THE BARE-FOOTED FISHER

GIRL.

While our steamer Norman lay woodlag up at Port Oneida, on the Michigan shore, there came aboard a pleasant, bare-footed German girl, with a pail of berries. She wore a cheap calleo dress, minus the boops, with a little gingham shuker, nearly hiding her face. gingham shuker, nearly hiding her face. Sho was rather undersize, with a supple figure and an air of modest assurance that denoted a girl of genuine stamp, but that told the boys to keep out of her way. All the men ubout the boat and dock seemed to know her. The steward bought her herries at her own price. The clerk at the office touched bis hat to her boat and dock scemed to know her. The steward bought her herries at her own price. The clerk at the office touched his hat to her as if in the presence of a duchess. "That's the smartest girl in Michigan," said the engineer, as she passed out of the gangway. The girl gave no heed to admiring glances and compliments that followed her, but straight, way sought her little fish cabin, where she was mending nets, by the shore.

On inquiry of the old dockman, we learned that our little barefooted maiden, though only a seventeen, was the oblest of a family of an even dozen, living in a little double log cabin on the bigh bank above the shore. Her father came here from Buffalo some dozen years ago, went to clearing timber, selling wood to the steamboats, and raising stuff on his land. I from the start, and showed pluck beyond her years. In winter she would get on her boats and be out among the nets and fabing-boats. It was her greatest delight to get on the water here in the issue of the source of a bury of a berrying.
