(From the Washington Republic.) An Interesting Story, well Told.

"It's not often a man loses any thing by kindness. I know a little matter of that sort saved my life, and perhaps the lives of many others at the same time.

"How was that ?" asked we of our friend Rawlings, the model conductor.

"Why, we had an Irishman on this road watching a tunnel. It was warm weather, so he used to go into the tunnel to keep cool. I rather think he used to take a little liquor when he was lonesome; any way, he laid down one day to listen for the cars. He fell asleep, and very imprudently got his head cut off by the express train. Well, there was the last of that Irishman. There was the devil's own row in his shanty when we Rook the poor fellow up, and we got away as soon as we decently could, for you know it's not agreeable to be surrounded with a distracted family when you're neither a doctor nor a nurse nor a preacher.

Somehow I was always sorry when I passed that place; of course I felt as if not exactly the same thing-but just as bad might happen to me some day, and then there'd be another row in a family. I told my wife about it, and she sent the family some little things. The widow of the dead Trishman was a Catholic, and, as I was then on a very fast train, I would sometimes take up the old woman on Sunday and carry her to church at Martinsburg. .. I somehow thought it was a satisfaction to her to go to church, for she had but little chance in the world, any how. I certainly did not expect to get any thing for it in this world, and I expected they had so much scored against me in the other that it would 'nt amount to any thing there. That was during the summer One night the next winter it was very cold. and the mountains were covered with snow; we were running to make time, when, on turning a curve, the engineer saw a waving light on the track, and we soon heard some one ahead shouting. I was then out on the platform.

The engineer slacked up and stopped the engine, and we got out and went ahead in the dark to see what was the matter. There it was. A large landslide had fallen across the track, near the shanty of that old Irish woman. She had built up a large fire and watched for the train, for the curves were so sharp that we might have been upon the slide before we could see it. So, when we run up, there was the old lady, with her calico cap, swinging the chunk of fire like a revolving light-house, and there were the little Irish carrying brush, like so many lit-She had watched all that night in the cold. But for her in another minute we should have run into a pile of dirt and stone as big as Barnum's Hotel. I should have got a 'pit ticket,' certain, for I was on the platform. What would have become of the passengers and train you can guess as

We expressed a hope that the old widow had been properly rewarded.

"The passengers made up about eighty dollars; the company afterwards gave her a shanty rent free, the brakemen and engineers bought her a cow, and she made out very well. But when I handed the money to her that night, she said : Gentleman and ladies, I'an thankful, and may ye never know the want of what ye give me. But what I did was mostly on account of him there. He was kind and thoughtful to the poor and the afflicted, and I'd a watched till I froze before harrum should have come to him, if I could have helped it."

"D-n the thing, it made me choke right

"Passen jars for the Reln-a-y." "Don't forget your umbrella, sir; there might be an explosion, and you'd want it to keep off the cinders." "Let me pass your bandbox, miss." "Take care of your little boy, madam, no insurance on him." "All right!

Breddful Calamity at Haverstraw.

A gentleman who arrived from Haverstraw last night informs us that several persons were killed, and many more injured, by the falling of a house at that place during a storm about six o'clock on Saturday P. The building was owned by Mr. Peck, and was formerly used as a carpet weaving establishment, but of late had been occupied

The house was crammed with people at the time, many of them laborers in the brick vards, who ran into it for shelter. Of the fifty persons who are supposed to have been congregated beneath the roof, only six were known to have escaped.

At soven, o'clock seven dead bodies had been teken out, and a large number of the inhabitants were searching for more,

In addition to the above frightful calamity we learn that the wind blew with such violence as to capsize and sink a sloop at the Whig Extravagance.

It appears, says the Richmond Whig, that there will be some twenty-three millions surplus in the treasury on the 1st of July. This is the prosperous condition a Whig Administration leaves the country in; yet we everlastingly hear Democracy prating over Whig extravagance about election times, and telling the dear people that the Whigs are not to be entrusted with the public money. When did ever a democratic Administration leave a surplus in the treasury? On the other hand, they have always left exhausted coffers and an accumulated debt. Already the organs of the party ure setting to work to devise some plan to spend the surplus left by the Whigs. As the ostensible means of making way with it, some of them propose to plunge the country headgive themselves no concern about the disposition of this surplus. A Democratic Administration can spend it.

Latest from Hong Kong.

We are in possession of full details of the news from China, by the Overland Mail at Thieste. The insurgents having captured Nankin on the 21st of March, had subsequently been compelled by the Imperial troops to evacuate it, and in little more than a fortnight, viz., on the 6th of April, had been defeated 60 miles southward of Nankin.

Hono Kono, April 22.—Our last of the 11th, brought down news of the rebellion from Shanghai to the 28th inst. We have now dates to the 12th ult. Previous to the 8th inst., the success of the rebel force had been rapid; the most current information was that the city of Nankin had fallen into their hands, and that Chirkeangfoo, had been taken without opposition. On the 8th inst., report reached of the hostile intentions of the rebels against the foreign community in particular, and that they intended advancng on Shanghai, which caused the greatest alarm and confusion; the inhabitants of the city were moving into the country, and the united naval force and the whole community commenced making preparations for the defence.

Later accounts from Loochou had been re ceived, stating that something had checked the rebels' approach, and matters were more quiet. The rebels force had evacuated Chinkeangfoo, and were retreating upon Nankin. This has been confirmed by advices received from Loochon on the 11th, from an enterprising volunteer of the British diplomatic department, who had reached there in disguise and safety.

The Tartar General Heang Yueng, with the Grand Imperial Army, was close to Nankin, which, it was generally believed he had taken possession of. An engagement between the two forces was expected to take place about the 10th inst., and till the result be known all will be intense anxiety and suspense.

There were four steamers of war and Her Majesty's brig Lily, off Shanghai, and a British force with guns had been landed, and an application for a supply of arms has been acceeded to by the General here.

His Excellency Sir George Bonham re urned from Ningpo in Her Majesty's steamer, Hermes on the 2d instant, and dates from thence of the 16th instant report all was quiet there. At Foochowfoo, it is said some difference existed between the Tartar and Chinese troops. Amoy was not particularly affected by the news of the rebellion. At Canton all remains quiet.

The coast is alarmingly troubled with pirates, and attacks have been made on English vessels. Her Majesties steamer Rattler went on a cruise from Amoy, on the 16th, after the pirates.

Democracy. .

We live in a progressive age, and trust, therefore, that Democracy has improved since 1847, when Andrew Johnson, a Democrat, in his speech in Congress on tea and coffee, digressed into pepper and mustard in regard to Mr. Polk's administration:

"But, in conclusion, he must be permitted to say, he wished to Almighty God that the whole American people could be assembled in this city—that there was some kind of an amphitheater constructed, capacious enough to contain the entire voting population of the United States, and that they were convened for a short period of time, and the veil that now conceals from their views the many abuses could be drawn aside, and they be permitted to take one calm survey, one full and dispassionate view of all the secret springs of the entire proceedings of things under this Government; of all the intriguings of officers in authority, from the highest to the lowest, I would not say they would lay violent hands upon an edifice designed is founders to be sacred and perfect all its parts, and tear it into ten thousand pieces; I mill not say they would rush upon t in a state of precipitancy with the resistless and devastating fury of some mighty empest, no, I have too much confidence it their forbearance to believe so for a moment But I feel well assured of one thing, and that is, they would rip up and tear off some of these funguses that have been fixing and have fixed themselves upon the vitals of this Government for years gone by ; they would turn some mighty stream through the Augean Stable until it was thoroughly cleansed from the abominable filth that has been preying upon the life blood of the republic too long. The people will, the people must, take things into their own hands.

Mr. Johnson did not quit the party, as one might suppose, but continues his fealty. At present he is a Democratic candidate for Governor of Tennessee.

Character of the Democracy.

The Democrats talk a great deal about equal rights, but when called upon to act, are rather inconsistent. In Rhode Island, the Democratic Legislature have divided the two large towns, Providence and Newport, into single districts, for the choice of delegates to the Convention, because they are Whig towns but have not thus divided Smithfield and Cranston, for they are Democratic towns. although large enough to be divided into separate voting districts.
