

THE REPERTORY.

From the Lady's Book. ADIEU.

Adieu!—and can this simple word blot out remembrance from the soul...

When life's dull eye shall wane in gloom and time's fast falling sands run low...

Adieu!—and may life's ware roll on unruined by the storm of woe...

J. E. D.

HOUSE-WIVES AND EDITORS.

Between a house-wife and an editor there may well be a sympathy of heart. To both day after day there is a round of duties...

The house-wife clears away the table but to prepare it again for the new and ever returning wants of hunger. She must see that she not only has something of a variety for one meal...

And then the prudent house-wife must regard economy, and the cold remains of one meal must be hashed and dressed up in some new form for the next.

CALL TO-MORROW.

Two words nicely put together for the accommodation of debtors at large, or, if the reader likes it better, large debtors. Alas! that glorious morrow which never comes!

A SNAKE STORY.

"I reckon this 'ere country of yours is pretty considerable productive, stranger, 'isn't it?" said a down-easter...

"There's no such another country between this and the State of Dancombe, in North Carolina," replied the Mississippi settler.

"Raise a good deal of cotton eh?" "Lots of it."

"All-fired quantities of game in this section, I s'pose."

"Considerable of a sprinkling, specially snakes."

"What sort of snakes?" "Rattle-snakes and copper-heads."

"Oh! get out! du tell, I want to know if they're so almighty thick?"

"Rather. Dad and I went out this morning snake hunting—killed only a cord and a quarter—but then it was a bad snake morning, and you must make some allowance."

"Oh! I'll make any 'lowances and tracks out of the settlement at the same time. But say, jest 'tween ourselves, if it had raly been a good morning, how many cords du you imagine you'd a killed?"

"Five is about an average."

"Five! You don't say so!"

"Yes I do, though."

"Which is my shortest way out of this 'ere settlement! I have strong ideas of sloping forth-with."

"Keep right straight ahead."

"Well, I wish you a good day. Give my best 'specks to your dad, and tell him I hope he'll have better snake-weather next time he goes out, I'm O P H."

MANNERS.

I make it a point of morality never to find fault with another for manners.—They may be awkward or graceful, blunt or polite, polished or rustic; I care not what they are, if the man means well and acts from honest intentions without eccentricity or affectation.

The Newsmonger.—Some people are never happy but in hearing or telling news. A person being in a public house one day, asked a stranger who come in, "what news?"

We find the following rules in the Louisiana Advertiser, and publish them for the benefit of the craft.

Rules to be observed on going into a printing office.—In the first place, says Ironia, knock at the door, as every body knows that no one should enter an office, a church or a mill, without first knocking.

PUNCTUALITY.

A punctual man is rarely a very poor man, and never a man of doubtful credit. His small accounts are frequently settled, and he never meets with difficulty in raising money to pay large demands.

Envy deserves pity more than anger, for it hurts nobody so much as itself. It is a dis-temper rather than a vice; for nobody would feel envy if he could help it.

PATENT ELASTIC SQUARE

Self-varying Square Rule,

For measuring and drafting coats, in connection with another new and useful rule for cutting sale or boy's coat's upon a more familiar plan; also, superior rules for cutting all other garments incumbent on that branch, are now offered to the trade by the subscribers; believing them to surpass every thing of the kind which has preceded them.

SELF-VARYING RULE.

Great imperfections in the art and liabilities to produce a miss-fit have been standing before the cutter ever since the introduction of rules, filling the mind with fear and anxiety, until the coat is finished and tried on, at which crisis the blood is often caused to rush into the face at beholding a bad fitting coat.

The rules, with one or two exceptions, which have been in use ever since the first invention of the kind, were wholly predicated upon principles giving the same proportion for every man, which principles would long since have been superseded by self-varying rules, had tailors but thought that the variation in the proportions of men's bodies are almost as many as in the feature of the face.

Two or three rules styled Self-varying, have made their appearance within about as many years, each inventor claiming the honor of having perfected the art, upon which J. G. Wilson, of New York, entitled his system perfect; but instead of being perfect, it contains many erroneous principles, which the subscribers forbear to point out until that gentleman assails this assertion.

Unlike any other of the kind, this system now offered to the trade is conducted without any breast measure, and effects every point and every part of the coat by self-varying principles, in a way calculated to convict the senses of any reasonable man, that should it ever fail to produce a good fit upon any shape whatever, the charge must be laid to a careless and incorrect measurement. It may seem mysterious that this rule is said to be self-varying, and yet a square rule—a square rule and yet conducted without a breast measure; but the whole mystery will be unfolded at once by examination. Unwilling to have it said that the subscribers are attempting to palm this system upon the trade with misrepresentations, they avow their willingness to submit it to the hands of an impartial committee for an examination of its principles, in comparison with any other ever invented in the United States, at Philadelphia or New York, which committee shall make the decision known through the press.

Terms—if forwarded to order $10, if personally taught $12
