The Foreign News.

The 'Arabia' brings us confirmation of the worst features of the intelligence from Europe by the previous arrival. The difference between Russia and Turkey grows more and more complicated, and seems still more certain to end in hostilities. The letter of the Czar, rejecting the Sultan's modifications of the Vienna note, places that rejection upon grounds which seem to render all accommodation impossible; and the popular feeling in Turkey is becoming so belligerent as to render it very difficult for the Sultan, even if so disposed, to make any further concessions for the sake of peace. It seems to be generally understood, more-over, that Austria has withdrawn from the coalition, and is prepared to side openly, as she has done from the beginning secretly. with Russia; -this is clearly the result of the Czar's personal interview with the Emperor at Olmutz.

Those who persist in believing that peace will be preserved, confide wholly in the determination of England that there shall be no war. But England has very evidently lost control of the current of events. The Sultan no longer conforms his action to her wishes; and it is not now at her choice whether to have war or not. We have no doubt that England will exhaust every resource of diplomacy to prevent hostilities in the first place, and failing in that, to keep from becoming entangled in them herself. It is quite possible also, that in the event of war, the Russian Czar might seek to confine his operations within such limits as to give England a good excuse for holding herself aloof. If he should rest content with possession of the Principalities, and not seek at once the overthrow of the entire Empire, the war might very possibly be confined to Russia and Turkey, though the Hungarians would doubtless take action which would involve Austria also.

The effect of this unsettled condition of political affairs upon the market of London demand for and prices of Gram and Flour, already excited by the well-established cerof deficient crops in England, France and Belgium, and to cause a serious decline in Consols and a check upon the Cotton interests of Manchester and Liverpool. It is now deemed more than probable that supplies of Grain will be cut off from the Black Sea, while the spirited competition for the surplus of the North of Europe, has already advanced the prices of Wheat and other grains at Hamburg, Dantzic, &c. The largely into the food supply of Europe; the latest figure being forty shillings sterling per quarter. The tendency to stiffen rates on the use of capital in London, which has. within the brief period of eight months, more than doubled the interest current at the Bank, is gradually extending its influence to the Continental cities.

Progress of the Pacific Rail Road.

Capt. E. A. Graves, of Kentucky, who is in New Mexico holding some govern-ment office, has forwarded to the Louisville 'Journal' an interesting letter, giving an account of Captain Gunison's progress in surveving the Central railroad route.

The party had arrived at Fort Massachusetts, and found the route every way practicable and desirable. Every statement by Benton, founded on the information of Fremont and Leroux, is fully confirmed.'

Baker, not only for a railroad, but for a good wagon road

The party was in good health. They found plenty of wood, water, and grass on the route, and express the opinion that next year the California emigration will take this route as far better than the Fort Laramie route, and from three to four hundred miles nearer. Mr. Lerox is of the opinion that the worst part of the road has already been passed by them. Leroux left here some two days since to go to Fort Massachusetts to act as guide for them, but whether he will go with them or not has not yet been finally settled. He will probably spend some ten days with them, and then return, as he is anxious to go with Lieut. Whipple on the Albuquerque route. I refer you to the re-

Scarcily of Silver.

Several causes, says Thompson's Reporter, are assigned in England for the existing scarcity of silver, most of which would be feit in this country. One is that not as much silver is discovered and mined as formerly, and thus as much added to the circulating medium yearly as the arts take from it. The discovery of gold has of late been so immense that it has given an impulse to every kind of business and an increase demand for manufactured articles, but the discovery of silver has not yet kept pace with this impulse. In many countries of Europe, in Holland for example, silver is and Liverpool, has been to stimulate the the standard of value, and the differences of trade between those countries and England have to be paid in silver. But the greatest operative cause for the scarcity of silver in ken by the natives nor employed as a legal the World's Fair, not less than thirty-two besh. tender, hence in all trade with those coun- et. The excess of Indian expontation is very heavy, hence there is a constant drain of silver from both England and America .-most remarkable advance noted by this arrival, as in Indian Corn, which now enters of this subject, proposes that gold should be In this country and in England if this depletion of silver commues, our circulating medium will soon be nothing but gold, and gold alloyed with copper for small change.
