Amendments to the Constitution.

The proposed amendments to the Constitution of this Commonwcalth, which were adopted by the last Legislature, are published in the Register to-day, by authority. A vote of the people will be taken upon them at the October election. If a majority is cast in their favor, and if adopted by that body, they will then become a part of the Constitution.

What Allentown Wants.

There is nothing which tends so much to the improvement of a town or city, as its maufactories. This is a truth which experience has amply attested. Circumstances may often favor a place, advantage of location or the likegrowth is accompanied by a corresponding in- in Kansas, and that it is then his intention to be got out of as it was to get in. crease of manufacturing business, it soon ar- return and take his chances with them. rives at its culminating point, and either stands still or begins to want. It may do a good and prosperous mercantile business, but even that is circumscribed by the limited country trading at that point. Whereas, Manufacturing establishments, driven with energy, find an outlet for their productions and can extend their business over an almost limitless extend of country, and invariably bring trade and custom to the door of the merchant. As their business extends the demand for workmen increases. Mechanics are induced to settle where they can find constant and profitable employment. New families are thus added to the town or village. Every new family adds to the business of the merchants. As the town increases in population new stores spring up. There is a greater competition in securing the productions of the farmer. The market is better. Farmers bring their products to the market where they can obtain the best prices for them, and the country trade becomes more extensive, as the competition increases. Every branch of business is improved, and the town grows on. It is in vain to expect a large population in a simply trading town. There must the Canada at Boston. By them our dates are on air, consequently they are forced elsewhere, the means of living. A limited country trade -a limited population is the consequence, for population and employment depend mutually again. There is nothing else by these steamers on each other. What then is obvious ?--cither of special interest. the towm must extend itself by means of man ufactories, or remain within circumscribed limits. It is the interest then, of all, merchants, capitalists, landholders and others, to encourage and aid in the establishment of such branches of business, which, while they are lucrative to the proprietors, furnish employment to mechanics, increase the populationextend the business, augment capital, and enhance the value of real estate.

Fatal Affray at Catasauqua.

On Monday evening of last week an affray occurred on the canal bridge at Catasauqua, between several boatmen, which terminated fatally to one of them named Siegfried, from South Easton. It appears Siegfried got into a quarrel on the bridge with a boy belonging to another boat, of which an Irishman named Shayne was captain, and whipped him .--Shayne and his brother who were near by thereupon interfered and defended the boy in their employ, which brought on a regular scuffle, during which captain Shayne picked up an arm of a boat-rudder and struck Seigfried a violent blow over the head, which caused his death in five hours thereafter. The offender made his escape. We endeavored to get the full particulars of the unfortunate occurrence, but could not learn anything more than the above.

WETTING BRICKS .- It is important that every one engaged in building should be well informed in regard to the durability of materials. Very few people, or even builders, are aware of the advantage of wetting bricks bethey do not practice it ; for of the many houses now in progress in this place, there are very few in which wet bricks are used. A wall twelve inches thick, built of good mortar with bricks well soaked, is stronger in every respect than one sixteen inches thick build dry. The reason of this is, that if the bricks are saturated with water, they will not abstract from the mortar the moisture which is necessary to its crystalization ; and on the contrary they will chemically unite with the mortar, and become as solid as a rock. On the other hand, if the bricks are put up dry, they immediately take TINCREASE OF WHITE POPULATION .- It is all the moisture from the mortar, leaving it too dry to harden, and the consequence is, that
