(CARRIE MONTGOMERY, 1870.)

Which I wish to remark—
And my language is plain—
For I'm a simple soul,
And for tricks that are vain,
The heathen Chino are peculiar,
Which the world would not explain.

Just as I was about to lay aside my pen, another instance of the mental blindness of husbands in general has been brought to my knowledge.

OUTRAGES AT BED RIVER.

The Red River correspondent of the St. Paul Daily Press sends that paper an account of what appears to have been the wanton murder of the Canadian and its partners of Schultz at Winnipeg, of Idaho Goulet. It seems he was pointed out as a sympathizer with the rebels, and was assaulted with stones, and his blood-thirsty assassins were satisfied until their victims had sunk. The name of the correspondent is not given, but it is believed to be that of the editor of the New Nation, by Dr. Schultz, and the attempt to murder a Catholic priest by Orange-men. These highland outrages were but the initial proceedings of a reign of terror inaugurated by the Canadian and its partners, having for its purpose the extermination of the horridly persecuted French Canadian population of the New Nation, by Dr. Schultz, and the attempt to murder a Catholic priest by Orange-men. THE GRAVEL.

The gravel disease, from neglect or improper treatment of the kidneys, is one of the most common and most distressing of the diseases of the human system. It is characterized by a pain in the back, which is often described as a dull, aching pain, and is accompanied by a sense of heat and burning in the urine.

TWO MEN AND A DOG CROSS THE ATLANTIC.

A little vessel not more than twenty feet in length and six feet broad, arrived in Boston on Thursday morning, after the long voyage of ninety days. Impelled by large wages and ambitious to achieve the dangerous purpose of crossing from Liverpool to New York in an open boat, with scanty provisions, no room for exercise, and in the face of severe winds, two men, taking with them a dog, set sail across the broad Atlantic. That there was little excitement, and even little known to the crew, is a fact which is not to be wondered at. The vessel was a simple one, and the crew consisted of two men and a dog.

AT THE SEASIDE.

By LOTTIE BROWN.

We had been two months, two scorching, grass-drying, corn-burning months. July and August, in the seaside, where a long level of white sand and sun-blasted rocks, with piles of moss and long strips of stony seaweed, a big unsmooth bluff, with a ragged front here and there harboring a clump of scrubby furze, a line of wooden cottages, and a few houses, some of which were painted in various colors, were the only objects which our eyes had rested.

OUTRAGES AT BED RIVER.

The American Vice Consul at Winnipeg, Mr. Robinson, therefore, took prompt measures to recover the body of the murdered man, and to have a decent interment, and sent his property to the United States. In doing this he incurred the wrathful indignation of the Schultz party and the Canadian volunteers, who have threatened to shoot, hang, and otherwise maltreat the Vice-Consul. So thorough is the reign of terror which has been established by the Schultz party, backed by the Canadian volunteers, that no witness dare testify to the facts in the case of the murder of Goulet. But the proceedings which caused his death and the wounds he received were seen by witnesses who can tell on American soil what it would cost them their lives to do at Winnipeg, and who are now in the hands of the Canadian volunteers, and who are now in the hands of the Canadian volunteers, and who are now in the hands of the Canadian volunteers.
