Pelton's System of Geography

Splendid Outline Maps.

This system of teaching Geography is rapidly becoming introduced in all the schools throughout the country. The series consists of seven maps, each covering about fifty square feet, boldly delineated, brilliantly colored, varnished and mounted, and forming the most magnificent, as well as the most useful part of the furniture of the school room.

Pelton's Key to Hemispheres.

This is intended for the use of pupils commencing the study, and a good knowledge of the Geography of the world may be obtained from it.

Pelton's Key to Full Series.

Containing a minute description of each state and country, the political and physical features of the earth, &c., forming a complete epitome of the whole subject. Where these keys are used in connection with the maps, no other work is necessary in the hands of the pupil, and their cost is about one third the usual price of a Geography and Atlas.

Wherever this system has been tried, it has excited the admiration of all who witnessed it, and we might fill a volume with the testimonials received in its favor. We append but one.

READING, March 1853.

Believing the introduction of Pelton's system of teaching Geography by the use of his series of Outline Maps, into the schools of our city, would enable the pupils to acquire a better, more lasting, and more practical knowledge of that science, than is generally acquired, and in one fourth of the time usually devoted to that study, the undersigned, Teachers in Reading, most cheerfully recommend it to the Directors of the different wards, for their adoption.

Portable Gas.

GAS has been acknowledged, from the time of its first introduction, to be the best material for light, its use being attended with no danger or trouble. But to bring it to the consumers by miles of conducting pipes and meters, makes it an article of luxury only attainable by a part of the community in large cities, who reside within the range of the main pipes. And even then, its high price exceeds all other burning material; and the greater part of the citizens cannot enjoy the benefit of gas light even by paying any price, not to mention the many accidents which happen by the use of turpentine and alcohol light. If the great expense of miles of main-pipes could be avoided, gas would not cost half the price it now does. Every man would burn it; and it would be promotive of family happiness, as the spirit of education and science has reached almost every house. The wife would enjoy the company of her husband, and be entertained by a fine story from a book or newspaper; every corner might be occupied by children learning their lessons; ladies at the piano would not dispense with a gas light, if once used, and all this can be done with one gas-light, at the cost of half a cent an evening. To effect this, gas must be made portable. Experiments have been made to compress it from 13 to 1 part in volume, but it was found impossible to regulate the pressure, and was very dangerous on account of the liability to explosion. But by a far safer and more simple apparatus in every consumer's cellar—a tub with water, a tin or sheet iron kettle, 10 or 15 feet of pipe, and a burner in the lower story put up in a proper manner—every man can light up two rooms; and in the same manner the whole house may be lighted from the cellar. The gas-wagon stops at the front door, the manufacturer runs an India-rubber pipe through the cellar-hole or door, attaches it, and fills the apparatus without any trouble or notice to the consumer.

In this manner, a small capital invested will enable almost any community, village, or town to erect a concern to supply gas at a price lower than any other burning material can be furnished. All who take an interest in the subject, or would like to have gas works erected in this manner, will please address
