THE SECRETS OF THE SEA CHAPTER I.

CHAPTER I. THE PRISONER OP MID-OCEAN. Late one summer alternoon, a dozen year-ago, a solitary white man stood before an idol-atrons temple on an island in the South Pacific. The was of middle age, tall, thin, and gaunt, with arged features and sorrowful eyes, and with every sign of goodness and intelligence. Beside bin was a grim stone idol, in gro-Beside bin wiss a grim stone idol, in gro-tesque human form, more than twice as tall as 'I to is done,'' he muttered. ''And these heathen little suspect that I have cut my name and story into the base of this idol.'' • He ran his eyer rapidly over the inscription in question. It was as follows : '' The sth of May, 1852, I. It was as follows: "The 8th of May, 1852, I, David Lester, of the firm of Lester & Nichols, of Nor-folk, Virghuia, salied as a passenger from Charleston to Hong Kong, vic Cape Hora, in the ship 'Heela." A cyclone struck us in mid-occan, the ship foundered, and we, took to the bearts, which all diled, with the exception of the one I was in. After drifting several days, during which my companions perished, I reached this island. The idolatrous inhabitants made me a slave in their temple, and for more companies to the kiolatrons inhabitants made me a slave in their temple, and for more than four years I have been doing menial offices and carving images. Thave been chained every night, and watched contin-ually by day, but have nevertheless made three attempts at escape, and shall soon make another—doubtless my last, as I am resolved to succeed or die, preferring death to a longer captivity. I therefore write these words upon this kiel, praying any one who may see them to report my fatte, if possible, to my family, at Norfock, Ya. Finished this inscription this 7th day of July, 1857.³

For several minutes the prisoner contem-plated these lines in silence, and then aroused himself, looking warily around. "Three times I have tried to escape in a canoe," he muttered, " and every time I was caught, and visited with tortures. To be caught

He advanced and flung open the state-room Peter Meyer, aged 80 years.

One morning late in the month. Colonel Nichols sat in his office, idly drumming on his desk with his fingers, an expression of satis-faction on his features. He had been persecuting Mrs. Lester with his attentions, which she had didainfully re-pulsed. He had also conceived a vehement desire to avenge himself on ier daughter Amy, who, believing that Ally had been sent off by Colonel Nichols, had been a constant thorn in his side for months. "Well," he muttered, with $ long-drawn breath, "I finished closing up ny affairs yes-terday. What is to be my next nove? I can leave Norfolk at any time. It sight not be a bad idea to take Mrs. Lester and Amy to my Cape Henry-house. People regim to hook coldly on me here, and they look on Mrs. Lester as an injured saint !" He frowned darkly, as if unpleaant memo-ries were recurring to him. At this moment there sounded heavy, un-even tread in the outer offler. The clerks had all been discharged within the month, and Any bent forward and howed in: With a quick thrust, Hiley pushed him into the little room and hurricdly locked the door.
