Trial of Arthur Spring for Murder.

The trial of Arthur Spring still continues to absorb entirely the public mind. But little else is talked of. The conduct of Spring, last evening, on his way to prison, had evidently undergone a material charge. He became insensible, and the officers were obliged to convey him from the cab into the prison, where it was found necessary to re-sort to a stimulate before he recovered. During the night, he appears to have been unusually restless, and this morning partook of but tittle food. About 7 o'clock he left the prison for the Court-house, and during the way up seemed much dejected. He, how ever, continues to protest his innocence, and asserts that the murder of Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Lynch was perpetrated by his son Arthur, Feeney, and two or three other boys ! Up to 12 o'clock last night, a crowd continued_to_loiter_about_the Court-house, and_at.7 o'clock; this morning there could not have been less than fifty persons present to see the arrival of Spring from prison. The examination of Spring's son on Tuesday was one of intense interest to all who heard it. He told his story in an artless. manner and with great minuteness, fully corroborating the different statements of the different witnesses previously examined in reference to circumstances with which he Was connected.

The whole statement of the boy bore the impress of truth upon its face ; it was consistent throughout. During the time he was delivering his evidence, the father moved to the western end of the dock, so as to get a better view of his son than he had of the other -witness. The conduct of the father was not marked by any unusual emotions.-He occasionally moved, but it was only to change his position, and not as far as the eye could detect from any uncomfortable feelings which such a situation would produce in the breast of any man possessed of the ordinary sensibility of humanity.

The testimony of this witness was little to the credit of any of the parties connected with this horrid affair. On Tuesday before the murder it seems that Spring had taken his son to the house where the Carrolls and the victims lived, and a drunken brawl, described minutely in the evidence, occurred. •On Wednesday young Spring watched his father all day, and prevented any effort on his part to effect the crime, evidently then in contemplation. This part of the evidence and the account of the murderer, were as follows.

On Wednesday morning father said he was going down to Mr. Carroll's to get his hat; he went that night; I was home all day I went out about 4 o'clock and came in at 5 o'clock; I was watching him all day; there was a man came there who was in liquor, and father went out with him; think his name is Toole or Doyle ; he went to see him safe home; next saw father on Wednesday night about 10 o'clock ; he came and rapped at the back door; he said he went from 'Toole's with two girls, to St. Patrick's Church ; he said he had been down at Mr. Carroll's, and he found out that Mr. and Mrs. Carroll were going to a ball the next night; he said Mr. Lynch was in New-York and there would be no one in the house but them two women; he said he would fix them off; he didn't say anything about it further until Thursday morning; he wanted me to go down there with him, and I said I wouldn't go ; he asked me five or six times, and he got angry with me and did not speak to me until supper; he was not out of my sight that day; I was out in the morning, and did not think he would go down in the day-time; my father was not angry a supper time ; he asked me to come in to supper; I went to supper; and all the family except Mr. McGuire took supper together Miss McGuire asked him to go an errand for her; she wanted me to carry some books to Locust-st., near Schuylkill Third ; I said I would as soon as I saw where father was ; I set the books on the steps and went into the bar, but he was not there ; I went up stairs and found him in his room; he had off his coat, and was tying a handkerchief around his head ; I told him I was going out and he said very well ; I thought he was going to bed; he did not say why he was go-ing to bed at that time; I left him; I went to Locust-st. with the books, gave them to a women who came to the door; from this place I went to Juniper-st. between Market and Arch; I would not have gone out if I had known that my fathar was not going to bed; I went then to Monroe's court and Lawrence-st ; I staid their playing dominoes about two hours for amusement : I was in company with Bill Mclane, Alex. Gartly and Bill Feeney during the whole evening; it was at Mr. Finney's house; from there I went directly home ; I got to Mr. McGuire's house about ten o'clock; I did not go up stairs; I supposed father was there, had no doubt about it; I remained in the bar read-ing The Police Gazette : a neighbor who lives in the same house asked me if the family was up : I lit a candle and went to see, and came back and said no ; he asked me if they had any salt in the house : I said I didn't know and he told me to go and see if there was any there; I went and got him some salt ; while looking for it I herd a noise at the back door. I went and opened the door and saw my father outside ; I said I thought you were in bed ; I did think he was in bed down to that moment ; in one hand he had his shoes, and and in the other he had three twenty dollar gold pieces, and one dollar gold piece; he put the gold into my hand ; I gave the baker the salt ; at that time I had the gold in my hand under the candle stick ; the money was wet; I came back; he took the candle from me and told me to bring some water up stairs: I got a pan of water and took it up stairs: he had his coat off; there was light in the room; he asked me for the money and I gave it to him ; he then told me to go down stairs and if they asked if he was in bed to say yes : when I went up with the pan I observed the condition of his shirt; the breast of it was full of blood : he had on three shirts that night, an under shirt and two linen ones : I saw this before I went each other. I asked him how he got into the house, and he said that Mrs. Shaw let him in; there the puplic. The Taverns are crowded in was a man and woman in there at the time and he kept quiet until they went out; he but the week over, things returned to their and Mrs. Shaw got a drinking then, and he sent Mrs. Shaw up stairs to see if Mrs. Lynch was asleep ; he said she told a d-d lie, for as soon as she came down he made an attack-upon Mrs. Shaw; when he was in the act of attacking Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Lynch came down stairs, she said "Mr. Spring, if you save my life, I'll give you all the money I've got ;" he then struck her and she ran into the next room; Mrs. Shaw was dead, and he thought he heard a noise on the outside, as if it was a watchman, he then said

Mrs. Lynch had got under a settee in the next room, and he could not get her out. then he said he made a noise as if he was going up stairs, he took his shoe off, Mrs. Lynch then came running out to make her escape, and he met her at the door, he then said he murdered her, he did not say how, I asked him what he done it with, a piece of leaden pipe and my dirk, I asked him where the dirk was, he said he broke it in breaking open Mrs. Lynch's trunk, and threw the handle away in George st. I told him the knife would bring detection and suspicion, like the oyster-knife in New-York, he then said. 'Oh, leave that to me,' and then I said that perhaps one of the women would come to life and inform on him he said, when he came down stairs he turned one of them over, and twisted the other's neck and found them both dead, when he said this he caught hold of my wrist and pressed it, he told me Mrs. Lynch fought desperately for her life, he said he got on his hands and knees, and watched his opportunity for leaving the house, he said it was no harm to do a nurder for Lynch had killed many a person in the battle-field, he said he set fire to the house, that the bells are ringing, and the people will make it out an accident, he said that he burned his hands in getting the coals out of the stove, he said blaze was around his feet and what more could he do, I don't think we went to sleep at all that night.

The case was given to the jury on Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, and at 8 they returned into Court with a verdict of Guilty of Murder in the First Degree. The prisoner heard his doom entirely unmoved. He was then remanded to prison, and when about to enter the cab he took off his hat and gave a cheer. This act of bravado was followed by a loud and dismal groan from the crowd. and a cab drove off with the ill fated convict. Thus closed one of the most painfully interesting case which has ever been tried in his country.

Mr. Doran then read the following reasons : First-The trial was irregular, and the impanelling of the Jury was irregular and contrary to law, inasmuch as Charles Mc Quillan, who acted as a juror in the case, had never been drawn, summoned and returned as such, but answered to the name of one Bernhard Corr. and as such was summoud and impanelled as a juror, a fact un known to the prisoner or his counsel until after the verdict.

Getting an Appointment.

The following good thing was related to us a few days ago, by a friend as an undoubtcd fact :

Under the Tyler administration, the office of Daniel Webster, then Secretary of State, was beseiged for some time by a portly, handsome specimen of humanity from St. Louis, who, keenly scenting an office and not fastidiously particular as to what it was, posted himself at the elbow of "the god-like" atan early hour of the morning, and remained there nearly all day, determined to wear him out. Mr. Webster noticed his pertinacity -of course the could not well do otherwise even though absorbed in business and he entertained a kind of remote hope that the silent applicant would be ultimately disgusted with his inattention to the evident purport of his daily visits, and leave.

But our Missourian had no such idea of vacating the fort when once in it; he had come all the way from Pukedom for an office and he was not "going to give it up so." And so it went on for a week or ten days -the applicant looking quietly over the papers, counting the flies on the ceiling, taking aim at the smallest spittoon by the flie place, in short, doing every thing to pass the time, but talking. He had made his application once to the great dispension of official, good new consecrated by the hands and words of things, and now it was the other's turn to the prizes; may your alliance consist of true speak out. Meanwhile the case with Mr. sufficient and harmony of sentiments, so as to Control of the set of Webster grew desperate ; he had evidently enable you, to receive a refined pleasure during mistaken his customer ; he wasn't the kind your whole life. Then your fate will be a parof man to be put down by such tastics; he icularly happy one. I'trdly wish, that your wouldn't be snubbed; he was good for a future days may be crowned by success and month or six weeks in just that same position, counting the same flies, spitting at the same mark, and leisurely spelling the hews out of the same papers. Something must be done ; to get rid of him without an office of some kind was seemingly as difficult as to fabricate a chowder without cod fish.-But the time came at the expiration of about fourteen days of incessent companionship. One morning, Mr. Webster came into his office rather riled on some official matter. and there, as usual, sat the pertinacious Puke, at perfect ease with himself and the Webster went to his desk, sat down world. tossed the heap of documents about in a sweet fume, or to take a smile, like the crator of a volcano just before the breaking of Application for a New Trial .- On Satur. the fire. Easter at St. Petersburg.

Easter is celebrated with great enthusiasm throughout Russia, and especially in the capital. An artist has given below a picturesque scene of its gaity. Easter is the real fete of the people—the period at which they do eat, drink, and make merry ; great prep-arations announce its advent. The streets throng, and men, women and children embrace each other, and speak the true emphatic words-CHISTOS VOSKREST. On this evening there is a supper at the palace ; and the following day a grand levee at court, the "god like." He clutched the small bell. Missouri knew the crisis was at hand, and read the paper, or seemed to read more intently than ever. The bell rung and the chief clerks appeared. " Is their any vacant place on this side of Hell ?" thundered Webster, pointing to his horror.

The chief clerk understood the whole mat ter at a glance, and replied laconically-"There is a special messenger wanted for Mexico.' "Then send him to Mexico or Hell ! but never let him come back here." The applicant rose, bowed graciously to the Secretary, and walked out, as Mr. Webster sank into his arm chair, exclaiming

"Thank Heaven he has gone at last !"

Singular Discovery of a Murder.

The following interesting narrative has been communicated by a gentleman at present residing in Russia to his friends in Macclesfield:-About two years ago a vessel left Archangel on an expedition to the coast of Greenland, to collect walrus tusks, seal oil, skins, &c. On the voyage the crew, or a part, rather, mutineed, murdered the captain and ended the tragedy by leaving two of to the Court room, and an affirmative reply the crew to perish on the inhospitable shores of Greenland, giving them little or no food whereby to prolong their existence. One of the men, however, took on shore a gun, and that eventually, led to the discovery of the mutiny and the murder.

Many of the Russian peasantry are very ingenious and expert in the use of the hatchet and knife, and one of the poor fellows so cruelly deserted by the unfeeling crew, before he died, had succeeded in carving on the stock of the gun a history of the voyage, the mutiny, the murder, and the very place where the remains of the desertion, so clearly, that the whole story was deciphered without much difficulty. It happened that another vessel, which had been sent to the same coast, and for similar where the dignitaries are received in all purpose, touched in the spring of the year their paraphernalia.
