An Hour at the Old Play Ground.

When we were boys in the olden time. When manhood was a dream. The brook is choked with fallen leaves

The pond is dried away-

The school-house is no more, John, Beneath our locust trees; The wild rose by the window side, No more waves in the breeze;

I scarce believe that you would know The dear old place to day.

The scattered stones look desolate The sod they rested on Has been ploughed up by stranger hands. Since you and I were gone.

The chestnut tree is dead, John And what is sadder now-The broken grape-vine of our swing Hangs on the withered bough : I read our names upon the bark, And found the pebbles rare Laid up beneath the hollow side,

As we had piled them there. Beneath the grass-grown bank, John, I looked for our old spring, That bubbled down the alder path, Three paces from the swing ;

The rushes grow upon the brink. The pool is black and bare, And not a foot, this many a day, It seems, has trodden there. I took the old blind road, John, That wandered up the hill;

'Tis darker than it used to be And seems so lone and still! The birds sing yet among the bought, Where once the sweet grapes hung, But not a voice of humad kind Where all our voices rung.

I sat me on the fence, John, That lies as in old time, The same half pannel in the path We used so oft to climb-And thought how o'er the bars of life Our playmates had passed on, And left me counting on this spot The faces that are gone.
