What it Cost Nations to Engage in War.

The figures which are given as the cost to Great Britian for wars past and prospective, heard of a lady who has worn at one time, as for one year, are enormous. That Power expended $251,000,000 in 1854, while all its is the usual number, but that seems to us to be pended $251,000,000 in 1854, while all its other expenses amounted to but $30,000,000. The war tax of Great Britain in 1854 was nearly three fourths of a million dollars daily, or of the laboring man.

The interest on the war debt of nations, at five per cent., will amount to $450,000,000 pounds of water were extracted .- Woonsocket yearly. Then there is a considerable sum to be raised for war prospective in the mere prepcration for war in the time of peace. This sum cannot amount to less than $450,000,000 the people, by wars past and prospective. This others will not bestow a single one, short of a sum is equal to the whole value of all the exports of England, France, and the United States put together. It is twice the rental of all the real estate in Great Britian; exceeds the net selling on contract for future delivery at 44 profit of all the manufactures in Christendom, cents per lb. It is equal to the yearly wages of four million five hundred thousand agricultural laborers, at $200 a head. It would pay for the construction of forty-five thousand miles of railroad at and which was an old tree at that time, fell on $20,000 a mile. The ship kept off at some distance and we had no communication with the shore.

One calm and quiet morning, and in an evil hour, "Balty" threw several peices of mouldy ship biscuit over the sides of the ship under the eye of the Captain, who was watching in the ore rigging unknown to him. point of warning him how he incantiously repeated the act, when a terrific yell burst from overhead, and in a moment our bloated and furious Captain slid upon deck, bellowing loudly; rushing to the bulwarks he seized the end of a elew-line and vigorously belabored the back and head of poor "Balty," who stood up man-fully, looking the Captain directly in the eye without the quiver of a muscle until the pain and anguish became too much for human endurance, when large tears trickled down hi cheeks. When the fury of the Captain had thus partially been vented, he desisted and walked back to the quarter deck, when " Balty" suddenly wheeled and followed him; what his object was I do not know, but a timely order from the Captain sent him to the mizzentop-gallant-cross-trees and to stay there until he received further orders. This was in the morning before breakfast, and those " further orcame not until the shades of twilight

One day, while still in the neighborhood of the Cape Verd Islands, and in a calm, we were all called on deck by the orders of the mate for the purpose of taking some black fish, a scoal of which were then frisking, puffing and blowing about a mile from where we lay becalmed. It fortunately proved to be my mast-head and I had a bird's eye view of the whole scene. The black fish is of the whale species, measuring from ten to twenty feet in length, and makes from one to three barrels of oil : it is not however as much for the oil that they are pur sued and taken, as it is for the purpose of drilling and initiating the men for the perilous combats with the whale, and the laborious and systematic process of "cutting in," "trying-out," (boiling.) and "storing away" the oil.

All around the stern of the ship and on our larboard bow, the ocean was a blowing mass of water, presenting the appearance of boiling water, occasioned by the breathing of these fish, who were congregated in innumerable numbers. The second mate's boat happening to be lowered first was soon among them and taking in oars used as paddles similar to those whom are brothers. There is a secret in the used by the N. A. A very singular incident, says the Albany Kniekerbocker, occurred to a friend of ours, on Wednesday. He has been in the habit of on Wednesday. He has occal in the vest pocket with his bank bills. While runninging his vest pocket for some money, the matches ignited and set fire to a roll of bills, and before he discovered it his money was destroyed, and his vest badly burned.

Once upon a time it took thirteen years work for a man to purchase a Bible. In 1272, the wages of a laboring man were less than four cents per day, while the price of a Bible at the same period was $180. A common laborer in those days must toil on industriously for thirteen long years if he would possess a copy of the word of God! Now, the earnings of half a day would pay the cost of a beautifully printed copy of the sacred oracles.
