NELIGH & BREINIG'S ONE PRICE

CLOTHING HOUSE

LION HALL.

NELIGH & BREINIG, feeling it an imperative duty to accommodate the public, found it necessary to procure a more commodious place of business, and accordingly erected a

PALATIAL CLOTHING HOUSE,

on the corner of Church Alley and Hamilton street, opposite Moser's Drug Store, of which they have just taken possession, being the largest, most commodious, and best arranged building for the business in Allentown.

The proprietors of this New and Magnificent Clothing Establishment, take pleasure in further announcing that they have also increased their tremendous Winter Stock of and are daily adding thereto all kinds of articles appertaining to Men and Boy's wear which will be sold at extraordinary low rates, as they go upon the principle that a "nimble sixpence is better than a slow shilling." They have notrash of years on their shelves, which they try to palm off for new sound, goods, but on the contrary, are superior in quality, make and style, to any establishment in the place.—Give them a trial and you will find the PALATIAL CLOTHING HOUSE is the place for everybody.—Their whiter purchases comprise entirely new and desirable styles, such as can not be found at any other Merchant Tailoring establishment in Allentown.—Their goods were selected with the greatest care, and will be made up in the latest style and fashion, and warranted to prove the same as represented at the time of purchase. Observe, that every article of Clothing sold by the proprietors of this establishment is of their own make, and may be relied upon as being good, durable work. Among their extensive assortment may be found, fine Black and Blue new style Dress and Frock Coats, made in the latest fashion of French and English Cloths, new style Business Coats, of Black, Blue, Olive and Green Cloths, and plain and figured Cassimeres; Over Coats, of all qualities, styles and prices, pantaloons, vests, and in fact everything in the READY MADE CLOTHING LINE, from an overcoat down to an undershirt.

The four great features of Neligh & Breinig's Store are, that they buy for Cash, and consequently can sell cheaper than any of the others; their goods are made up under their own supervision, and they sell them for what they really are, and last though not least they sell their goods for Cash.

Having adopted the CASH system, they are not compelled to provide against losses by increased prices. Buyers who pay cash are not required to make up the losses, of such as will not pay.

Also, a large stock of Handkerchiefs, Shirts, Collars, Winter Hosiery, Under Shirts and Drawers of all kinds, and everything in fact that is usually kept in stores of the kind. Call and see before you purchase elsewhere, as they willingly show what they have.—They are satisfied that all their goods will bear a close examination.

We Have a Larger Stock

THAN ANY OTHER

CLOTHING STORE

IN ALLENTOWN.

Breinig & Colver

NO. 11, East Hamilton street, have just received from Philadelphia a very heavy stock of

of most favorable styles, from all of which they will make to order, and also keep on hand a large supply of

READY MADE CLOTHING.

at such astonishing low prices, that cannot be equalled in any establishment in this or any other town in Eastern Pennsylvania. Our Stock is twice as large, and we sell double the amount of the two best establishments in town, consequently enabling us to sell at a very small profit. They have on hand every styles of Garments adapted to the season, to which the attention of the public is invited to a careful examination of quality, workmanship, style of trimmings and cut, which the proprietors will guarantee to be superior to that of any House in the trade. They constantly keep on hand a well selected stock of Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods, consisting of Shirts, Collars, Stocks, Cravats, Handkerchiefs, Hose, Suspenders, &c., besides many articles coming in their line of business, all of which are sold at the lowest prices.

CUSTOMER WORK.

Orders for customer work will always be received with pleasure, and attended to with punctuality, and as two of the firm are practical tailors, none but the best workmanship will be suffered to pass their hands.

☞ They also particularly invite Country Merchants to give them a call, as they offer extraordinary bargains at wholesale.

"A TRUTH."

IT is nothing to gain popularity, but it is rarely that men retain it. Like money, come easy, go easy, popularity is a tender affair, and requires careful nursing to keep it alive.

Especially is this observable in mercantile affairs If the reputation, which is but another name for popularity, be won by actual merit, it is lasting.

THE LOST BRACELET.

It was the day before Christmas, and, into the afternoon active, beautiful and richly dressed lady was walking up Broadway, with her arms laden with brown paper parcels. Hundreds of people were hurrying along, jostling each other as they passed up and down the crowded thoroughfare, but no bright, happy face was like a ray of sunlight in the gathering darkness of the winter afternoon, until the owner of the clothing store that had been following her modest instance took courage from its sweet expression, and put up its modest plea for just one penny. It was a low pleading voice, scarcely audible in the noise and bustle around, yet the lady heard it, for she turned and looked an instant at the little creature before her. Her scanty garments were a poor protection from the frosty air, and the loveless hand and pale face looked blue, and pinched with the cold. Her miserable hood had fallen on her shoulders, and the pain of eloquent eyes looked up into their lady's face, while, with her stumpy broom, she crept across the crossing.

"Never mind," said she to herself as I can walk home—this poor little thing needs this more than I do;" and she dropped in to open palm before her the only sixpence left.—There, child, a merry Christmas to you," she said, in a sweet, sympathising voice, which made the tears come into the dark eyes of the little girl, as she tried to think her.

It was a long walk that the lady had before her, and the omnibus rattled along with a provoking empty seat or two inside, but her heart was light and happy with the little sacrifice which she had made, and just as the jets of gas began to blaze out of the windows she reached her home. She had been married only a short time, and as she looked around her pretty room which her husband had furnished for her in their bonnying house, she felt more than ever grateful that God had given her such a happy home. She had not removed her hat and cloak, when she heard her husband's step in the hall, and with a smile and a kiss she met him at the door.

"Why Kate, how tired you look, have you done a great deal of walking to-day?"

Kate blushed and smiled, but deception was not a part of her nature, and she replied:

"Yes, Henry, I walked all the way home."

"You should not have done that," said he a little reproachfully, and then he laughed as he continued, "Did you spend all you money, so that you couldn't afford a sixpence to ride home with?"

"Well, I suppose I must tell," said Kate, with another blush. "I did have just one sixpence left, and was going to ride up, when such a poor little girl—"

"Yes, that's it, I know what's coming—Why, Kate, you make the very mischief among the poor people and my pennies, they are the most ungrateful set in the world."

"But," said Kate, earnestly, "she was such a delicate, half-clothed, and, I am afraid, half starved little street sweeper."

"Street sweeper," and her husband held up his hands in mock horror; "why, Kate, they pick up handfulls of money in a day, and did you walk home, and give one a whole sixpence? Oh, oh, what won't your little heart do next?"

Kate bore this quizzing very well, and was about to reply when, on passing her hand up her arm, she exclaimed, suddenly: "Oh! Henry, my bracelet is gone—your gift, last Christmas—what shall I do?—Where can I have lost it?"

"That is too bad," said he, thoughtfully, but the next moment he continued, shrugging up his shoulders, mischievously: "May be some honest person has picked it up."—Seeing the tears come into his wife's eyes at this speech, he put his arm around her and kissed her, with "Never mind, though, I can replace it some time."

Her husband, who really loved his little wife tenderly, took her hand and put something in it, closing the tender finger tightly over it, saying: "Don't distress yourself any more about bracelets and street sweepers; here's your Christmas gift, and the next time you go down town, get a pretty set of furs with it." Kate's hand closed over a hundred dollar bill.

The day after Christmas she was again in Broadway, and, as she was passing by the identical spot where she had given away the sixpence, she felt her dress pulled gently, and, turning around, she encountered the same little, half clad girl.

"I'm so glad that you've come, ma'am," said the child; "you dropped this the other day, and I've been saving it for you ever since;" and, pulling something out of her bosom, she put it into the lady's hand. Hastily unrolling the bit of newspaper, Kate Alair saw her bracelet. What a triumph for herself and for Henry. "Thank you, thank you, my child," she exclaimed, taking the little bare hand in hers.

"I tried to find you that day," said the little child, "but you went out of sight so soon that I couldn't," and with a bright face, she continued, "I want to thank, and my mother wants to thank you, too, for I didn't get a penny all that day until I saw you, and that sixpence bought the medicine which is going to make her well."

Kate's eyes glistened as she heard this, and thought of the temptation to ride home that God had helped her to resist. "Take me with you to your mother," she said, still holding the girl's hand; such honesty and thankfulness shall not go unrewarded.

It was a pretty long walk, away over near the North River, but they finally reached the tenement house, in the basement of which the little girl lived. A pale, sickly woman was lying on a bed in the single room which they occupied, but she looked up eagerly as she heard the child's voice say, "Here mother, the beautiful lady is come herself." Kate sat down by the bed-side, and lent her ear to a tale of want and privation of which she had never dreamed, and leaving a little pocket-money she had with her, she promised to see her again; then she left the house.

Mr. Alair was pouring over his books when Kate rushed in with bright eyes and glowing cheeks, and holding up the bundle before his eyes, she exclaimed: "See, Henry, there's what came of giving away a sixpence to the street sweeper."

Her husband looked up, and surprised at seeing her, and then beamed the brace of gems found and he listened while she told how her interview with the child and her mother. And now, Henry, I am going to do the thing I really do not need so nice a set of furs as you have given me the money for, and I want to take some of it and buy fuel and lights and provisions for those poor people; they had neither candles and nothing but a little cold cabbage for their dinner. Henry shook his head, but it was not a very negative shake. "Nobody ever resists you, Kate," said he, smiling, "and you may do as you please with the money." Kate thanked him with her moistened eyes more than by her voice, and as the door closed after her Henry said to himself, "There goes an angel, and if ever that text, 'He that giveth to the poor shall not lack,' was meant for anybody, it was for her."

The little girl's mother did not get well again; but before she died, Kate told her about Jesus, and won her to love and trust Him, soothing her last moments with comforting, cheering words. Even little Jane
