[From the Chicago Times, Nov. 7th.] A Family Living under the Pavement. On our way to dinner yesterday, we found collected near the corner of Randolph and Dearborn streets, a large crowd of persons, whose excited gestures and cager language betokened a scene of unusual excitement. On hastening to the spot, which our readers will recognize as the recent site of Doan's fruit store, now removed, and where workmen are engaged in making excavations for the foundation of a new and splendid block of buildings, the cause of the excitement became at once evident.

The workmen, in the progress of their work, had removed some dozen of the planks of the sidewalk, and in so doing, removed the roof of what proved to be a subterranean apartment. The sight thus suddenly presented to the view of the spectators would have moved a heart of stone. Three infants, who could not have been more than a few weeks old, were lying, without a particle of clothing, upon a rude bed, which was found to be made of dried husks of corn. There was not another single article of furniture in the apartment, and the roof being now removed, its helpless inmates were exposed to the cold November wind, and made the air resound with their plaintive cries.

Where were the unnatural parents? No one could answer this question, and we pass on to from the building being saved. dinner. The infants were retained, we understood, by one of the workmen.

Indian Relics .- The Bucks County Intelligencer says that a number of Indian relics have been lately presented to the library at Hatborough by S. & M. Humor, Wm. J. Buck, and John Christopher, for the reception of which the directors have properly prepared two cases. Said collection comprises two iron tomahawks. six stone axes, two pestles, two stone mortars, one hundred and forty two arrow heads, from I to 51 inches in length, besides various other stone implements and ornaments, chiefly found in that town by the aforesaid gentlemen, within the last few years. This is only intended as the foundation of what in the course of time may lead to an extensive collection of curiosities, and add much to the interest of the institution. Several others have likewise promised to add to the collection.

MUNITY IN THE BUCKS COUNTY PRISON-A Terrible Disaster at Sea-Over One Hundred Lives Lost.

The iron screw steamship Le Lyonnais, left New York for Havre, on the 1st of November pily frustrated. It appears by the Doylestown with thirty-nine cabin passengers, who, together with steerage passengers, officers and crew, were a total of about one hundred and fifty souls.

On the night of Sunday the 2d inst., while in a dense fog, Nantucket light-ship bearing N. N. W., and distant 60 miles, the ship was run into by an unknown vessel. The Le Lyonnais remained with her after part full of water and held together only by strips of cloth wrapped her bow high out of the water. All hands around them. Upon making this discovery, he staid by the wreck until the next day, when it left the dining room where they all were, for was abandoned. The ship was provided with the purpose of procuring a blacksmith to re- six boats, only one of which was a life boat .-

On the morning of Monday, after it was reall taken off their hopples, placed them in the solved to abandon the wreck, a raft was concentre of the room, and solemnly pledged them- structed, and about forty persons, including the passengers, (probably the steerage passengers) took refuge upon it.
