Desmond's Excursion .- The excursion to Wilkesbarre last Thursday, gotten up by Conductor Desmond, of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, was a complete success. The train numbered ten cars and it is estimated at least five hundred persons were aboard. The best of order prevailed with her horns and tossed it up into the air. The and all expressed themselves well pleased with the trin. Mr. Desmond had provided ice cream and cakes for the excursionists which was served while the train was running. One fellow, after finishing his plate, was much exercised about what he should do with his spoon. Some one suggested, "Throw it out the window." The idea seemed a funny one to the fellow, for he did so, but the joke was spolled when he found himself compelled to pay five dollars for the missing spoon. A German and his wife were luxuriating in a bottle of Rhine wine. A good-natured incbriate, espying it, asked for a taste. The German told him it was sour and did not think he would like it. "Well, I'll risk it." replied the jolly good fellow, and he put the bottle to his month, when it seemed he would never let go. Some one wanted him to hold on,-he said he was holding on, he wanted to taste it. The German's face here expressed considerable uncasiness, but the bottle was soon returned-empty. laughter which convulsed the spectator didn't seem to allay the disappointment of the
