The past year will long be remembered as guarded against in the matter of government place, directed against President and Minister people advancing in education and intelligence, who are able to do their own thinking and sustain those measures which will maintain our prosperity and our honor and power as a cut down in the time of their greatest usefulness, but as a whole we have been well favored in health and freedom from disease Many homes have been saddened by the grim messenger of death, but when we look at less fortunate communities we have great cause for thankfulness. Our prosperity, which was in a measure interrupted by the coal strike, has resumed its forward march and there is much reason for confidence that we shall have better times this year. Allentown has natural advantages to make it a great trade centre Our old wholesale establishments have increased their trade the past year and new ones have entered the field. Our boot and shoe manufactories have grown in importance and their success warrants the belief that manufactories in other lines will spring up and prosper. Our great staple-iron-goes or adding to our wealth, and even here there is room to increase the number of labor-giving establishments. We probably have enough companies engaged in converting the raw material into iron-possessing, as they do. energy and capital sufficient to extend their works as the trade demands; but here, where the iron can be bought without the cost of transportation, it seems proper that refined iron in all shapes and for every use should be manufactured. We want nail mills, stove works, manufactories of hardware and all the articles of which iron forms the greater part. Labor can be obtained here as cheaply as almost anywhere else in this country, the cost of living is low-and when we commence refining iron more extensively-we will commence fulfilling the laws of economy which will ensure us still greater prosperity. We, as a community, can no more afford to send our pig iron hundreds of miles away and then buy it back again refined, than America can afford to send her wool and cotton to England and have it returned after it is made into cloths and sheeting. These are subjects to think about on the New Year and to endeavor to reform. Our Board of Trade has been successfully inaugurated and let us hope that its influence will be used to help us along
