DECORATING SOLDIERS' GRAVES.

The beautiful and patriotic ceremony of decorating soldiers' graves will be performed this year on the 30th of May. Last year the day was observed in every part of our country and crowds of citizens flocked to the grave yards and cemeteries where reposed the mortal remains of our dead heroes, and comrades of soldiers never to be forgotten sprinkled flowers on their graves and honored the memory of Columbia's noblest sons. What preparations have thus far been made in Allentown for the next celebration we are not informed, but presume the occasion will be made one for paying tribute to those men from Lehigh who gave their lives that the country might

This practice was first inaugurated in this country in the South, where the people from the teachings of their surroundings are more given to such things than we of the North. But thier introduction of the old custom into this country is no reason why the loyal North should not enter into it with a will and a heart. It lays aside for a moment this continual thought of money, this selfish rush for wealth, and allows us to think of the debt, the everlasting debt, which rests upon this country and which no time can repay. We don't mean the debt of so many millions of dollars, but the debt of deep gratitude we owe to those brave men and youths who left the happy firesides of quiet, peaceful homes, the embrace of a cherished wife, or a loving mother's caresses, and threw themselves in the front ranks of their country. We can each of us remember some one incident where the parting cost a broken heart, and the feigned smile which has lit up the face of a brave man, feigned to cheer the sad hearts of those he left behind. We can remember the bitter tears shed after he was gone and the gloom which overshadowed the household. Oh, these partings which filled our to America next May. armies have cost much, much more than the drain on the purse which filled our National coffers, and when the god of battles has claimed these braves for his victims their dying thoughts have flown homeward and bitter and unceasing have been the weepings in those deserted homes which have poured out their most cherished blood on the altar of our coun- basis. try. Then when the people are sustaining their honor by paying in gold the debt that was so contracted, let them endeavor to pay at | trenclied." least the interest on this debt of blood and suffering by dropping upon the graves of the departed tears which are more precious than gold and flowers pure as the patriotism that inspired our heroes.

When our new President went into the chair it was thought by some wishy-washy Republicans and hoped by jealous Democrat that he would altogether discard the politicians-a class more sinned against than sinning. But time which developes all things has proven that the men who did the most with fat and lean offices, according to their political weight:

And it is right. We know the word politician is applied, often, to political tricksters, but in the true sense of the word no man is fit o vote to whom the term cannot be fittingly applied. Every voter who labors for the success of the party is a politician, from the man who travels day and night, and makes speeches in all kinds of weather, down to the man who stands by the window on the day of election and marks down the voters as they deposit their ballots, and it is not only an old custom these men aspire to office, if their qualifications and honesty warrant, they should receive the appointment. Suppose the discarding of this class had commenced before the election, the administration at Washington to-day would be in the hands of other men and the whole country would be insulted by rebel dictation and rebel rule. And then, again, it would be utterly impossible to find any considerable number of persons to fill the offices, outside the pale of either party, who have the right to vote and yet take was Van Buren, the second, William L. Marcy, no part in elections. And if they could be found we doubt the ability of the administration to make itself successful with such material to carry out its designs, for such men must be very weak in brain or have little strength of character.

The setting aside of Republican politicians men who never labored or spent a cent in the cause would not only have disheartened the office-seekers but would have shoved from active duty that very large class who work hard and contribute liberally for the success of the damages to property. the party and whose position renders seeking of favors unnecessary to their support. With of age of her son, recently, by furnishing Mr these men merely going to the polls along Brace, of the Children's Ald Society, with the of favors unnecessary to their support. With with other voters to cast their ballots, no men at the windows to prevent illegal voting, no one to run after direlict voters and bring them to their duty, the triumph of the Democracy would be easy and the administration which, with a loval Congress to back it, promises such beneficial results to the country, would in a v years find itself opposed in the reforms it is instituting, by a hostile and unscrupulous Congress enacting laws which would bring the Executive Department into disrepute, and would ultimately again put the country under
