"Well, 'taint my fault," panted the little culprit; "if the other boys squirm trees, I've got to squirm trees, and if ma's mind to buy uch rotten cloth-" But here his logical reasoning was inter

ed into the room calling out.

" Here's your saleratus, ma; he said he'd to rather expect him to marry her; and as she take his pay in eggs; and here's a letter for Aunt Cynthy that come Saturday night."

"For me!" said Aunt Cynthia, scrutinizing it on all sides. "From brother David, too. What can have happened ? Let see: "'DEAR SISTER, —I don't like to cut your visit short at Clymena's, but wish you would come back to our house as soon as you get this. I will go over to Dexter to meel you Tuesday night. In heate.

"'Your brother, DAVID ROOT. "Mercy sakes alive!" exclaimed Aunt Cynthia, "what can be the matter? More'n as likely as not them children are all down with the measles. I heard they was in the next own but one 'fore I come away; or mebby one of the boys have fell and hurt 'em. I've always said it wouldn't do 'em no good to be clambering round with Sam Smith's boys so much; or p'r'aps David's wife is down with erysipelas again. But there! while I'm talking the time is going, and this is Tuesday; and, if I'm going, it's time somebody's stir-ring round and doing something. Here's You can draw these pants right on now. I guess they'l last long enough to take you to the next tree. Now how is't about the horse? Who's going to carry me down to Jenksville to take the stage?"

"Dear me," said Clymena, as she put down her flat-iron; "it don't seem as though you'd made your visit more'n half out. I'd calculated on your being here a good long spell." And she sighed as she thought of the huge pile of unmended garments that had been accumulating in anticipation of Aunt Cynthia's visit. "David," she coutinued, "you'd better go down into the lot and speak to your father. I b'lieve he's plowing with the horse. I'd been a thinking all along that I'd have the sewgin society here after you come; and I reckoned you'd make some of your 'lection cake for it," she said, as she followed Aunt

Cynthia into her bedroom. "Well, you know that I should have been glad enough to have done it, and it would have given me a chance to have worn my new black alpaca that I made up on purpose to bring here," said Aunt Cynthia, as she folded and packed her things with a rapidity and precision that would astonish some of our more fashionable tourists.

"Now I think on't I don't care if you put up two or three pieces of that gingerbread I made yesterday. I may want a bite or two of something before I get to Dexter," she continued, to Clymena, who was taking up things and putting them down again in a flustered, inefficient gort of way. Just then the proprietor of this little side hill farm came across the back stoop in shirt sleeves, and leaned in the doorway. " Well, what's the trouble all of a sudden?" he asked.

what brother David writes," replied Aunt Cynthia. "There's no telling whether they are dead or alive by this time, and I want to go down to Jenksville in time to ketch the stage, if you can get me there."

"Wa'al, if you're bent on going, I guess we shall have to manage it somehow," replied Mr. Rice. "I notice that when you say the word, things generally have to ges. I s'pose gone." So the plow was left in the furrow, and Dolly hitched into the long blue wagon and brought to the door. Mr. Rice lifted in the leathern trunk. Aunt Cynthia climbed up over the wheel and took her place upon the board which served as a scat, and David. her charioteer, took the reins and scated himself heside her. Clymena, clinging to a last hope. Aunt Cynthis opened her mouth to reply, but just then the lilac branch cut for this occasion, and the long-suffering beast sprang forward with a bound that sent her harness flying in a heap.

and shut Aunt Cynthia's mouth with a snap. rosy daughter, entered, with a tray of fra-"Now, David, what in the world did you want to start up like that for ?" said she, as they jolted down the road. "It give me such a jerk that it liked to have keeled me right over into the back of the wagon, and my back feels as though it was 'most snapped in two. S'pos'n this board had flew up, where'd you think we should have gone to? You should be more careful." "Weil, aunt, you said you wanted to be sure 'nd git there, and you can't git there unless we git started some time or other. The old mare'd never think of budging unless some one hit her a cut, and a snail would run by her on the road if you didn't keep pricking on her up all the time; so what are you going to do !" And he gave her a second but lighter touch with the whip.

Thanks to frequent "prickings up," they made out to get there in time : went clattering down the long Jenksville hill just as the green paper curtain. mbering old yellow stage was leaving the post-office. A lusty shout from David brought the driver down from his box, and suaded to move. Aunt Cynthia was hustled inside, and her trunk strapped on behind, in less than no time, was fixed up fine in his broadcloth, and a while David, concluding that it would do Dolly good to rest a few moments, sauntered | send up for me!" leisurely down the street with his hands in town loafers, who were discussing upon this the platform she saw brother David's broad, how, I hope Deborah Green will break every goodnatured face beaming upon her.

he exclaimed, coming forward. "Who's sick ?" was her brief response.

"How d'ye do, Cynthia! how d'ye do ?"

for me for ?" "Oh, never mind about that now, Cynthia. Just wait till we get out of this crowd. I'll to keep house for a Turk." tell you all about it before we get home," and he turned to join in the chat of a knot of neighboring farmers, leaving his sister to idgit away the time as best she might.

At last, however, they were jogging along

"Yes; but you know she died nigh upon a year ago, and I guess things have been going pretty rough up to his place ever since. He's been paying high for housekeepers; but she returned. "Seems to me, Sammy," she said, looking | land ! the wages are nothing, he says, to what up at the white-headed youngster who sat in they waste, and he's about made up his mind a low chair in the corner, with a woeful and that he can't and won't stand it any longer. abused expression of countenance, and one I've noticed that he's been sorter hanging of his mother's calico aprons tied around his round me for the last week or two, and inwaist-"seems to me you might get along quiring if you was at home, and when you with your blessing." was expected, and so on. But finally, I b'lieve 'twas Friday night, he got desperate and spoke out, said he'd always know what a Aunt Cynthia, resignedly, smoothing her hair mazing manager you were, and knew if you were up to his place things would take a very different turn right straight off. Scems he'd thought of you after his first wife died; but rupted by his older brother David, who bolt! Abigail she'd been in his family a good deal, and staid there after his wife died, and seemed

"Why, yes. You see he seemed to be so neasy and unsettled about it that I promised to write and have you come back. He said he'd be down to our house to-night, and offered to meet you at the depot, but I told him I guessed I'd better see you first and explain matters a little."

"Well, this is a little too much," said poor overtaxed Aunt Cynthia, turning fiercely upon him. "I wish to land there was a train going back to Flagton to-night, and my name isn't Cynthy Root if I wouldn't be the first one to set foot on to it. I've more'n half a mind to get right out of the wagon now, and spend the night at some of the neighbors' only I know 'twould make no end of talk, and I should hate to be mixed up in such a fuss.
