FACTS vs. THEORIES.

"Give me a place to rest my lever on," says. Archimedes, "and I will move the world."---"Give me pure and unadulterated drugs." says Medicus, of the olden time, "and I will oure disease."

In one sense, both of these learned pundits were the veriest charlatans. They knew there was no place to rest their lever on, either to move the world or to cure disease. Mechanism was in a backward state, and the medical profession was but another name for sorvery and all the adjuncts of magic filters and charms of the "evil ofe," &c. But these latter days, have borne unto us something more than even superstition and its crew ever dreamt of in their madest philosophy. In these days of practical science, what was theory of yesterday is fact to day, and all the old-time notions become as bubbles

Let Archimedes shoulder his lever and we will find a resting place for it to move the world. Let mine ancient Medicus pant and toil for the drugs he so sorely needs, for we have them at our hand, ever ready to serve them at his beck.

There is no doubt but that these vetoce of the President have originated not so much by his desire to confine legislation within the limits of the Constitution, as of his hatred of Sumnor, Stevens and others, whom he is trying to injuro in the estimation of the people.

The Sepate of the United States have adopted a rule which requires that every Senator elected must have a majority of the joint legislatures of the State from which he comes-that a plurality of the votes will not do-and have applied this rule to the case of Schator Stockton, of New Jersey. The old man goes home undoubtedly J. M. Scovel, of New Jersey, as follows : feeling very indignant against those who required him to shape his course according to the Constitution." This is undoubtedly the true rule, and will work well for al time to come, and can, and doubtless will be applied to all men of all political parties. It is not, and cannot be, a political measure ; but a declaration of the true principle which underlies the very founda tion of our form of govornment, and is execcdingly Democratio. It is, that the majerity only shall rule, and the minority must submit. That was the great Demoeratio doctrine, when they were in the majority; but as foon as they, by their evil deeds, sunk into the minority, they attempted to change that principle, and declared that it was the duty of the minority, to evercome and drive out the majority by force of arms, in which they have also failed. Now they can " blow" because their old rrinciples are being applied to the workings of the government by the majority, which they are not of.

THE APPROACH OF SPRING .--- Those lovely harbingers of spring-the blue birds -are again with us, making the air musical with their melodies. The past week weexperienced some warm and spring-like days, forcibly reminding us of the nearness of spring. The fields which were so long clad spring. in their mantle of snow are once more free and will soon put on their livery of green.-The brooks are released from their joy fette and again go leaping and dashing forth more beautiful/than ever. Indeed, cast your eyes where you will, and you can behold all nature inspired with new life. Yonder are the lovely hills, while at their feet lie the beautiful mea dows, among whose life-inspired grass are heard the fairy-like habblings of the brook. Truly, spring inspires one's heart with new life and vigor.

The exhibition itself was a grand successpecuniarily it was a great rick-it involved an expense of some seven, hundred dollars for the Academy, music, fare, boarding at a first plass hotel, &c. When arrangements were made for the Academy, the sale of tickets to defray the expenses, was a venture that had to be assumed by the Principal of the Institute. It paid expenses; every desirable seat in parquette, parquette circle and balcony, was sold before the evening of the performance. As an exhibition of the school in its discipline, exemplary deportment of cadets and military drill, it was successful. The various military movements, drills and representations, were re-peived with unusual applause. The entire bearing of officers and cadets upon the stage, was gentlemanly and soldierlike, and their department at the Continental hitel, such as to receive complimentary approbation from the proprietor. The excursion was not pro-jected and carried through without care and anxiety on the part of those bearing the responsibilities, but it was managed suo cessfully and satisfactorily as a grand treat for the pu-pils and a good advertisement of the school, thus proved its claim to a front which has
