A Picture .- John M. Daniels, American Charge d'Affairs to Sardinia sees nothing in the old world to compare with his "beloved Virginia." His opinion of European men, manners and Govern ments may be gathered from the following extract from one of his late letters, published in the Richmond Examiner :

If you knew," says Mr. Daniel, writing home, "how much pleasanter a life of real study in the United States is than is nonsensical travel and Do. by hands of 11. J. Schantz, for idleness you would not be so discontented. One will only learn by experience. . The pleasure of actually sceing celebrated places is small-It is all anticipation and memory. The real comforts of Europe don't compare with those of Do. keeping Maria Keiper, a pauper, 175 00 the United States. Everything costs just double Cash received on orders on the counwhat it does at home. The people are nowhere as good as ours. The women are uglier-the men have fewer ideas. I intend to write a book about it all. . . Here in Turin, which is the most beautiful city I have ever seen, &c. . I have dined with dukes, jabbered bad grammar to Countesses, and am spunged on for seats in my opera-box by Counts, who stink of garile, as does the whole country. I receive visits from other diplomats, with titles as long as a flag-staff and heads as empty as their hearts, and find the whole concern more trashy than I had ever imagined. I must, however, keep up their miserable acquaintance, for that is the way to see the "elephant" of European life. So I dance the dance of fools like the best of them, carrying about great cards like that I enclose for your inspection. The pictures, the operas and the ballets of Europe are good things the people, the government and the society more contemptible than can be conceived.
