

Every recorded fact of the last thirty years, is but history to show us the truth of our premises, and point us to the correctness of our conclusions. Why then do the people slumber under their multiplied grievances? Is virtue extinct? Is intelligence in exile? Or has the dark aristocratic brow of a Webster, or the smoothly rounded period of an expiring Clay, operated with the pretended power of serpent fascination, to lure the people to their own destruction? If so, thought, reading and facts may operate to dissolve the charm, and every citizen of our country, when thinking of that heritage of liberty which has been bequeathed to us by Revolutionary sires, will unconsciously, unhesitatingly, and with every energy that thought can inspire, breathe forth the aspiration, Esto perpetuo, let it be enduring.

To do all this, and to establish the liberties of our country upon that firm base, which aspiring demagogues are ever ready to shake, the people should not only demand an entire reform in the banking system of the country; see that public agents are elected to Legislative bodies, who will aid in bringing such capital as may be employed in banking operations within the salutary provisions of such laws as may be promotive of the interests of the people; but they should discard from their favor such men as Clay, Webster, &c. &c., who have been nourished to their present degree of popular favor in the hot bed of bank influence. As they have sold themselves to Mammon, so would they sell the liberties of the people for gold to promote their own unhallowed purposes of pleasure and ambition.

Much has been said and written within a few weeks past, in regard to the present position assumed by the banks, and as to what position the Legislature should assume towards them. There appears to be three classes—the two extremes, and the middle or moderate class. The one extreme is for tearing them up, root and branch—striking them at once from existence. The other for placing no more restrictions upon them than now exist, but rather extend to them the additional power of issuing bills under five dollars. These two classes, however, are small in comparison to the third or middle class, who are opposed to any extension of the present banking capital of the State; but are for placing them under wholesome restrictions—such as will protect the people from the evils flowing from the too often extension and contraction of their business, and placing them upon a foundation that will firmly fix the confidence of community in their stability and usefulness. We were originally opposed to all banks, from a belief that the best interest of the country would be better subserved without than with them—but others have thought otherwise, and either from a desire to advance their own interest, or to promote the general good, have succeeded in placing throughout the country, innumerable banks, and their managers have so successfully managed as to interweave their operations into all the ramifications of the business of the country, that one cannot be destroyed without bringing the other to the same grave. They have therefore become so closely connected that it is now impossible to separate them, and a banking system must be continued as a necessary evil. Although this is apparent, yet they should, and must be restricted in their operations so as to protect the community from their grasping avarice, and their readiness to overreach the people. To do this, will devolve upon our next Legislature, and to them we look with confidence for the adoption of measures that will regulate them, and secure the people from the curse in future, of the revulsions in business, which have shaken the country to its centre, and destroyed its thousands of active and industrious citizens within a few years past. To our worthy governor we look with still further confidence, to recommend and urge some judicious measures, as he has already shown a steady determination to protect the rights of the many against the encroachments of the few. That something must be done to secure the confidence of the people in the stability of banks but few deny, the only question appears to be what measure shall be adopted. Nothing, however, should be done without due reflection, as we have already had too much hasty legislation and action upon the subject.

The motion for the discharge of Doct. Dycat has been argued before the court in Philadelphia and the court refused a discharge.

A meeting was held at Danville on Monday under pretext of recommending to the Legislature measures for the reform of the Banking System of the State. A long preamble and resolutions were introduced by J. Cooper, Esq., which abounded with but little else than threats and denunciations against banks and the State Administration. They were hastily crowded through and passed by the feeble response of a few voices. We have not yet received the proceedings, but shall probably in time for our next.

ALL RIGHT IN MASSACHUSETTS!

The last news from Massachusetts giving Judge Morton, the Democratic candidate for Governor, a majority of 550 over Everett—enough to secure his election unless the scattering votes are too numerous, of which there is not much danger! The Correspondent of the N. Y. Evening Post has the following cheering news. Think of it, a Democratic Legislature, Senate, and Governor, in Massachusetts!—It seems incredible. There has been no choice for Lieutenant Governor:

Governor Porter.—We rejoice to have it in our power to state, that his Excellency DAVID R. PORTER, has nearly recovered from his recent indisposition, and will doubtless in a few days be again able to attend to his public duties in the Executive Chamber. His numerous friends throughout the Commonwealth may therefore dismiss their apprehensions for his safety.—Keystone.

A man was lately killed by an elephant in Cecil county, Maryland.

The Reading Democrat says: A Mrs. Goodhart, wife of John Goodhart, cordwainer, of that place, presented her husband with three little Goodharts, one of which died in thirty minutes after its birth."

A Great Mistake.—Too many people mistake a printing office for a public reading room. Old papers are of no importance, to be sure; but the interruptions necessary in finding them amount to considerable in a year. No man can talk in a printing office unless upon money without proving a losing business to any publisher who hires by the week.—Chicago Democrat.

Despite the pressure in Boston, city taxes to the amount of $50,000 were paid in the Treasury one day last week, being $20,000 more than on any previous day on the same account.

A hog has been raised in Wallingford, Vt. which weighs sixteen hundred pounds and is three or four years old. He has been sold for $200, and is to be transported about the country for a show.

Lake Fisheries.—Eight thousand three hundred and eighty four barrels of lake fish have gone up the Ohio canal from Cleveland this season. It cannot, we think, be too high to estimate quantity sold here the present season at 10,000 barrels. What quantities are sold at other lake ports we have no means of ascertaining.

A gentleman bachelor, getting tired of making propositions to the ladies, observes, almost in despair, "The d—l has given the girls a spite at me, I think. I've been turned off nine times by the jades, five young girls, three widows, and one old maid, until I begin to think 'tis time to take a hint!"

Trial by Jury.—It is stated that during the present term of Frederick county Court (Md.) the petit jury received a reprimand from the Bench, for bringing a verdict into court under the following circumstances:—A man was indicted for assault with intent to murder, and the jury could not agree, being equally divided. After being detained for some time in a cold, uncomfortable room they came to the conclusion to allow the foreman to pronounce the verdict as he thought fit, they all agreeing that the man was guilty of the assault, but differing as to the intent to kill. After reprimanding the jury a new trial was granted.

MICHIGAN—The Legislature Democratic! The Globe says the House of Representatives in this State will be probably Democratic—the Senate certainly.—So this defeats the whigs in their hopes for a United States Senator.

As a central organ and exponent of its views, we shall not relax our efforts in its behalf, nor our adherence to its principles.

But we desire to say to the public, that we have made arrangements to give our readers the earliest intelligence of congressional and legislative proceedings during the ensuing sessions, and also the earliest accounts of transactions in our principal cities. We have made provision for securing full reports of legislative action, in reference to the important subjects which must engage its attention.
