

patent, if he has now the "right streak."
 The Collectorship, at Berwick, is sold to purchase the aid of the sickly influence of the Berwick Sentinel, against Pennsylvania's favorite son, James Buchanan. And yet men are denounced as apostates to the democratic faith because they raise their voices against such unprincipled conduct as this, on the part of their public officers, and because they dare turn aside the veil of corruption, and show it to the world in all its naked deformity. By whom are they denounced? By the people? No. By none others, than those who are the recipients of the favors of the present immaculate board of Canal Commissioners, and who are, of course, opposed to any charge, or any reduction of their wages. The people want a reform—they want a reduction of wages, and an entire change in the mode of appointing the Canal Commissioners, and they will have it. And they will sustain those who have so nobly stepped forward in defence of their cause, by advocating the charge proposed in the bill which lately passed the house, or we are much mistaken in the material of which the democracy of this state is composed.

The Berwick Sentinel is out in a violent and abusive article against Col. Wright, professedly for the reason of his advocacy of the bill to elect the Canal Commissioners by the people, but there is a deeper and more lacerated wound that has been touched by him that affects the leaders of the Sentinel. We mean his opposition to the new county, and the open and manly stand which he took in favor of the removal.—Here is the rub. And for this he is to be stabbed to the heart. Heaven and Earth has been moved by them to secure his influence in their favor, but having failed, they now "black guard" like, attempt to ruin his well earned reputation, by slander and vituperation, and a "wanton and unprovoked attack" upon his course in the legislature. Be still, boys, you are too cheap to effect any one but yourselves by such a course. The object is too apparent.

THE SOMERS COURT MARTIAL.

The Court Martial for the trial of Commander McKenzie, assembled on board the North Carolina on Friday, but adjourned to the following day, in consequence of the Judge Advocate's not having been previously furnished with a complete list of the witnesses: The charges against Commander McKenzie are as follows:
 1st—Murder on the high seas, in hanging Spencer, Cromwell and Small.
 2d—Oppression in hanging them.
 3d—Exceeding the limits of his authority in so doing.
 4th—Cruelty and unofficer like conduct in using taunting language to Spencer a few minutes before his execution.
 5th—Oppression of the crew by punishing in an arbitrary and excessive manner.

The Court has been, since Monday, in daily session, but thus far we do not see that a single new fact has been stated. On the investigations by the Court of Inquiry, the same testimony was presented to the public that is now brought before the Court Martial.

Gov. Dorr.—It appears from the Boston papers that Gov. Dorr is in that city. He was to be at a democratic meeting at Faneuil Hall on Thursday evening. Of course Gov. Morton will not give him up to the Algerines.

Earthquake.—The National Intelligencer of yesterday says, a slight shock of an earthquake was experienced in that city on Friday last, about twenty minutes past ten o'clock, A. M. It was not generally felt.

Robbery.—Near Millintown, Pa., on Monday morning week, the boot of the stage was cut and a trunk containing near $1000 worth of goods, belonging to a lady, extracted therefrom. No traces of the robber or trunk have yet been discovered.

We recommend every person indebted to a newspaper publisher to pay up.—The world is going to pot next April, and as cheating a printer is an unforgivable sin, a great many of our friends have no other chance of escaping brimstone than paying quickly.

MR. BUCHANAN AND THE WAR.
 The able and patriotic speech of Mr. BUCHANAN upon the Treaty, says the Washington City Spectator, having drawn upon him an attack from the federal press which revises the stale charge of opposition to the late war justice in that gentleman demands that the facts upon which this allegation is founded, should be fairly stated.

At the declaration of war, Mr. BUCHANAN had not attained the age of manhood, & he naturally imbibed the sentiments of those by whom he had been reared and instructed. Brought up a Federalist, his associations had all been with the party opposed to the commencement of hostilities with Great Britain, most of whom believed that we had as strong grounds of complaint against France, or that the grounds of going to war with England, were at least exaggerated. Notwithstanding their opinions, and his personal and political associations, when war was actually declared, Mr. BUCHANAN adopted the patriotic sentiments. "Our country, right or wrong." Accordingly, when the news of the capture of Washington reached Lancaster, we find him urging a vigorous prosecution of hostilities in an address to his fellow citizens enrolling himself in a company of volunteers, which marched to the defence of Baltimore, where they served under the command of Major Charles S. Ridgely, until they were honorably discharged.

In December, 1814, Mr. BUCHANAN took his seat in the Legislature of Pennsylvania. Simon Snyder, the distinguished republican and patriot, was then Governor; and his opening message, spoke of the "undisguished hostility manifested in the Eastern section of the Union, against the measures adopted or proposed for the preservation of our rights national and individual. However we may regret (said he) or disapprove of such unnatural and unjustifiable dispositions and deportment, we are not now called upon to legislate or act upon them if we were, I am sure that constituted authorities and people of Pennsylvania would unitedly rally round the Union and put down the machinations of all disorganizers, and execute the laws upon all traitors who had should dare not to take up arms against our happy Union and set at naught the Constitution, which is hallowed by the name of Washington!" Mr. BUCHANAN, throughout the entire session, cooperated cordially and efficiently with the Executive in every measure of defence against the enemy. In January, 1815, he gave his vote for William Findley, the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer, who was particularly obnoxious to the Federalists of that day because of his inflexible adherence to the doctrines of Jeffersonian Republicanism;

In the summer of 1815, Mr. Buchanan was requested by the Washington Benevolent Society of Lancaster to deliver an oration on the 4th of July, and from this address, uttered six months after the termination of the war, was called the extract exhibited, is all that history has recorded of his course during the time tried men's patriotism. Even in this address, though a great deal is evidently yielded to the opinions of those by whom he was surrounded, there is much of sound Democratic doctrine inculcated.

At the ensuing session of the Legislature Mr. BUCHANAN took strong ground against the expediency and constitutionality of a Bank of the United States, which he has unwaveringly maintained for more than a quarter of a century, during all which time he has been one of the most prominent members of the Republican party, as well as one of the ablest defenders of the Democratic principles and policy. A man is not responsible for the opinions, in which he was, in a manner, born and bred; but for those principles, which, after mature deliberation he has chosen for himself.

Millerism.—The Editor of the Vermont Chronicle, a paper of high character, and which never indulges in random charges or assertions, says, "that from enquiry and various facts which have come to our knowledge, we have no confidence in the idea that Miller himself believes his doctrine."

Oranges, according to Voltaire, were the forbidden fruit and not apples, as the world has generally believed. If there is any foundation for Voltaire's opinion, Eve was a woman of more taste than the commonly gets credit for.

A good Job.—The New York Express states that Isaac Hill passed through that city on Sunday last, on his way home.—He has secured for himself, we understand, the Post Office contract for furnishing Blanks for New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, and the Northern and Eastern States, to the amount of about $15,000 if not more.—In these hard times, a fifteen thousand dollar contract is a pretty handsome job for a Printer.

It is said, by wise calculators; that six millions of dollars is the total annual amount of the cost of all the newspapers published in the United States.

Shocking.—On Tuesday, while the uterine corps at Fort Monroe, were engaged in target firing, one of the cannon, an 18 pounder, burst, and a fragment struck Sergeant Cunningham, and completely cut him in two in the middle; propelling his head and shoulders against Capt. Huger (the officer commanding) with such violence as to knock him down senseless. A Lieutenant and five or six men also knocked down by the concussion, but not injured.

Minute Guns.—On Saturday, thirteen minute guns were fired at the Navy Yard, at 10 o'clock by direction of the Navy Department, and during the whole of the day the flags were at half mast as a testimony of respect to the memory of Commodore Isaac Hull.
