Miscellaneous.
New York snobdom uses three-cornered visiting cards.
Maryland horses are dying in great numbers from an epidemic.
The Horseshoe Falls of Niagara have receded six feet in the last year.
General Hooker is slowly recovering the use of his paralyzed limbs.
The small pox was never so fatal as it now is in many parts of Upper Canada.
Richmond has had only two large fires since what it prettily calls "the evacuation."
Two Paris sports on velocipedes ran down a party of burglars and captured them.
The new Persian Gulf Cable is to be insulated with rubber instead of gutta serena.
An Iowa girl of sixteen recently killed a large lynx with a corn-cutter, after it had devoured her dogs.
A lay of Miss, passed in 1867, is so construed by the public, as to virtually abolish capital punishment.
John C. Breckinridge talked agriculture to a society of farmers on the Canadian side of the Niagara a few days since.
The Oregon crops are very large. Wheat is selling in Portland at from sixty-five to seventy cents per bushel, and oats at from forty to fifty cents.
