Doar Sip—I have been a sufferer, for upward of twenty years, with gravel, binder and kidney infections, during which time I have used various medicines, during which time I have used various medicines, during which time I have used various medicines of the most entiment. Physicians, experiencing but little relief.

Having seen your preparations extensively advertised, Leonsulted with my family physician in regard to using your Extract linchu.

I did this because I had used all kinds of advertised remedies, and had found them worthless, and some quite injurious; in fact, I despuired of ever getting well, and determined to use no remedies hereafter unit prompted me to use your remedies not only and my family physician as an examination of the article, and consulting again with the druggist, I concluded to try it. I commenced its use about eight months ago, at which fine I was conflued to my room. From the first bottle I was assonished and graftled at the beneficial effect, and after using it for three weeks, was able to walk out. I telt much like writing you a full statement of my case at that time, but though it my improvement might only be temporary, and therefore concluded to determine the first of the system, I do not ment to be without it when ever useasion may require its use in such affections.

AMERICA TO GERMANY. BY CHARLES GOETHE BAYLOR All hail! oh Bible land.

By God's decree.
For through the cloud that lowers
Deep 'neath the blood that pours, We see thy cause as ours, Dear Germany. All hail! oh Luther land, nd 'mld the nations stand,

Strong in the truth still stand, Darkness to face. Darkness to face.
Man's right first came through thee
When God's word open, free,
Proclaimed "Liberty" For every race. All hail! on Martyr land, Waiting God's order stand;

With thee the seed was sown;
With us the fruit has grown,
Which yet shall be thine own
From sire to son. Then linking heart and hand,
United we shall stand,
By God's decree.
Though dark the cloud that lowers,
Though red the stream that pours,
Man's cause is thine and ours,
Dear Germany.

AN OLD MAN'S STORY. "Stir up the fire, John, and sit closer." John Dane obeyed, and soon the ruddy blaze sprang up, and lit the pleasant room with a bright and cheerful glow.

"I like this," said Uncle John, drawing his chair nearer the blazing hearth, and sink-JOHN FAREIRA, ing back in its easy depths. "It reminds mo of old times, when all we youngsters gathered around the huge old-fashioned fireplace, and watched the great hickory log, as it crackled and flamed, and we told stories and chatted merrily, while it stormed and blustered without, just as it does to-night. But things are different now," he went on, taking his wellsmoked pipe from his mouth; "you have stoves, furnaces, and steam in these days, but nothing so pleasant or endearing as the cheery fireplace of long ago." It was a bleak, freezing night; the snov whirled and drifted before the driving, shricking wind, but within all was warm and cheer ful, and Uncle John and I had come up stairs to have a quiet smoke, while the sound of merry voices reached us from below. I was FURS. indulging in a fine Havana, and Uncle John was enjoying his pipe. "Cigars and meerschaums for the present age, but for me my old clay pipe," he said, as he replenished it. I arrived home quite late, and went directly to Lucy's. The door was not open, as usual, and I noticed that though the windows were pp, the blinds were closed. I opened the door and entered the hall. There was not a voice or footfall to be heard. The silence oppressed me. I entered the parlor; the perfume of syringa and roses floated in on the sweet, cool air. A dim light was burning, too dim to outshihe the moonbeams, which found the land of the dying man. All of a sudden. Farragut opened his eyes and secause the phosphorus in it does make brains. The robber continued firing, Dear uncle John! It is a year now since and approached him, and holding the pistol close to Halpine's head, fired twice more. One of these balls struck him below the right eye and lodged in the head. The third ball entered the right car and lodged in the head also. Laborers at work under the bridge-at a point known as the "Bull Run Switch" -- assert that they heard the shots at the time indi-came, or at whom or what they were directed. Halpine effectually disabled and apparently dead, the robber took the key of the safe from therein, seized $2,859, leaving behind him a greater sum, and disappeared just as the train reached the Greenbush side of the river. In a few minutes the wounded man seems to have recovered slightly, but not enough to raise his voice. The noise, however, attracted the attention of employes, as the train stood at the lepot, and the unfortunate victim was found saturated in his own blood, which ran in a tream on the floor of the car. His face was dreadfully blackened with powder, and gaping wounds were found in his neck and face. t seems that the robber put the pistol almost at the victim's head, as the powder plainly indicated.

Halpine, on Saturday, was still alive, but no As my business was prosperous, it was decided that we should be married in the coming June. The glad month came at last, with its bright sunny days and beautiful evenings, the happiest I have ever known.
