust will take parts; as also Master John I. Romig from the Pennsylvania Institution for the blind, who will perform some of his choicest pieces on the violin-

In the vocal department, besides the regular choir of the Presbyterian Church, a class of singers from Mr. Kessler's High School; under the direction of Prof. Herman, will take part. Several quartetts will also be sung by Messrs. Wright, Ettinger Samson, Gregory and Barnes.

It is hoped that the occasion of such rare musical treat will not be left unimproved by all lovers of good music; and especially those who deem it at the same time a privilege to contribute to the support of the
