The War in the East.

The Retreat of the Turks across the Danube—No more Battles—Evacuation of Lesser Wallachia by the Russians—Their Fleet in Winter Quarters, etc.

Advices from Bucharest state that Prince Gortschakoff returned there on the 16th November.

The Russian frontier is stated that the contingent of that province—a corps of 12,000 men—are preparing to join the Turkish army intending to cross the Serbian territories with or without leave.

A great sensation had been caused at Constantinople by the issue of a notice from the French consulate, inviting tenders for the supply of provisions for the French fleet during the winter in the Black Sea.

Communications from Constantinople, dated 7th November, state that the Austrian and Prussian Ambassadors had given Rechid Pacha the most formal assurance of the determination of their respective governments to maintain strict neutrality.

The very latest—Concentration of Russian Troops near Kulefat, &c.—Letters from Krajova state that the Russians had concentrated a large force of men there, and their outposts were close to Kulefat, where frequent skirmishes took place.

Ismael Pacha's headquarters were at Kulefat, which Omer Pacha has ordered him to hold, if possible, and to abstain from further operations during the winter.

The Turkish were making considerable preparations to send succor to the Circassians. A letter from St. Petersburg says that the Emperor of Russia is suffering from illness.

The Morning Chronicle, in a despatch from Vienna affirms that the Turks have erected a camp on the Serbian frontier and commenced throwing a bridge across the Danube.

A telegraphic despatch from Turin, states that the Sardinian Chamber of Deputies was dissolved on the 21st of November, by royal ordinance.

The dress of both sexes, and of all ranks in Japan, is very similar in form, differing chiefly in color, fineness, and value of the materials.

Men wear a scarf over the shoulders, the length of which is regulated by the width of the wearer, and which also regulates the body with which they greet each other; etiquette requiring that in bowing, the ends of this scarf should touch the ground. To these, upon occasions of full dress, the garb of ceremony is added, which is a cloak of peculiar form. With the cloak is worn a curious kind of trousers called hakama, resembling an immense full-plaited gown or robe, sewed up between the legs, and just leaving enough open at the outside to allow free locomotion.

Their shoes are of the rudest and most inconvenient kind; they are little more than soles of matting, straw, or wood, kept on principally by a pin or button held between the toes, or sometimes a ring of horn. The difficulty of lifting the foot thus shod, from the ground, renders their gait extremely awkward and shuffling.

The face is painted red and white, the lips stained purple, and, in addition, a Japanese married lady blackens her teeth and plucks out her eye-brows.

Japanese houses are low, none being of more than one entire story. They are constructed of a mixture of clay and chopped straw, coated on the outside with a cement which gives them the appearance of stone.

Every house has a garden attached, laid out in landscape style, with rocks, mountains, lakes, &c., and into this the back part of the house which the family inhabit, projects triangularly for the benefit of additional light and cheerfulness.

A correspondent of the Springfield Republican gives an interesting account of a visit lately made to the Bank of England. This bank was founded in the reign of William III., about the year 1731.

The average emission of bills is one million pounds sterling per day. The exterior appearance of the bank is that of an immensely large, but low, flat building.

The coinage itself is an immense business, for the laws are exceedingly strict on this subject. Every coin that comes in, in the least defaced, or a thousandth part of a grain too light, is recoined.

To illustrate this, suppose you bring to deposit, or that you pay into the bank, a thousand sovereigns. You take a receipt for them, not specifying their value. They are thrown into the hopper; the light ones are knocked out; the perfect ones are counted by the machine, and laid by themselves. The man in attendance unlocks the register, which has recorded the number of perfect coins. Suppose the number to be 961, he finds the figures arranged in the box of the register, as they are here placed, 961.

General William Larimer has been named as the Whig candidate for Governor. The General is a strong man in the west, and a very worthy gentleman.

Report of Secretary of the Interior.

Of all the public documents given to the country within the last week, not one possesses more interest than the Annual Report from the Department of the Interior. We glean from it the facts that during the year, 9,819,311 acres have been surveyed, 10,363,891 acres brought into market, and 1,083,495 acres sold.

Murder Will Out.

The New Orleans Delta relates a singular circumstance of long concealed guilt brought to light. Nearly ten years ago, two planters and the overseer of one of them were travelling in Texas. Night found them beside a river which they were unable to ford, and were they would have to wait till morning before they could be ferried across.

The weather was fine, the travelers were well armed, and as they were accustomed to wildwood journeyings, they soon prepared rough accommodations for the night. As they had traveled far and fast during the preceding day, the planters were soon in the enjoyment of "rural nature's sweet restorer, balmey sleep," and no sense of danger disturbed their slumbers.

Capitalists Look Here!! Private Sale Of a Tract of Land, containing an inextinguishable bed of Fire Clay, situated in Upper Millford township, Lehigh county, about half a mile of Emmaus, on the road leading from Emmaus to Trumbauersville, and near the proposed Railroad from Norristown to Allentown, containing 27 acres, more or less.

The bed of clay is inexhaustible, and is at present mined and used at the Allentown and Catauqua and other Furnaces; at the Zink Furnaces at Bethlehem, and is pronounced to be equal if not better in quality to the best obtained in this or any other country. It is therefore deemed worthy the attention of capitalists. Thereon is also

A Good Iron Ore Bed, of the richest and best quality, and the bed is from 20 to 30 feet in thickness. This together with the Fire Clay, makes the property one of the most desirable and money making in the vicinity.

Thereon is erected a DWELLING HOUSE, part stone and part log, barn, and other necessary out buildings, an Apple Orchard, well with good water, and a never failing stream runs through the land.

Competent judges assert that intermixed with this clay is found the best material to manufacture the white porcelain ware, which makes it worthy of particular notice.

Persons wishing to examine the above property, can do so by calling on the owner who resides thereon, or on the undersigned where further information may be obtained.
