Two young male slaves were recently sold near Salem, N. C.—one for $1500 and the other for $2000.

The engineers have been engaged for some two weeks in locating the branch road, from the Water Gap Railroad, near Montgomeryville, to Doylestown.

No More Wood or Coal Fuel.—We verily believe that a way has been discovered of warming houses by burning gas, that will speedily do away with the use of wood and coal for all heating and culinary purposes. This will astonish old fogeydom; but we have entire confidence in the success of this great discovery, and have made arrangements to have the Mirror office warmed by this process. The flame from a single gas burner, such as we now use, can be so diffused as to produce any required degree of heat—at a cost for gas, and that, too, at present city rates, of only about fifteen cents a day!

We regard this discovery as one of the latest wonders and most useful achievements of the age.—N. Y. Mirror.

Mammuth Eel.—A large mud eel was exhibited in the Fulton fish market, New York, on Friday morning. It weighed sixteen pounds, and measured five feet in length. This is a true fish story. And to cap the climax, Wyman, the ventriloquist, being present, asked the man how old the eel was, when the eel, to the astonishment of the man replied "sixteen years." This pleased the crowd, but the man was about abandoning the monster, when the joke was explained to him.

Attempted Suicide of a Philadelphian.—On Friday evening, a gentleman from Philadelphia attempted to commit suicide on the cars, as the train was approaching Greensburg, Pa., on its way to Pittsburgh. He was sitting alongside his wife, when he drew a dirk knife from his pocket, and plunged it repeatedly in his side and breast. He was carried to Greensburg in a dying state. Upwards of $6000 were found on his person, which was placed in charge of his lady. His name is stated to be Falkner.—Phil. Sun.

Eight Persons Poisoned.—On Saturday night, the 8th inst., a man named Alexander Russell, of Limestone, Washington county, Pa., who had been insane for some time put a quantity of arsenic into a pot of mush which was cooking in the house of John Duer, of the same place and then swallowed a large dose of the poison himself. Judge Duer and his family six in number eat of mush, and were very sick, but recovered with proper remedies. Russell suffered for nearly a day, during which he acknowledged what he had done, and then died.

Native Devon Oxen.

C. P. Holcomb, Esq., Vice President of our State Society for Delaware, is, as our readers are aware, now on a tour in Europe. The principal object of Mr. H's. visit is to examine the stock horses and cattle, and to introduce such breeds, particularly of the former, as may be deemed most suitable for the general purposes of our country. Of the latter he is partial to the Devons, and has a most beautiful herd, second to none other in this country, save that of George Patterson, Esq., which the world cannot beat.

In a letter to Mr. Pedder, of Boston, Mr. Holcomb describes a yoke of native Devon oxen, which he had on his farm for many years, (a lithographic print of which was sent to our office.)—He says:

"They are sixteen years, four months old, and have worked to the yoke fourteen years; have taken two first prizes, one at three years old, and one at six. They ploughed in the spring of 1842 three acres of ground in a day; in April, 1843, they pulled on a wager or trial of strength, two tons weight over a bad road. They ploughed in the following Autumn, at the first ploughing match of the Newcastle County Society, beating five horse teams in point of time. They were turned off to fatten last Autumn; their present live weight is 3330 lbs. They have been a cheap, faithful and efficient team; and well deserve the record thus sought to be preserved of them."—American Farmer.

A catfish, 19 inches in length, was caught at Redding on Thursday last. It was one of the "blue" species.

Romantic Wedding.

A marriage took place in this city last week under the following romantic circumstances: A young clergyman of the Episcopal Church, resident in Canada, was engaged to a lady in England. Circumstances not favoring his undertaking the voyage to his native country in order to meet his lady-love, she took passage on board the Canada, to come to her future home, alone and unattended. Arrangements had been made by the gentleman to have the marriage ceremony performed in an Episcopal church in this city upon the arrival of the bride, and the pastor was ready to have the church opened at the hour's notice. The steamer reached East Boston about 11 o'clock on Friday night. The bridegroom was on the wharf anxiously waiting the appearance of the betrothed, whom he had not seen for three years. The parties soon met and a friend was despatched to have the church opened and the clergyman at the altar.

The arrangements were made after a short delay, as the Bishop and the Priest who were officiate had retired for the night. The bridal party drove from the steamer to the church. The candles in the altar gave but a dim light, and the scene was quite peculiar. During the marriage ceremony, the clock in the church struck the midnight hour, so that some confusion arose respecting the proper date to give the marriage certificate. The party in the church consisted of but five persons—the bride and bridegroom, the two clergymen of the church, and the witness. The married clergyman took part in the religious services of two churches in this vicinity on Sunday, and left for his place of residence in the early train yesterday morning.—Bos. Trav.

Oil Well and Oil Spring.

In western Virginia, near the forks of the Hughes river, there is an oil well and an oil spring, which are curiosities in their way. A correspondent of the Christian Advocate and Journal thus describes them:

This well was dug for salt, but it commenced blowing out oil, and continues its blowings at intervals up to the present time. Every fifth day it blows out about fourteen gallons of oil.

At the oil springs, vast quantities of oil are annually gathered, by sinking pits in the earth thirty feet deep. The bed of oil lies parallel with the bed of the river, and is generally near five feet thick. The oil, in its natural state, adheres to the sand, and can only be separated from it by washing the sand in water. The sand is washed by sinking a small pit as deep as the bed of the oil; the pit soon fills with water, when men go into it with broad hoes, and wash the sand by pulling it to them and pushing it from them. While this is done, the oil rises to the surface of the water; it is then gathered by a large ladle and put into large cisterns or hog-heads, where it purifies itself. It is then put into barrels and sent to market. Some pits fifteen feet square have yielded one hundred and thirty-five barrels of oil, but all are not alike rich. The oil is valuable for weakness in the breast, sprains cuts and bruises; it burns very well in a lamp, and may be used in dressing leather, instead of fish oil, but makes the leather porous.

HOLLOW HORN DISEASE.—Seeing in your paper of the 3d inst., an enquiry respecting a disease called hollow horn, the cause and cure; perhaps, as no description of the disease is given, it may be something I am not acquainted with, yet we have a disease called the horn ail; the symptoms are, dropping of the head and ears, lying down, turning the head over the back, towards the shoulders, as if in pain in the head. This I think is a spinal disease effecting the brains and horns. Cure.—Take a large table spoonful of sulphur, and lard sufficient when warm to make it soft like paste, pour it on the top of the head at the roots of the horns; take a shovel or flat piece of iron, heat it, and hold it over the head so as to heat the paste and warm the top of the head as much as the beast will bear; repeat once in two or three days, and bore the horns on the under side two or three inches from the head, so as to let in fresh air—and let the putrid matter out if any has collected. I have never known this fail, if taken before they are too far gone. I have cured one cow when the top of the head was so full of matter that I opened a place above the ear, which discharged more than a half-pint. This was in the summer; the cow was luted in the Fall and killed; the head was all right, excepting a place at the roots of the horns about as large as a small spoon bowl.—Boston Cultivator.

Railway Smash.

Last week, the large locomotive Pocahontas, drawing a loaded train of coal cars, ran off the track at Schuylkill Haven, at the bridge, plunging down an embankment of some twenty feet, dragging with it a dozen cars, which, together with the locomotive, were much broken. But the most remarkable incident of this accident is the escape of two men, who were seated in the express office at the time, a small building standing some two feet from the track, and directly in the track of the engine.—The house was pitched down the bank and split in two, with the locomotive fast upon it, and the men, who were quietly smoking their cigars at a comfortable fire, rolled out at a crack made by the concussion, and escaped with but a few slight bruises.—There was a can of fluid in the office, which caught fire immediately, consuming the building, books and papers the flames extending so furiously as to bar all efforts, to save them. The engineer and fireman jumped from the engine in time to escape unhurt.—Pottsville Mining Register.

North Carolina Rice Crop.

The Wilmington Herald, in alluding to the rice crop, says: "We rejoice that our planters have reason to be abundantly grateful for the rich returns of their labors the present season. The crop is more than an average, we believe, and will probably reach 200,000 bushels."

Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad.

The progressive prosperity of this great work is truly astonishing. The receipts of September last amount to $80,826. The corresponding month of last year gave $37,520.

Sweet olive oil is a certain cure for the bite of a rattlesnake. Apply it internally and externally.

Rats and other vermin are kept away from grain by a sprinkling of garlic when packing the sheaves.

Money skillfully expended in drying land by draining or otherwise, will be returned with ample interest.

To cure scratches on a horse, wash the legs with warm soapuds, and then with beef brine. Two applications will cure in the worst case.

Timber, when cut in the spring and exposed to the weather with the bark on, decays much sooner than if cut in the fall.

Experiments show apples to be equal to potatoes to improve hogs, and decidedly superior for feeding cattle.

Wild onions are destroyed by cultivating corn, ploughing and leaving the field in its ploughed state all the winter.

Our Ambassadors Abroad.

The attempt of our foreign Ministers to raise their salaries, is leading to a discussion that must be productive of great good. The people are pursuing the question a step farther than the petitioners desired. They not only object to any increase in the emoluments connected with the office, but are more than half inclined to abolish the office itself. This is sensible—and because it is so, we rejoice to see it spreading. We clip the following paragraph from a morning paper:—

"America needs no resident ministers abroad. Our representation must be in our national honor and justice. As we can show an American book of which more copies have been issued than any work except the Bible since printing was discovered; as we can present the best agricultural machines, mechanical tools, and fastest sailing vessels and steamers; as we can prove that our population doubles four or six times as fast as that of Europe, and find that some of the Continental States are alarmed at the immigration to this country, caused by its superior advantages and attractions, we are virtually better represented abroad than if we had a place of gold for an Embassy, and more than oriental splendors of costume."

This is putting the matter in a good strong common-sense light. We no more need a score of Ambassadors than we need a body guard for the President. All matters of State are regulated at Washington;—our ministers being nothing more than go-betweens—discharging duties of a grade that any person who has risen above the horizon of Daboll's Arithmetic is abundantly equal to.

Runaway Marriages.

In a great majority of cases, the elopement of a young lady is unwise, giddy, ungrateful, unmodest, and evinces a lascivious appetite and reckless disposition. Why should she desert and distress those who have loved, nurtured and cherished her through all her past years, to throw herself into the arms of a comparative stranger, who has done nothing for her, and whose protestations of affection have yet to undergo the first trial? It is every way unworthy of pure and gentle maidenhood.

We can imagine but one excuse for her elopement—namely, the efforts of parents or guardians to coerce her into marrying some one she does not love. To avoid such a fate, she is justified in running away; for no parent has or ever had a right to constrain a daughter to marriage against her will.—But where the parents are willing to wait, the daughter should also consent to wait, until her choice is assented to, or she attains her legal majority. Then, if she chooses to marry in opposition to her parents' wishes, let her quit their home openly, frankly, in broad day-light, and in such a manner as shall kindly, but utterly preclude any pretence that her act is clandestine, or ill-considered. No one should be persuaded or coerced to marry where she does not love; but to wait a year or two for the assent of those who have all her life done what they could for her welfare, no daughter should esteem a hardship.

There is some truth to be told about the "common run" of masculine prowlers by night, about garden walls and under bed room windows, in quest of opportunities to pour seducing flatteries into the ears of simple misses; but we have no time to tell it now. As a general rule, they are licentious, good-for-nothing adventurers, who would much rather marry a living than work for it, and who speculate on the chances of "bringing the old folks round," after a year or two. A true man would not advise, much less urge, the woman he loved to take a step which must inevitably lessen the respect felt for her, and violate the trust reposed in her by those who had loved and cherished her all her days.—N. Y. Tribune.

Drowned.—Mr. Charles McGearty, an Irishman by birth, and for some time a resident of this vicinity, was drowned near the weighlock last evening. His body was recovered, but life was completely gone. He leaves a family.—C. Dem.

Self Sale into Slavery.

A singular instance of a colored man selling himself into slavery was brought out in the Mayor's Court, in Richmond, Va., last week. A man named Jones, a witness in the case of larceny, stated that he was the slave of a Mr. Corrington, while the book of the Hustings Court showed him to be a free man. On examination, it appeared that Jones was emancipated in Richmond, in 1851, and that, appended to the evidence of his freedom, was an injunction from the Court to leave the State, on penalty of being sold for the benefit of the State. Instead of doing so, it appeared that he sold himself to Mr. Corrington, and had actually received part of the purchase money at that time of the sale. The Mayor stated, in strong terms, his convictions, that the whole proceeding was illegal, and that the State had claims for forfeiture which could be enforced in spite of the negro's self-sale; but for the purpose of bringing the novel question before a higher Court, he had the man held to a hearing before the next Hustings Court on the charge of remaining in the Commonwealth contrary to law.
