Revolutionary Scraps.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Paris; May, 1779: Lord Cornwallis, Lord Howe, General Howe, General Grey, Colonel Montrosser, and Capt. Hammond of the Barbuck, have declared their opinions, in the most positive terms in Parliament, that a conquest of the United States of America is impracticable. You will recollect, Sir, that General Burgoyne had given a similar opinion soon after his return from your country. We are informed; that before Parliament rises, John Maxwell, Joseph Galloway, Andrew Allen, John Patterson, Teophilus Morris, Enoch Story and Jabez Fisher, are to be produced by administration to prove the contrary. You, and those in Pennsylvania, who know all the characters, will determine justly, which set is likely to be the most competent judges. The determination by a corrupt and infatuated Ministry will probably be in favor of the latter; because it will please their master, and keep themselves a little longer in power.

The Last Will and Testament of Old England. 1. Old England, being in a very weak and languishing state through voluptuousness and loss of blood, do make and ordain this my last will and Testament, in the following manner, viz: Imprimis, I do give and bequeath unto the Bishops of St. Asaph and Peterborough, to be equally divided between them, all my religion.

2. I give all my virtue and sincerity to the worthy members of the minority in the House of Commons. 3. I give all my knowledge in politics to Lord Camden and Lord Abingdon, and those other noble Lords who opposed the Ministry in their late mischievous and cursed war in America. 4. I give to my sister Scotland, all my pride and haughtiness.

5. I give to my sister Ireland, the one half of my poverty, distress and ruin. 6. I give to the Earl of Bute and Lord North, all my treachery and tyranny, to be equally divided between them.

7. I give to Lord Howe and General Howe, all my cruelty, as a reward for their treatment of the American prisoners. 8. I give all my low running to Lord Mansfield and Lord George Germaine.

9. I give my stupidity and obstinacy to the present Ministry. 10. I give my power by sea and land to the French King.

11. I give my integrity, to the King of Spain. 12. I give my trade and commerce to the States of Holland.

13. I give those abject mortals, the Tories in America, one ton of hemp, to be equally distributed amongst them by Jack Ketch. 14. I give all my tithes and tithes contained in that most glorious tract called Magna Charta, to the United States of America, their heirs and assigns forever.

15. I give unto my Colonies of America viz: Canada, Nova Scotia, East and West Florida, and the West Indies, the other half of my poverty, distress and ruin; and I do appoint the United States of America to be the Guardians of my said Colonies.

Lastly, I nominate, constitute and appoint the Count D'Armadour, to be the Executor of this my last will to which I hereunto set my hand and seal, in the Palace of Necessity, this 19th day of April (just four years from the fatal day, on which my last opportunity was lost by the blood of America at Lexington) Anno Domini 1779. DAN ESOLANS.

Signed, sealed, pronounced and declared to be the last Will and Testament of the said Old England, in the presence of us, who have cheerfully subscribed our names.
His Holiness Pope,
His Impudence Mahomet,
His Ignorance Pagen.
The Printers in the United States are desired to register this my last Will in their newspapers, for the benefit of those Legatees who reside in America. Her last words.

Arrival of the Franklin.

New York, Nov. 10—9^{1/2} A. M. The steamship Franklin, from Havre via Southampton, with London dates to the 23rd being four days later than previous advices had just arrived.

The Franklin has about 150 passengers, and a very large and valuable cargo. The Eastern question remained without much change. The combined fleets had at length passed the Dardanelles, and are now unanchored off Constantinople.

The Liverpool market for Breadstuffs owing to the warlike news from the East, had further improved. Flour was 6d. a 1s. better, and Wheat 2d.

TURKEY AND RUSSIA.—Very little intelligence of a definite or reliable character has been received from those countries since the sailing of the last steamer.

A rumor was telegraphed from Constantinople, under date of the 17th, that the combined fleets of England and France, at the earnest solicitation of the Sultan, had passed the Dardanelles.

It is stated that the Czar has issued assurances that the property of leading British merchants, as well as their persons, will be carefully protected, in the event of a war with Turkey.

The army of Asia are daily receiving reinforcements. Omar Pasha was preparing to cross the Danube at Widin, having a large number of boats and pontoons in readiness. The bridge between the fortress Widin and Islanda opposite, was already occupied by a Turkish corps. The Russians were marching in great force to Kalafat, opposite Widin.

A letter from St. Petersburg, dated October 14, says that the news of the declaration of war by the Porte, produced a most painful sensation. In the North, the Russian army and civil service were for war, but in the South they were more pacific, and nothing like warlike enthusiasm was apparent anywhere, although various means had been taken to produce it.

It was rumored at Paris that the text of a new Russian manifesto had reached the French Government, which contained something very insulting to France, characterising her as the hot bed of revolution. One of the expressions is said to read as follows: "I am in my right, and I will defend it, as well as the rights of my coreligionists, against all foreign interference whatever, and I shall not stand alone."

Notwithstanding all unfavorable symptoms, public opinion in Paris and London still believed that the resources of diplomacy were not all exhausted, and war would yet be averted.

Court Proceedings.

Our County Court of Quarter Sessions, &c., met on Monday morning last, and has been in session all week. Judge Jones and his Associates, Judges Young and Heidenreich, were upon the Bench. Judge Jones read a long and able charge to the Grand Jury, on the subject of the enforcement of the laws against the sale of liquor on Sunday, which we publish entire in another column. He passes an eloquent eulogium upon the founders of our Republic, and beautifully declares his conviction of the priceless value of the religious principle which they brought with them to this Western land, and incorporated into the social and political structure they reared for posterity. He shows how deep-seated and strong a feeling, respect for the Sabbath is, in the hearts of the American people, and how much the culture of Christian morality is owing to the prevalence of this feeling.

But he does not think that the observance of the Sabbath or the practice of any religious duty, is to be enforced by rule of Court. Our Government is one of the wisest freedom in all matters of religion, and our laws, with great caution and mildness, and in a very limited degree, have prescribed rules touching those things which pertain to the conscience of individuals. The Court has no warrant to go beyond the letter of the law in compelling obedience to religious observances, and cannot do so without violating the spirit of liberty, which enters into the frame-work of our Government.

The laws of 1705 and 1791 confer no authority upon the Courts of this Commonwealth to interfere to prevent the sale of liquor, or other secular business, on the Sabbath. That power is committed expressly and exclusively to Constables and Justices of the Peace, and with them rests the duty and responsibility of enforcing it. Neglect of this, as well as all other public duties, is the proper subject of complaint for any private citizen, who deems that he or his neighbors suffer wrong thereby. When such complaints are made, in a regular way, the Court is bound to take notice of them, and "will" take notice of them.

They will instruct the officers what their duty is, and enjoin its performance. But in no other manner does the law authorize, or even by implication allow the Court to interfere. The Judge's views, we think, are sound, and will meet the concurrence of every reflecting man. (Reading Gazette and Democrat.)

A Female Bigamist.

Yesterday morning, November 8th, upon entering the Mayor's office, we found an unusual number of outsiders present, who seemed deeply interested in a case before or about to be brought before his Honor. Upon edging our way through the crowd to the space within the railing allotted to the officers, and the more favored prisoners, an unusual scene was presented. Seated on a chair in the centre of the space was a gaily apparel'd female, who was sobbing and sighing in a most painful manner, with her head resting on the shoulder of a decently dressed man. In a little while we learned that the female was charged with bigamy, and that she had been arrested at the Arch Street Theatre, on Monday night, in the midst of "Blek House," and taken to the Cherry Street Lock-up, to await a hearing. It seems that Mrs. Rebecca Erdman, as the defendant is properly called, her maiden name being Ford, was married some five years ago to Daniel H. Erdman. After living with Mr. Erdman some four years, and having two children by him, she left him, and went to board somewhere in the neighborhood of Cherry and Tenth streets.

There, a Mr. Joseph G. Bowman saw her, and, after a brief courtship, made an offer of his hand and fortune, which were accepted. This marriage took place before Ald. Hibbard, on the 20th of last August. The parties lived happily together for some weeks, Mr. Bowman being much attached to his new wife, and indulging her in every whim and caprice. Finally, he left the city, to pay a brief visit to some friends in the country, and, while absent, his wife packed up a portion of his personal effects, and left without any intimation as to where, or why she was going. Mr. Bowman heard nothing of her, and saw nothing, until on Monday night, when chance and the Blek House took him to the Arch street Theatre. Judge of his surprise, on entering the boxes, to find his runaway wife seated by the side of a strange man.

He proceeded to the individual, and naturally asked him what he was doing with his wife? "She is my wife," replied the other, "and I'd like to know how you claim her as your wife." An altercation ensued the officer of the house was summoned, and Mr. and Mrs. Erdman (the man with her being her first husband) were treated to a realization of Blek House, in Cherry street above 4th, known as the City Police Station. She denied all knowledge of Bowman said that she had never seen him before, and probably would have induced this belief in many, if her previous history were not fully known. A partial hearing of the case was had before the Mayor, this morning, and Mrs. Rebecca Erdman was held in $500 to await further investigation. (Daily Pennsylvania.)

Hearty Robbery.—Mr. Augustus R. Nocker, of Rebersburg, Berks county, was robbed of a sum of money amounting to $1,200 or $1,400 on Friday night, the 28th ult., at Schuylkill Haven. He offers a reward of three hundred dollars for the recovery of the money and detection of the thief.

Philadelphia Market.

The America's advices have stiffened the market for BREADSTUFFS, and holders are demanding advanced rates for Flour, but without much doing in the way of sales; 1000 barrels fair shipping brands sold at $7,25; about 1200 barrels, W. B. Thomms, at $7,37^{1/2}, and 500 barrels common extra at $7,31^{1/2} per barrel. Shippers are not disposed to pay over $7,12^{1/2} per barrel for ordinary superfine. The demand for home use is moderate, and sales range from $7,25 to $7,50 per barrel for good retailing and extra brands. RYE FLOUR is very scarce at $5,25. CORN MEAL is quiet, and Pennsylvania Meal is offered at $3,87^{1/2} per barrel. WHEAT is in light supply to-day, and only about 1500 bushels prime Pennsylvania white sold $1,67 afloat, which is an advance; red is wanted at $1,55, with little or none offering. CORN continues dull; yellow is held at 80c, without finding buyers to any extent. OATS—No sales, and the demand limited, at 40^{1/2} for Southern, and 45^{1/2} for Pennsylvania. Rye is scarce and wanted at 98^{1/2} to 1⁰⁰. Provisions—Stocks are nearly exhausted, and the demand confined to the wants of the retail trade at steady prices. WHISKY is unsettled and lower, and barrels are quoted at 28^{1/2} to 29^{1/2}, without much doing.

A Shocking Affair.

A terrible tragedy occurred at Louisville on the 2d inst. The particulars of the affair are these. Prof. BUTLER, of the Louisville High School, had flogged, for lying about a school offence, a young brother of MATTHEW F. WARD, the author of a furious work on England, called English Items, in which he advises every American to spit upon an Englishman wherever he may find him. WARD went to the school and demanded of BUTLER why he flogged his brother. BUTLER explained, and stated that he had not flogged the lad severely, but as a necessary correction for having told a falsehood, and thereby caused a school-mate to be flogged. WARD drew forth a single barreled pistol, and shot BUTLER. The ball struck him in the left breast, and he fell, exclaiming, "I am killed. O, God! my wife, my children." He died the next morning. He was a native of Indiana, and only 23 years of age. He was a highly accomplished man, and universally respected. His funeral was attended by hundreds, of all ranks. The city of Louisville was in mourning. WARD, and one of his brothers who had accompanied him to the school, who was charged with being an accomplice, were arrested. The Judge refused to accept bail for their appearance, and they were imprisoned. The greatest excitement prevails throughout the State.
