NOTICE
CITY AND TOWNSHIP TAXES FOR 1871.

BRACELET FROM BERLIN.
LUCY H. HOOPER.

It was a warm, bright evening in the summer of 1870. The sun had just set, leaving the domes, and pinnacles, and towers of fair prosperous Paris all steeped in the haze of night.

"You are a real Prussienne, madame," he said earnestly. "I have the wish to hear my country stilled, so I will bid you good evening."

"Come, come, Vicome," she said, extending her hand with a smile that might have been the smile of a marble statue.

"I have the wish to hear my country stilled,
so I will bid you good evening."

"I have the wish to hear my country stilled,
so I will bid you good evening."

"I have the wish to hear my country stilled,
so I will bid you good evening."

"I have the wish to hear my country stilled,
so I will bid you good evening."

"I have the wish to hear my country stilled,
so I will bid you good evening."

"I have the wish to hear my country stilled,
so I will bid you good evening."

solider the bravest, our commissariat the most perfect. Ah, Madame Lascelles, I should have Paris with a live heart, if you only had it!"

"Listen," interrupted Alice Lascelles. "I love France, as you know; I have passed two years abroad, and Paris seems to me like a second home. But I cannot look forward with blind confidence to a future for her of triumphant glory. I may be wrong, but it seems to me there is something hollow under all this air of military show.

"You are a real Prussienne, madame," he said earnestly. "I have the wish to hear
my country stilled, so I will bid you good
evening."

though it did frighten from poor, maligned France.
"Sale in her bright New York home, Alice Lascelles studied with interest the course of events, and while rejoicing in the glory of Prussia, found in her heart great sympathy and true sorrow for the woes of France.

and after breaking open bureau drawers and stealing a few petty articles, disappeared.
At the last robbery it was concluded to make a search for the desperado. Accordingly Carver, Frankenberg, Welkert and Weaver formed themselves into a vigilance committee and started out in quest of the robber.
