Fill the cavities with earth, and plant two or three tomatoe seeds in when the seeds have well sprouted, pull each up all but the healthiest plant in each turnip I let those that remain stand where they will have the benefit of the sun; the plant will grow very thriftly—the decaying turnips fur-nishing its food. When the weather becomes sufficiently warm, set the turnips in a well prepared soil, not less than three feet apart, make lath frames to keep the vines from the ground, and keep the soil well hilled up around them and you will have a crop that will astonish the natives. The advantage consists in geting the plants started early without setting there as an experiment merely. them back by transplanting.
