Mrs. Brown, however, I learn, rather repelled all attaint on his part to Arreas surprish with attempt on his part to express sympathy with her under her afflictions. She resented the deserve death, or to to attaint his name with dishonor by the ignominious punishment that was about to be inflicted upon him. She regarded him as a martyr in a righteous cause, and was proud to be the wife of such a man; that the gallows had no terrors to her or to him. She stated that she had not seeu him last June, about six months ago, and that they had been separated, except for a few days, for nearly two years. They had, how-ever, corresponded, and she always felt a deep interest in the cause in which he was engaged.

The character of the interview between them may be judged to some extent from this conversation with Capt. Moore, previous to the interview. I learn from Captain Avis, the jailer, that the interview between the prisoner and his wife was characteristic of the man, and the directions given for the managetament. Gen. Taliaferro was also present, > HORRIBLE DEATH ON THE READING RAIL-ROAD .- Last Saturday morning, Coroner Snyder, of Montgomery county, was called to hold an inquest on the remains of a man, found on the track of the Breding Railroad, about two miles above Bridgeport station, opposite Norristown. The same morning, at about 7 o'clock, a person walking up the railroad discovered fragments of a human body strewed along the track for more than half a mile, and on arriving at Abram's dam, over which the road passes, the greater part of the body of a man was found head was discovered lying by the track, near the bridge. Upon the Coroner's arrival, he was unable to identify the remains, and indeed the body had been so shockingly muti-lated, that it was with difficulty the several parts were gathered together. The budy is represented as that of a very large man, with a light red moustache and beard, and genteelly dressed. The supposition is that he was run of his appointment at his office in the Borough of over by a coal train on Friday night. The Coroner immediately telegraphed to Reading for information, but received none. An information, but received none. An information, but received none.
