Queen Victorias Eldest Son.

The oldest son of Queen Victoria begins to exhibit military talent, and has received an appointment as General or Major General, with an addition of some half a million of dollars attached to his salaries. He has already stormed one tepal and two coffee-pots.—Exchange Paper.

The Pennsylvania thinks, that is not a hundredth part of the "storming" his royal mamma has performed, if half the stories are true that are told of her beligerent propensities. She storms the sleeping apartments of all her household every morning at day-break, besides divers miscellaneous thunder squalls at "the Royal consort" during the day.

The item we have quoted contains matter sufficient for deep reflection. Here is a half idiot boy, who has scarce reached his teens, appointed to a high military rank, with half a million of dollars added to his already enormous salary as Prince of Wales. All this mammoth appropriation wrung from the over-tasked and over-burdened toilers of that unhappy Kingdom. These are a few of the revolting features of monarchy, but there are others far more hideous still.

It is a fact notorious as day-light, that their apparent to the British throne, is sadly deficient in his mental development—in the other words that there are upper apartments to it, unfinished and unfurnished. Yet, he is blockhead, knave or fool, if he is spared, he must be King of Great Britain, the head of the Church, the Defender of the Faith. Such is the law.

Feeding Bees.—A writer in the Ohio Cultivator, after descanting on the unprofitableness of feeding bees on buckwheat blossoms, states his experience of feeding them with sugar; his plan being to put a pound of brown sugar in a low tin dish, wet it with water, and lay a number of small strips of wood across for the bees to rest on while at work. In every experiment one pound of six-cent sugar produced two pounds of honey. Another experimenter, on the contrary, says: "Whatever bees collect the deposit in their comb undergoes no change in consequence of any they do to it. If they are fed with molasses deposit molasses, if sugar diluted with water, it is sugar, and nothing but sugar, when stored away in the cells. Of this any one can satisfy himself by trying the experiment with these or other sweets, as I have repeatedly done. The honey collected from flowers, is the same in the hive as it was in the flower, without any modification in flavor, color, or consistency, and the patent preparations for feeding bees with a substance they are expected to change into honey, are imposition, cat and humbug."

David Crockett.—An anecdote is related of this remarkable man, which does him infinitely more honor than any office he ever held. Before he was a candidate for Congress, or expected to be, there was a season of scarcity in the Western District, where he lived. He went up the Mississippi and bought a fat-boat load of corn and took it to what he called "his old stamping-ground." When a man came to him to buy corn the first question he asked was, "Have you got the money to pay for it?" If the answer was in the affirmative, Davys reply was, "Then you can't have a kernel. I brought it here to sell to people that have no money." It was the foundation of his popularity.

Corn. With us it is too early to put in this crop, but still not too early to be providing the manure to feed the crop with; for, of all the cultivated plants, we know of none that is so good a feeder as it. Besides, as it will be corn planting time in a large area of country where our journal circulates, before we have the pleasure of another chat with our friends, we say to one and all, unless your land be really rich in those elements, organic as well as inorganic, upon which the corn plants feed, make up your minds to put no more acres in corn than you can liberally manure—no more than you can treat to a generous quantity of nutritive manure of some kind; not forgetting ashes, bone dust, plaster and salt, are admirable assistants to whatever nutritive manures may be used.

Corn, as we know from experience, cannot well be fed too highly. Upon one occasion, by way of experiment, we ploughed in at the rate of 20 double-horse carloads, say thirty bushels of each, rough stable and barn yard manure, 8 inches deep, then applied 10 loads of half-rotted barn-yard manure per acre, broadcast, ploughed it in 4 inches deep harrowed, rolled, and then gave a top dressing consisting of ten bushels of ashes, 5 bushels of salt and 1 bushel of plaster, to each acre harrowed and rolled the land, then laid off the furrows 4 feet apart, listed 3 feet asunder, and as we planted the corn, we gave to each hill half a shovel full of rich compost, in which to every ten loads, there were 5 bushels of ashes and 1 of plaster.

The corn was cultivated exclusively with the cultivator and hoe, and the product at the rate of 125 bushels shelled corn to the acre. Upon a large scale, corn planters cannot well afford to take such pains with their crops; nor to manure so heavily; and we only mention the facts, to show that, in the same measure of generosity with which they may treat their crop, so will be its return; for as men should ever, it is always grateful for favors bestowed, whether they be in the shape of food or cleanly culture.

Key to Uncle Tom's Cabin.—This work is announced for publication on Thursday next.—Messrs Jewett, the publishers say that they have printed an edition of 60,000 an that 58,000 are already ordered.

The Emigration to California.—A large number of emigrants are in St. Louis, making preparations to start overland for California. The first steamer this season for Council Bluffs reports a good stage of water, and that the traders at the various points had made ample provision for California, Oregon and Lake Lake emigrants.

CORN BREAD.—Every body who has been at the Mansion House, Buffalo, has learned the luxury of the far-famed corn bread there provided. The clerk is often taxed to write directions for home manufacture, and I thus procured a receipt for domestic use, which I copy for you, so that those who wish, may try a piece of bread from the mansion. It is as follows:

One quart of sour milk; two table spoonfuls of saleratus; four oz. butter; three eggs; three table spoonfuls of flour; and corn meal sufficient to make a stiff batter.

Sale of the Public Works.

By reference to the proceedings of the Senate on Monday, it will be seen that Mr. Evans introduced a resolution which was adopted, directing the committee on Finance to bring in a bill providing for the sale of the Public Works of the State. This is eminently a proper movement, and a popular one, but it is rather late in the session to hope for the passage of any bill for this purpose, if reported. It is to be regretted that the movement was not made at an earlier day. There can be no doubt of the public sentiment being decidedly in favor of the measure, and that public interests would be greatly promoted by the sale of these works.—Har. Tel.

The above accords with our views exactly. The movement is one of the highest importance, and with the Telegraph, we regret that the matter was not agitated at an earlier day. But let it be commenced now, and with the aid of the people, we think the object which Mr. Evans' Bill has in view will be accomplished sooner or later.

This is a subject to which we fear, the people; those who are directly interested in the matter; do not give sufficient attention. Located some distance from the great lines of our improvements, for the construction of which Pennsylvania has mortgaged, we may safely say, every farm in the State—our people do not see, with their own eyes, the extravagant and reckless manner in which they are carried on, and consequently, the necessity, the great necessity, existing for a change in the management of the Public Works. These were constructed at a cost of over THIRTY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS; have been in operation for a number of years—and yet, the State is compelled to borrow money to pay the interest on loans procured for making these great public highways. It was thought when the Internal Improvements of this State were commenced, that the money borrowed for their construction as well as the interest thereon, could be liquidated by the receipts thereof. Entertaining this idea, the State rushed heedlessly, recklessly, and foolishly into the matter, borrowed money time after time, and the result is, an immense State Debt, which has almost brought us upon the verge of Ruin!

Instead of the receipts of our Railroads and Canals paying the debt, they do not even pay the interest, as a general thing; and instead of the debt being reduced, it is growing bigger making the taxes almost intolerable! Such is the condition of the Public Works of Pennsylvania—a curse instead of a blessing—a machine used by politicians to promote their own selfish ends, rather than to advance the interests of the people—a perfect "lazar-house" of corruption in which are concocted plans to defeat the righteous will of the people. This being the case, we are not surprised that a feeling is again being awakened in favor of the sale of the Public Works of Pennsylvania. It is a measure required by the people, interests are largely at stake. Let the Public Works be disposed for a sufficient consideration, and the people will, ere two years shall have elapsed, feel the benefits of the change. As they are at present managed, we need expect no improvement in the financial affairs of Pennsylvania. Why not then, like prudent men adopt some policy that will make a change for the better? In a matter of so much importance to all classes of the People, there should be no difference of opinion, and we have no doubt that if a vote upon the question of selling our Public Works, were taken to-day, there would, as there was a few years ago, be an overwhelming majority in its favor. We were in favor of the measure then, are in favor of it now, and shall continue to be, so long as the Internal Improvements fail to reduce the State Debt—thereby maintaining the enormous taxes under which we are laboring.—Wash. Commencement.

MARRIED.
On the 19th inst., by the Rev. John Chambers, Mr. William Hand, printer, of Allentown, to Miss Mary Lees, grand daughter of Peter Lees, of Philadelphia.
On the 17th of April, by the Rev. Jacob Vogelbach, Mr. David K. Diefendorf, to Miss Christiana Bender, both of Allentown.
Accompanying the above notices we received a delicious bridal cake. We wish your young couple—and particularly as the bridegroom is one of the black cattle—who are now locked up in the chase of matrimony, much joy, may the quins continue to tighten the silken knot, and may the sorts so essential to mutual happiness, be justly awarded to them, is the sincere wish of the "Register."

Sentence of Arthur Spring.

On Saturday, the death penalty was pronounced upon Arthur Spring, the murderer of Ellen Lynch and Honora Shaw, in the presence of an immense concourse of citizens, not one of whom felt any sympathy for the cold-blooded slayer of unoffending women. The announcement that the death sentence would be passed, drew an immense crowd about the court room, and the utmost desire was evinced to be, within to see the condemned. Long before the hour for the meeting of the Court, the portion of the room allotted to the jurors and witnesses, was crowded to excess, even more so than on the occasion of the first trial, when young Spring was on the witness stand. When the doors were thrown open to the public, the rush was tremendous, and the officers were unable to force back the human tide. In a few minutes, every part of the building was crammed to excess, yet after the spectators were seated the utmost order and decorum was observed. Spring, the murderer, was brought up from the prison about 9 o'clock. He was aware that sentence was to be passed upon him, and manifested the utmost indifference about it. When the Judge entered, his face became flushed, but it was not observable in a few moments. He never for an instant quailed before the gaze of the immense multitude.

CORN FERTILIZER.—A correspondence of the Farm Journal says. As the time is drawing near for planting Corn, I consider it very important that Farmers should be acquainted with the best mode of preparing seed corn for planting. The mode I have practised for several years, with great success, is, immediately before depositing the seed in the ground, and mix two quarts of soft soap with half a bushel of seed corn; after that is done, put a good supply of Plaster with the above, and mix well together. Plant the corn with as little delay as possible afterwards.

German Movement.—The Newark Zeitung of Saturday contains some important proceedings of a meeting represented to have been a large and respectable one, held by Germans on Friday last, at which resolutions were adopted to protest against interfering with them by a rigorous execution of the Sabbath and temperance laws.

New Millinery Goods.

Mrs. A. S. Kaufman.
Respectfully invites the attention of the Ladies of Allentown and its vicinity that she has taken the east corner of Wilson's Row, No. 20, East Hamilton street, Allentown near the German Reformed Church, directly opposite J. B. Moser's Apothecary store, where she has received a large assortment of new and Fashionable Millinery Goods.

Her variety consists in part of French Lace, Blonde, Blonde Lace, Fluted Lace, Embroidered Hair Tripli, colored embroidered Bol-gades, English Dunstables. All kinds of Casin Bonnets, Mourning bonnets, French, and all kinds of Artificials, Caps, Facecaps, and all kinds of Ribbons, &c. &c.
Repairing, shaping, whitening and pressing after the latest fashion, and equal to any city establishment, is always done at the shortest possible notice.

Mrs. Kaufman, makes it evident that her stock of Bonnets, is of the most fashionable selection, and prices correspondingly reasonable. She trusts that a generous public will extend to her a liberal patronage, for which she will always feel grateful.
Country Milliners will find it to their advantage by giving her a call, as she will sell to them at a very low advance.

Allentown Hotel.
The undersigned respectfully inform their friends and the public in general, that they have on the first of April become proprietors of the Public House, lately kept by David Heller, on the North west corner of Hamilton Street and Market Square, Allentown so well known as the

which they have fitted up in a new and handsome style, for the accommodation of the home and travelling custom. Their Table will always be supplied with the best market affords. Their Bar with the choicest liquors and wines, and prompt and obliging servants are always ready to attend to the wants of their customers.

They have taken the House, with a determination to spare no pains or expense, to make their Hotel equal to any in this county, and by personal attention, to give any satisfaction to their customers.
They therefore respectfully request those who visit Allentown, either from the immediate neighborhood, or from a distance to make The Allentown Hotel, their home, and test the truth of their assertion.
Stages leave the above Hotel daily for New York, Philadelphia, Reading, Easton, Mauch Chunk and Hamburg.

Great Hat, Cap and Fur Store IN ALLENTOWN.

Wm. Keck,
Truly thankful for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him by his friends, and a generous public, requests a continuance of that patronage from them and that they should now call, and examine the most extensive stock of

that has ever been brought to the public, at his established and lately refitted Hat and Cap Emporium, No. 27, West Hamilton street, one door West of Schnurman's store.
He has just returned from the City of Philadelphia with the new summer style of Hats and Caps of all kinds and varieties.
The people of this neighborhood, have found it expensive to go to the great neighboring cities. Hereafter, to thank themselves in either of them, will be very cheap. They will merely have to call into the above mentioned Hat store, observe the late improvements, and hear of the uncommonly low price, when at once, their imagination will impress them with the belief that they stand in one of the best and cheapest Hat stores of New York or Philadelphia.
Call, see, examine, judge, inspect, choose, price, and buy for yourselves.
TO HUNTERS.—Highest cash price paid for all kind of furs.
