

The Murder and Death of Bill Poole.
Last week we mentioned that Bill Poole, the prize-fighter, of New York, had been shot in a brawl at Stanwix Hall, in that city. He died on Thursday of last week. The pistol ball lodged in his heart and he lived twelve days after he received it. It is said that under favorable circumstances he might have recovered. Five days after the wound he was quite strong. At the post mortem examination, the heart was laid aside during the search for the ball, without any suspicion that the ball was in it. At last it was examined and the bullet found imbedded in its muscular texture. It lodged in the septum, between the ventricles, about an inch and a half from the apex of the heart, and a quarter of an inch from the surface. The muscular substance had united over the ball and so far as to obliterate the point of entrance.

The feud between the two factions of bruisers, headed respectively by Morrissey, the Irish pugilist, and Bill Poole, had been in full blast for several months, and fire arms had been used more than once by the belligerents during its progress. At one time Tom Iyer was mixed up in the quarrel, and a few weeks ago he barely escaped with life from a squad of Morrissey's adherents. He has of late, however, like a sensible man, avoided the haunts of his enemies, and expressed his determination to have no collision with them if it can possibly be avoided. The bitter hatred which Morrissey bore to Poole, grew out of a pitched battle which took place between the twin last summer. They met by appointment one morning, bright and early, on one of the North River wharves, in the presence of some hundred of "ghost boys,"—and the absence of the police. Morrissey, who is a heavier man than Poole, by some forty pounds, was on that occasion pretty essentially "used up." As they approached each other, Poole sprang upon his antagonist, wildcat fashion, overturned him, and then butted, kicked and gouged him, until the Irishman had "enough," and thought it advisable to say so. From that time until the evening of the late affray, a sort of desultory war had been carried on between the Poolites and Morrissey-ites, a fight invariably taking place whenever the members of the two gangs met in force.

The following is from the New York Daily Times:—BILL POOLE, during the most of his illness, since the night of the affray, was able to talk to his family and the various friends who visited him; and about half an hour before his death he engaged in conversation with them. In fact, he was strong enough to get up in bed, propped and supported by pillows. Only a few minutes before he expired he remarked, with great distinctness of voice, "I think I am a gent. If I die, I die a true American; and what grieves me most is, thinking that I've been murdered by a set of Irish—by Monnsies in particular."

He gave directions to have his body opened by physicians after death. He was also expressed a wish to be attired in a suit of black clothes, with patent leather boots, and have a white collar folded down over his coat.

On the Sunday following was paid the last melancholy tribute of respect to the remains of Poole.

It was announced that the funeral exercises would be held at 2 o'clock P. M., at the residence of the deceased, No. 164 Christopher street. At an early hour in the forenoon—before 10 o'clock—the street within a block and a half of Poole's residence was completely filled with a dense throng, many having come to see what they might get a last glimpse of the remains of him they knew and esteemed a friend—a large number having been drawn together from the nature alone and attendant circumstances of the case. The coffin in which the body lay was of plain rosewood, and a silver plate bore the following inscription:

WILLIAM POOLE—died March 8, 1855, aged 33 years—8 months.

The coffin was placed in a central position, between the front and back parlors, and all who could, took a view of the corpse. It was arranged that visitors came by one door and passed out by another, thus affording a large number the gratification of seeing the remains.

As the hour advanced the throng in the street kept increasing in numbers. The various companies and associations who were to join in the obsequies, having previously formed at their respective head quarters, were gradually being added to the swelling numbers. By 1 o'clock Christopher street, from West Street to Hudson, was a perfect mass of human beings. It was almost impossible for carriages to get near the place. They finally had to pass through Barrow street, and reach Christopher street by West street. It was an utter impossibility to get within the house. Many made the effort, but gave it up as hopeless. It is estimated that at least two hundred thousand persons were in the streets all along the line of procession.

The hearse was drawn by four horses. Over the coffin was placed the American flag. On each side of the hearse were four laurel wreaths, looped with black. On either side appeared the words "I die a true American."

Behind the hearse was a carriage, in which were Mrs. Poole, wife of the deceased, and a son, three years of age, James Poole, a brother, Mr. Poole the elder, and a brother-in-law. Following was a long line of carriages, containing friends of the deceased. There were 155 carriages in all, and in the procession proper were about six thousand persons.

As the procession commenced its line of march the utmost order prevailed. It was about 8 1/2 o'clock. The crowd in the immediate vicinity could not have increased for, as before stated, not a possible foothold or hanging place was left unoccupied. The Sixth and Eighth avenue bridges were so long obstructed in waiting for the procession to pass, that on either side, above and below, extended a line of cars reaching nearly a quarter of a mile. The procession passed up Christopher to Bleeker street, and thence through to Broadway. The number of eager spectators were not in the least diminished. Windows and stoops and tops of fences were alive with earnest lookers-on. In Broadway the number of spectators were vastly increased. On each side, from Bleeker street nearly to the Battery, the walk and street having just room enough for the procession to move, was a compact mass of human beings; windows likewise, and railings and the tops of buildings were brought in use. The Exchange Coffee House, corner of Howard and Broadway, which was owned by Poole at the time of his death, was draped in mourning.

POOLE was an American, and had taken an active part in the crusade against foreigners which still enlists so much of public favor.—This crusade, powerful as it is in religious and conversation circles, is still stronger and more determined and earnest in the class to which POOLE belonged. He and IYER were among the fighting men of the American order, as against the bullies of foreign birth—and this fact had very much to do with his death.

Lewis Baker who fired the fatal shot has not yet been arrested. Morrissey, the prize-fighter, and several of his gang have been committed to prison for being concerned in the affray.

A FEARFUL ADVENTURE.—Last Saturday, a thrilling coincidence occurred at Patterson's Falls, in Sparta, about five miles north of this village. A little boy only four years old, son of Mr. I. Patterson, left the house of his parents about 2 o'clock, and wandered to the head of the falls, half a mile distant. He not returning at five o'clock, a search was made in the direction of the falls, when at once the worst fears of his parents were realized. He had gone over the brink of the frightful precipice, as his track in the snow gave evidence, which covered the more abrupt juts of the falls. In the distance below a dark speck was all that could be seen, and nothing could be heard except the scullery roar of the water. After considerable difficulty the summit of the falls was effected. The dark speck proved to be the hole produced by the fall, from which he was thrown into the snow about three yards to the left. He had fallen one hundred feet, and finding he could not retract his steps, he ventured further, passing over three other falls less dangerous, where he was found nearly frozen.—Danville Democrat, March 7.

COLOR OF THE EYES.—That the color of the eyes should affect their strength may seem strange; yet that such is the case need not at this time of day to be proved; and those whose eyes are brown or dark colored should be informed that they are weaker and more susceptible of injury, from various causes, than gray or blue eyes. Light blue eyes are ceteris paribus, generally the most powerful, and next to those are gray. The lighter the pupil the greater and longer continued is the degree of

THE ICE HARVEST.—The largest ice-houses at Horn Pond, owned by Daniel Draper & Son, have been filled with ice, and large quantities are being conveyed to the rail-road, from whence it is taken on the cars to Boston, to be shipped to southern ports. These buildings, six in number, contain about 30,000 tons.—The largest building is three hundred and ten feet in length and ninety-two in width. From fifty to one hundred men have been constantly employed on the pond during the winter, cutting and storing ice.—Boston Traveller.

HEAVY ROBBERY OF GOLD.—Two boxes of gold shipped from California by the Northern Light to PAGE, BACON & Co., New York, have been stolen. They contained forty thousand dollars worth of the precious metal. It is supposed that the robbery took place while crossing the Isthmus. It was not known until after the arrival of the vessel at New York, when, upon the boxes being opened by the parties, they were found to contain iron instead of gold.

WHO ARE OUR CRIMINALS?—In the Municipal Court, Boston, on Monday, the Grand Jury returned sixty-eight bills of indictment against sixty-eight prisoners, for committing various crimes in the city, and out of the whole number sixty were foreigners, and mostly Irish.

DEATH FROM EATING HEMLOCK.—William Green, overseer for Haywood Williams, Esq., of Person county, (N. C.) died on Tuesday last, immediately after eating a small particle of the root of Hemlock, which, some ditches had dug up, and he mistook for parsnip growing wild.

HEAVY LOSSES.—The losses paid by fourteen stock insurance officers in Stato street, Boston, during the last five years almost reach the large sum of ten million dollars. Of this amount $7,675,424 86 were paid on marine losses.

DON'T POINT THIS WAY.—It is reported that the Rev. Evans Dewis, one of the mathematicians and philosophers of the age, is about completing the plan of an instrument by which any city or town in the world may be destroyed without a nearer approach than ten miles.

FOREIGN PAUPERS.—Senator Brooks said the other day, in the Senate, that over 1600 paupers had arrived in New York in a single year, and over 600 families. The communes of Germany have a regular system of sending these people out to our land.

MARRIED.—On the 6th inst., by the Rev. Mr. Vogelbach, Mr. CHARLES WEBER, of Milford, to Miss MARIA WESCO, of Maconing.

DIED.—On the 8th inst., in Milford, MAGDELENA, wife of Gottlieb Lorenz, aged 48 years.
On the 11th of March, in Easton, after a protracted illness, NATHAN G. MANSFIELD, in the 43d year of his age.

STARTLING, BUT TRUE!

How often it happens that this life begins from year to year in this pillable condition, not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilarating influence incident to the enjoyment of health!

THE BLOOMING BRIDE.
But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, mallow, debilitated wife, with frame emaciated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration, arising from ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often to those who cannot interfere with arrangements of this kind.

The Board reserves the right where the Water is used by Hydrants, if not paid by all joined, to stop it if they see proper, as they consider such arrangements solely advantageous to those who cannot interfere with arrangements of this kind.

Notice is also given to persons who wish to use Hydrant Water for building purposes, that they must take out their permits before they commence building, and if this rule is not strictly observed the charge will be double for the Water.

DREADFUL INHERITANCE FROM THE PARENTS.
"And must this continue? Must this be? Is there no remedy? No relief? No hope?"
The remedy is by knowing the causes and avoiding them, and knowing the remedies, and benefiting by them. These are pointed out in

THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION,
BY DR. A. M. MAURICEAU,
Professor of Anatomy and Surgery,
Out Hospital, Paris, (590,000), 18mo., pp. 250.
[For list of prices, extra notices, &c.]
A standard work of established reputation, found classed in the catalogue of the great trade sales in New York, Philadelphia, and other cities, and sold by the principal booksellers in the United States. It was first published in 1847, since which time

FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND COPIES have been sold of which there were upwards of ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND SENT BY MAIL. The highest estimation in which it is held as a reliable popular Medical BOOK FOR EVERY FEMALE the author having devoted his exclusive attention to the treatment of complaints peculiar to females, in respect to which he is yearly consulted by thousands both in person and by letter.

How every woman can discover, by comparing her own symptoms with those described, the nature, character, causes of, and the proper remedies for, her complaints. The wife about becoming a mother has often need of instruction and advice of the utmost importance to her future health, in respect to which her sensitiveness forbids consulting a medical gentleman, will find such instruction and advice, and also explain many symptoms which otherwise would occasion anxiety or alarm as all the peculiarities incident to her situation are described.

How many are suffering from obstructions or irregularities peculiar to the female system, which undermine the health, the effects of which they are ignorant, and for which their delicacy forbids seeking medical advice. Many suffering from prolapsus uteri (falling of the womb), or from stygia albus (weakness, debility, &c.) Many are in constant agonies for many months preceding confinement. Many have difficulty if not dangerous deliveries, and slow and uncertain recoveries. Some whose lives are jeopardized during such time, will each find in its pages the means of prevention, amelioration and relief.

It is of course impracticable to convey fully the various subjects treated of, as they are of a nature strictly intended for the married or those contemplating marriage. Reader, are you the helpless victim of those who love to hear? Have you the sneers of others? Have you no time to learn what causes interfere with their health and happiness, as less than your own. It will avoid to you and yours, as less than thousands, many a day of pain and anxiety, followed by sleepless nights, incapacitating the mind for its ordinary avocations, and exhausting those means for medical attendance, medicines and attending postures which otherwise would provide for declining years, the infirmities of age and the proper education of your children.

In consequence of the universal popularity of the work, as evidenced by its extraordinary sales, various impositions have been attempted, as well on bookellers as on the public, by imitations of the name, spurious editions and surreptitious infringements of copyright, and other devices and deceptions, it has been found necessary, therefore, to

CAUTION THE PUBLIC to buy no book unless the words "Dr. A. M. Mauriceau," be printed in red ink on the back of the book; and buy only of respectable and honorable dealers, or send by mail, and address to Dr. A. M. Mauriceau.

Upon receipt of One Dollar THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION is sent (gratis) to any part of the United States, the Canada and British Provinces. All letters must be post paid, and addressed to Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Box 1224, New-York City, Publishing Office, No. 122 Liberty Street, New-York.
