ADDRESS OF THE CARRIER OF

THE COLUMBIA DEMOCRAT, TO HIS PATRONS. January 1, 1843.

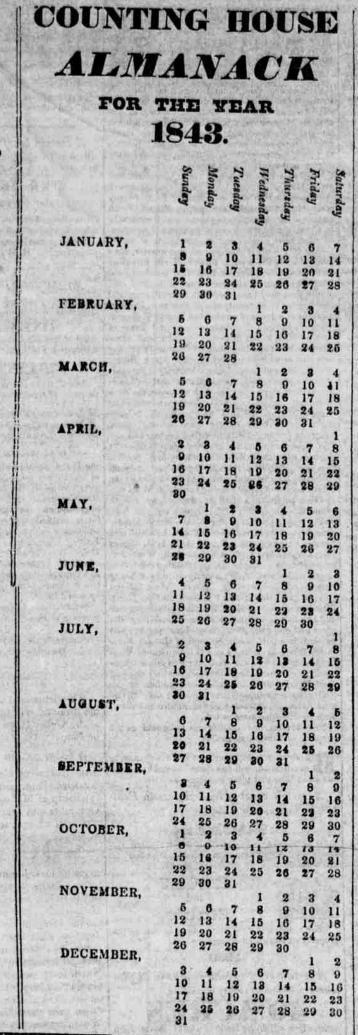

Another son has run his annual race, Cheer'd nations with his beams, caused many a face To wear the smiles of youth; yet like them thoughtless run, Without remembering KIM, from whom their blessings come.

Were I to tell you all strange things that's past, Since in my annual round I saw you last, "Twould make you wonder, how such things took place, In this our land, among a christian race. Dull times appear the order of the day, And many plead them in defence of pay; Their houest debts; which too much credit brought, They new lament, too late their want of thought. Congress to whem all eyes look'd up for aid, Spun out their time in useless talk of trade : Two kindred souls, with noble spirits fired, Resolved to show the nation they were tired Of life's dull cares. They call for arms, which may, If rightly used, turn one or both to Clay.

A fiscal agent, sh ! it must be had. For all well knew our currency is bad ; And if we can by management and trick, Bring forth a bank, which may be done quite slick, Were it not for that ugly odious name. On which depended all our hopes of fame. Alas I the veto-there's another bar, But captain Tyler may not look so far. A fiscal agent we can name the child, And this will please him: why? because more mild If he be stubborn and refuse his aid, We'll order articles of impeachment made, To head him often we have tried in vain, We as the last tesort, will him arraign; And bring him up, before the senate's court For daring differ from us by his vote

The late elections claim a passing note, In states where freemen slaim the right to vote; Democracy, with sober second thought, Has changed the scene, and by her votes has brought, Another set of men, to guide the state, And bring us back to times when we were great. Our State, the Keystone of the federal arch, 'Tis hoped will be in proper trim for March; And claim the right for het favorite son, To sit in chair of state, at Washington. Columbia county, the north-western star, Has acted nobly in the Punic war. The issue joined, on points, remove or nay, On counting votes, nine hundred more said yes. This being the truth, our friends can find no room, To oppose removing all our courts to Bloom.

And now kind patrons, I must bid adieu, To all the pleasures brought in 42, The ladies' smiles I gladly would retain And hope they all, kind husbands may obtain. As times are hard and specie very rare, I'll take good shinplasters, if you have to spare; And thank you kindly, wishing you may clear, One hundred fold, before the next NEW YEAR. Bloomsburg, Jan. 1, 1843.

The KEYSTONE will, as usual, be published twice a week during the session of the Legislature; and as we shall spare neither pains nor expense in giving full and accurate reports of the proceedings of the two Houses, together with sketches of the debates on all public and important questions, we hope to receive a liberal support from the reading public. The coming session of our Legislature will be one of more than common interest, and persons desirous of obtaining early and correct inormation from the seat of government, will find it to their advantage to take the Keystone. To lawyers, advantage to take the Keystone. To lawyers, jadges, justices of the Peace, and public officers generally, it will be invaluable, ao all the laws of a public and general nature are published in it izame diately after their passage, and fully three months before they will be promulgated in any other man-ner. We shall also have an able correspondent at
