Execution for Murder. FREDERICK MILLER, the unfortunate German who was tried and convicted of the murder of Dr. J. F. C. HADLE and Mr. HENRY GRAEFF, paid the penalty of the law between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 1 P. M., in accordance with the warrant of the Governor, in Cumberland, to-day. The place of execution fixed upon was about one mile and a half from the city. It is supposed that eight thousand persons were present to witness this awful sight, from the surrounding counties, and we are sorry to say one-third of them were women, some of whom boasted that they had walked sixteen miles before 9 o'clock to see him hung. Such actions on the part of the sterner sex are not at all commendable, but in that part of human nature who are characterized as the possessors of finer feelings, are in exceedingly bad taste. We give below an account of all that was said in his cell, to which we were invited through the kindness of Mr. EVERETT, Sheriff of the County.

Nine o'clock, A. M.—We entered the cell and found the prisoner, MILLER, very lively, who freely entered into conversation with us. He spoke little or no English, and for the translation of his remarks we are indebted to ex-Sheriff SMUTZ. He said he slept very little last night, (Thursday.) We asked him if he had had his usual appetite. He very frankly answered: "Yes; that he had eaten a very hearty breakfast; and as he would not get more to eat in this world, he did not feel like going into the other world upon an empty stomach." He took hold of a job-chain of ex-Sheriff SMUTZ, and remarked that it was the exact pattern of Dr. HADLE's, and if he (SMUTZ) should be murdered it might lead to the detection of the murderer, as it had done in Dr. HADLE's case. (This is a confession, but, as it will be seen below, he afterwards declared his innocence.)

He requested, last night, (Thursday,) that his spiritual adviser, Rev. Mr. MAUER, would administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper to him, which he refused, as MILLER had not made a confession as he had progressed. However, at 12 o'clock at night, he asked the jailor to give him a cup of water, and bread, (that he might take the Sacrament himself) which was furnished him. After praying fervently for half an hour, and repeating the Lord's Prayer, he partook of the bread and water. At 9 o'clock he asked for paper and pencil, and wrote on the strip of paper a few sentences—But it was written so hurriedly that we could not make out its entire contents. It is to the effect that he is entirely innocent of the crime for which he was about to suffer, and also that a greater part of the publication of his life is false. Soon after this his spiritual adviser entered and told him that he had but three hours to live, and asked him if he had any message to send to Mrs. HADLE and children. He said: "Tell Mrs. H. I am innocent; that whoever is guilty will be made known to them in the other world, and may God bless the widow and the orphans." The minister and the culprit then knelt in prayer, and whilst the reverend gentleman addressed the Throne of Grace, the prisoner seemed much affected. After the conclusion of the minister's prayer, MILLER prayed for about ten minutes, very loud and fervently. At 10 o'clock the Sheriff entered the cell to shroud him. He was again asked, whilst he was being shrouded, if he would not make a confession, but he refused. At 11 o'clock, the Sheriff told him it was time to start. He immediately took a seat upon his coffin, in one of ADAMS & Co's Express wagons, and the mournful cortege moved towards the place of execution.

At 10 minutes past 12 o'clock the procession arrived at the appointed spot, and immediately the culprit ascended the scaffold with an unusually firm step, accompanied by the Sheriff, J. A. Sheriff and others. He was then asked if he had anything to say; he replied that the gallows could destroy the body, but God would take care of his soul. His spiritual adviser told him that as he now had but a few moments to live, he had better make a full confession; but he, as he had before done, refused, and replied, "I am innocent." Rev. Mr. MAUER then addressed the large multitude for some moments, after which Rev. Mr. MAUER, with the prisoner, knelt in prayer, the minister recommending the soul of the culprit to God. MILLER also prayed, stating he forgave the Judge, Jury and witnesses, and said he had no doubt but what they thought it correct to find him guilty. He said he was innocent of the crime, but he had been a villain, and committed many crimes. He prayed to God to protect the widow and the orphans of the murdered man, and hoped that God would permit him to see Dr. HADLE and Mr. GRAEFF in the spirit world, and ask them who committed the murder.

He then shook hands with those on the scaffold, and the rope was adjusted by the Sheriff, the cap drawn over his face and his hands pinioned. At a quarter to 1 the Sheriff cut the rope and the unfortunate man was suspended between heaven and earth. In his fall, which was nearly three feet, the knot slipped towards his chin, which made him die violently. He struggled for about eight minutes, attempting several times to get his hands to his throat, which was impossible; he smote his breast several times, and after some minutes he ceased to breathe. After being suspended for twenty minutes he was taken down, placed in his coffin, and buried somewhere in the neighborhood. MILLER was about twenty-five years of age, had a most singular shaped head, and a very large pair of whiskers and moustaches. We understand from him that he has no relative living in this country except a brother-in-law.

THE PRESIDENT.—It is stated that the delegates just chosen to the next democratic State Convention of Pennsylvania, stand 72 for Buchanan, 5 for Dallas, and 3 doubtful.

A Long Night with Wild Beasts.

On the 4th of November, 1855, Arvine Clark, of Jersey Shore, was exploring the route for a new road to the settlement of the "farming and Land Association," a new colony near the site of the famous Ole Bull settlement, in Potter county. When evening drew on, he commenced retracing his steps, but lost his way, in a dense forest at least eight miles from a settlement. An old man, tired with walking, he sat down on a log to rest a moment and contemplate his situation. His attention was suddenly arrested by a rustling in the bushes close by, and on looking around he saw a huge bear coming towards him. To draw up his trusty rifle and shoot, was the work of a moment; Bruin gave a fearful roar, which awoke the echoes of the gloomy solitude, and then was still. Fearing that he was only wounded, Clark hastily reloaded his gun with two balls, the last in his pouch, and discharged them into the body of the bear, when he cautiously approached and found that he was dead. He describes the bear's roar, as he received his death wound, as terrific, and calculated to make the stoutest heart quail with fear.

A dark night was setting down on him—he had no bullets—was far in the wilderness, without food or shelter. He had no matches to kindle a fire—and, to add to his farther discomfort, it commenced raining. What was to be done? To remain there, was exceedingly dangerous. He continued to grope his way through the laurel, hoping to find a path that might lead to a hunter's habitation, but in vain. The howling of a pack of wolves greeted his ear. He soon became exhausted, and found that he would have to remain there for the night. Coming to an aged henlock, he seated himself at its root. Could he but obtain a fire, he would be comparatively safe. The effort was made by collecting some dry materials, and, loading his gun with powder, fired the charge into a dry cotton henderkerchief. It was a failure! As the gun was discharged, another bear, apparently within twenty feet of him, gave a hideous roar, that made Clark's hair stand on end. Bruin was terribly frightened by the discharge of the gun, and hastily scampered off, much to the relief of Clark.

Here he remained, not daring to fall asleep. About two o'clock in the morning, to add to the horrors of his situation, the yell of a panther was heard. The beast approached—came nearer every few minutes, uttering a screech that froze the blood in his veins! As a last resort to defend himself from the attack of the savage animal, he re-loaded his gun, putting in some three cent pieces and steel pens, (for he had nothing else,) which he hoped might do some execution. The animal came so near that the glare of his eyes in the darkness resembled two balls of fire! There Clark remained without daring to move—with the fiery eyes of the panther fixed upon him. In this dreadful situation, expecting every moment to be torn in pieces, he remained, till break of day, when he was relieved from danger by the animal disappearing. Hungry, weary and excited, he left for the settlement, where he arrived about noon, and related his thrilling adventure. A party proceeded to the place where the bear was shot, and brought in his carcass, which proved to be a very large one. It was dressed and forwarded to New York. It was several days before Clark fairly recovered from the fatigue, the fear, and excitement of that night, which will never be removed from his mind.

FIGHTING INDIANS WITH BLOODHOUNDS.—The New Orleans Picayune gives a long account of a fight between Sam Jones, a notorious desperado of Texas, and fifteen of the Lipan Indians. He was in his cornfield when they made their appearance, but managed to escape with an old German into his cabin. The Indians soon surrounded the house with hideous yells. The old man had but little ammunition and was, of course, conscious that every shot should tell. When the Indians would attempt to break in the slight door he would shoot, and while he was loading, the German would keep them at bay, by pointing an unloaded gun at them through the crevices of the house. They managed in this way till the outside of the house was bristling with arrows, aimed at them between the logs, and the old man's powder had given out. At this moment the Indians retreated a short distance to hold a council. The besieged availed themselves of the chance to get the assistance of a dozen bloodhounds that were confined in an outbuilding. Under cover of the two unloaded guns, Jones' wife liberated the dogs. Here was a reinforcement the red scamps had not calculated upon, and in the twinkling of an eye five of the Indians were throttled by the dogs. The balance came to the wisdom, and soon shot all the remainder of their arrows into the dogs, and beat a retreat, bearing their wounded, beating off the dogs with their bows, their buckskins in tatters, and blood streaming from every one of them. After the fight, the field exhibited one dead Indian, three dead dogs, sundry pieces of buckskin mingled with clotted masses of Indian flesh, hundreds of arrows and pieces of bows.

TOO WHITE TO BE MARRIED.—A negro named Miles Jones, living at Rock Island, Illinois, has for a long time been courting a white girl in this city, named Sarah Davis. His wooing was successful, so far as obtaining the consent of the lady to become his wife. To obtain a license from the clerk of the court Miles swore that his intended was three-quarters black; but upon application to the Squire he thought Sarah was too white to allow him to perform the marriage ceremony without violating the laws of the State. Miles is hunting up testimony to prove that the girl is three-quarters black. These facts we gather from the Rock Island Republican, which is responsible for their truth.

Lay by a good store of patience, but be sure to put it where you can find it.

Distressing Calamity. A Family of Eleven Frozen to Death.—An old friend informs that a neighbor of his residing upon a cold, bleak portion of the suburbs, has been visited by the parties bereft, and which made us shudder when he, in a feeling manner, broached to us the sad intelligence. The whole offspring of family—eleven in number—frozen, literally frozen to death!

It is too well known that Wednesday night was one of the very coldest that has transpired for many a year in this latitude; and that suffering was intense. The miserable wreck of a shanty in which this large family were harbored was scarce fit to protect the hardest of the brute creation. Not a flame nor a spark of fire was beneath the roof to cheer their countenances nor to warm their little toes; but there they were compelled to remain during the entire cold and bitter night—no friend knowing nor dreaming of the intense suffering to which they were being subjected; yet it is not to be doubted that had they been only able to make known to the community the precise nature of their distress, the hand of charity would have been extended at least as far as to render them better housed. But this was unfortunately not so; and in the morning when a guardian of the family looked into the miserable residence, his feelings were deeply touched at seeing the entire 11 frozen stiff in death; and he at once censured himself for not having exercised a better protective care over the family. The bereaved mother of the eleven little ones was yet alive, and we are informed is doing "as well as could be expected under the peculiar circumstances." The father is a perfect brute, a perfect hog, and has not been seen by the mother for several months.

Horrible Murder. We learn from the Portsmouth (Ohio) Herald of the 12th inst; that a young man named William Milligan had been arrested near West Union, in Adams county, for the murder of an old man named Senter, and his wife. It appears that the deceased were the owners of a small farm of which Milligan wished to get possession. In order to accomplish his purpose, he forged a deed of the premises, and then brutally murdered the old couple. The atrocious act was committed about three weeks since, and yet no suspicious of the foul deed had been attached to Mr. Milligan; he insisted that he had bought and paid for it and had a deed for the same; but he did not know what had become of Senter and his wife. Some one, in looking at the deed observed that it was not acknowledged on the part of his wife, and that Senter's name was spelled wrong. The murdered bodies were found about one hundred yards from the house buried together, some two feet under ground, with a large log over them. They had only their night clothes on. Senter had twelve wounds on his head and face, and his wife had seven, their skulls having been fractured and their brains protruding.—(Ex.)

EXAMINER CARDS.—An exchange says: "A little child of our acquaintance was rendered seriously ill last week by chewing a handsome emerald ball ticket, which its mother had given it to play with. For the benefit of those who do not know we would state that the emerald on these cards contains arsenic."

COL. BENTON.—Mr. Greeley in one of his letters says—"I noted among us to-day Col. Benton, now far beyond his seventieth year, and bearing the marks of age and bereavement, but still erect and vigorous, his brow scarcely wrinkled, and his hair, silvered indeed, but not yet white with the frost of life's later Autumn."

DIED. In Kutztown, on the 29th of December, II. B. VON SMETZ, aged 42 years and 13 days.

CUSTOMER WORK will be done up as usual, and for their work they are willing to be held responsible, two of the firm being practical tailors, and all the work is made up under their own supervision. Thankful for past favors, they trust that attention to business, "small profits and quick sales" will be the means of bringing new customers to their establishment. Oct 1. —1f

$100,000 Mortgage Loan. CAPITALISTS and persons of moderate means in the county of Lehigh, having money to invest, have an opportunity offered them which rarely occurs. The subscriber having been commissioned to sell mortgage loans of the North Pennsylvania Railroad Company, to the amount of $100,000, will be at the Hotel, in the Borough of Allentown, from Monday, December 24th, to Friday, January 18th, next, where those having money to invest can secure mortgage loans of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which will yield annual interest equivalent to 9 per cent, payable in July and January of each year. Two and a half million of dollars being expended in the construction and equipment of the road, prior to this mortgage, makes this loan entirely safe. The Bonds are issued of the denomination of $1000 and $500—interest payable semi-annually. Persons desiring further information, and who may not find it convenient to call, will address per mail at Allentown to January 17th next. Payments can be made in instalments or otherwise on or before the first day of June next. GEORGE W. PERRING, for N. P. R. Co. January 1. —1y
