THE writer of a paper in the September Ga!axy, on agriculture and agricultural labor in the South—himself evidently a Southern plantor-while his general view of the subject is perhaps somewhat too sombre, gives a number of statements respecting the industrial, mental and moral habits of the negroes, which are in the main decidedly encouraging. As a general thing the freedmen are said to be obedient and writer states that if they were left undisturbed by political tricksters of both parties, they would gradually settle down into a body of laborers better than any on earth. The necessity of adopting a general plan of hiring, of agreeing upon some well understood rate of wages, and some method of putting a stop to the custom, now so common, of enticing another man's laborers from him by offering higher wages, is urged with considerable emphasis, as is also the importance of laws entirely abolishing night traffic in rural districts, a practice which is said to open the door to more drunkenness and petty thieving than all other causes combined. Large planters must, it is said, give way to a greater number of smaller ones, and large landowners must divide up their lands and rent them to permanent tenants, and the writer adds that the South can never really prosper as long as the present insane n prevails of neglecting to raise corn, hogs and small grain, in order that a great deal of cotton may be planted, while the im portance of using home made composts instead of manufactured fertilizers, is forcibly dwelt upon. As a Southern presentation of the labor problem in the reconstructed States the paper as much importance as the establishment of is instructive and interesting.

THE Keystone Good Templar comes down on the Allentown Democrat in the following style :- "The organ of the Democracy in Lehigh county is a persistent advocate of the rum traffic. The editor seems to be constantly on the alert for an opportunity to cast a dur on those who are laboring to check the tide of intemperance. Occasionally he is an explosion or caving of the roof. The eviconsistent. The motto of the Democrat is : 'One country, one constitution, one destiny.' We were strongly impressed with the force of the last clause after reading, in a recent number, the editor's glowing account of the new county jail and almshouse, in which he owner of the mine, and Inspector Blewitt, are congratulated the people of Lehigh upon the extensive accommodations and excellent management of those institutions. This is good news for all who practice the rum drinking principles of the Democrat, and an assurance that when they meet the 'One Destiny,' prophesied in the motto of the journal, they will have good accommodations, and will be well cared for in either the jail or the poorhouse, whichever they may select.
