THE LOVERS ADIEU.

BY J. CLEMENT.

Then I must leave, alas! for ever,
My native land and childhood home;
The ties that long have bound me sever,
And far from her, the loved one roam.
Then charming vale, where we have spoken
Our words of love so pure and sweet,
Since now thy charm for me is broken,
I hail no more thy green retreat.

Farewell, ye fields, oft robbed with flowers
Of my Estelle to deck the hair;
And roses, culled from Flora's bowers,
To grace a brow, that ye, more fair,
And, farewell stream, whose limpid waters
Their rapid course suspended oft,
That she, the boast of Beauty's daughters,
Might there behold her features soft.

Farewell, ye meadows, ever verdant,
Where infancy its passions breathed;
And where in youth our love more fervent,
The flowery garland mutual wreathed.
And ye, fair trees, where oft we wandered,
Our names to trace, our vows to tell,
And o'er the past with pleasure pondered,
To you I sigh a sad farewell!

From the Knickerbocker for March.

STANZES.

BY ROBERT EMMETT HOB.

My life is like a shattered wreck
Cast by the waves upon the shore;
The broken masts, the ruffled deck,
Tell of the shipwreck that is o'er.
Yet from these relics of the storm
The mariner his raft will form,
Again to tempt the faithless sea:
While Hope rebuilds no dark for me.

My life is like the blighted oak
That lifts its scar and withered form,
Scathed by the lightning's sudden stroke,
Sternly to meet the coming storm:
Yet round that sapless trunk will twine
The curling tendrils of the vine,
And life and freshness there impart—
Not to the passion blighted heart!

My life is like a desert rock
In the mild ocean, lone and drear,
Worn by the wild waves' ceaseless shock,
That round its base their surges rear.
Yet there the sea moss still will cling,
Some flower will find a cleft to spring
And breath e'en there a sweet perfume—
For me life's flower no more will bloom!

LIFE'S PROGRESS.

How gaily is at first begun
Our life's uncertain race!
Whilst yet that sprightly morning sun,
With which we just set out to run,
Enlightens all the place.

How smiling the world's prospect lies,
How tempting to go through!
Not Canaan to the prophet's eyes,
From Pisgan, with a sweet surprise,
Did more inviting show.

How soft the first ideas prove
When wander through our minds!
How full the joys, how free the love,
Which that early season move,
As flow'rs the western winds!

Our sighs are then but vernal air,
But April drops our tears,
Which swiftly passing, all grows fair,
Whilst beauty compensates our care,
And youth each vapor clears.

But oh! too soon, alas! we climb,
Scarce feeling we ascend
The gently rising hill of Time,
From whence with grief we see that prime
And all its sweetness end.

The die now cast, our station known,
Fond expectation past;
The thorns which former days had sown,
To crops of late repentance grown,
Through which we toil at last.

Whilst ev'ry care's a driving harm,
That helps to bear us down;
Which faded smiles no more can charm,
But every tear's a winter storm,
And ev'ry look's a frown!

DEATH.

BY SHIRLEY.

The glories of our blood and state
Are shadows, not substantial things;
There is no armor against fate;
Death lays its icy hands on kings.
Sceptre and crown
Must tumble down,
And in the dust be equal made
With the poor sycamore and crooked spade.

Some men with swords may reap the field,
And plant fresh laurels where they kill;
But their strong nerves at last must yield,
They tame but one another still;
Early or late
They stoop to fate,
And must give up their murmuring breath
When they, pale captives, creep to death.

The garlands whither on your brow,
Then boast no more your mighty deeds;
Upon Death's purple altar now
See where the victor-victim bleeds;
Your heads must come
To the cold tomb.
Only the actions of the just
Are sweet, and blossom in the dust.

COUSINING.

A country gentleman lately arrived at Boston, and immediately repaired to the house of a relative, a lady who had married a merchant of that city. The parties were glad to see him, and invited him to make their house his home, (as he declared his intention of remaining in the city but a day or two.) The husband of the lady, anxious to show attention to a relative and friend of his wife, took the gentleman's horse to a livery stable in Hanover street. Finally the visit became a visitation, and the merchant, after an elapse of eleven days, found beside lodging and boarding the gentleman, a pretty considerable bill had run up at the livery stable. Accordingly he went to the man who kept the stable and told him when the gentleman took the horse he would pay the bill.

'Very good,' said the stable keeper, 'I understand you.' Accordingly, in a short time, the country gentleman went to the stable, and ordered his horse to be got ready. The bill was of course presented.

'Oh,' said the gentleman, 'Mr. so and so my relation will pay this.' 'Very good sir,' said the stable keeper, 'please to get an order from Mr. —, it will be the same as money.' The horse was put up again; and down went the country gentleman to the Long Wharf, where the merchant kept. 'Well, said he, 'I am going now.' 'Are you,' said the merchant, 'well, good bye!' 'Well about my horse; the man says the bill must be paid for his keeping.' 'Well I suppose that is all right sir.' 'Yes—well, but you know I'm your wife's cousin.'—'Yes,' said the merchant, 'I know that you are, but your horse is not!'

TOUCHING STORY.

A Touching Story is told by Lieut. Parsons, in his 'Nelsonian Reminiscences.'—Richard Bennet when mortally wounded in one of Nelson's great battles, had requested that a miniature, and a lock of his hair, should be given by Lieut. P. to his sweetheart Susette, in Scotland. The gallant Lieut. thus describes the interview:

It was at the close of day when a bright July sun was on the point of strength, that I arrived at the very pretty cottage of Susette's mother. I tremulously stated who I was to the most respectable looking matron I ever saw, of French extraction. In broken and bitter accents of heartfelt grief, she told her daughter's death was daily looked for, and requested time to prepare her to see me. At last she expressed a wish to see the friend of Richard Bennet, and I was admitted to the fairest daughter of Eve that ever found the world unequal to her tender blossoms. She was prepped up with pillows, near the open lattice of bed-room, that was clustered with roses. Her white dress, and the drapery of the room accorded with the angelic vision, who now turned her lustrous orbs upon me, veiled in long fringed eyelids. She held out her transparent hand, and gently pressed mine, as I knelt to kiss it; and as she felt my tears drop on it, softly murmured, 'I wish I could cry; that would relieve my poor heart.' She gasped for breath and respired with great difficulty. 'The lock of hair—quickly, while I can see it.' She caught at it, wildly pressed it to her lips and heart, and fell back. Her mother and I thought she had fainted; but the pure and innocent soul had returned to God who gave it.

'Pete, how does your father hamper his sheep to prevent them jumping over the fences?' 'Oh, that's easy enough; he just cuts a hole through one hind leg, and sticks the other through it, and then puts one of the fore legs through that for a pin.'

IT'S ON.

'It's on at last! it's on! she cried
'To her daughter standing by;
'It's on!'—the thought her utterance choked
While joy suffused her eye.

'What's on, dear mother?' asked the maid,
(She smiled, and looked so sweet.)
'My bustle's on, you duncie,' she said,
'Don't it stick out a feel?'

'Bridget, two pillows missing from the front garret bed-room.' 'Yes, ma'am, I know it.' 'Well then what have you done with them?' 'Why, Miss Jane and Sarah put them on for bustles, this mornin', to walk in Broadway ma'am.'

Triumphant Success.

And a new discovery in the Newspaper Business.

A most important and invaluable discovery has been made by a gentleman of this city, by which newspapers may be printed in their present form, and at the same time, capable of being converted at pleasure, into a Magazine form, for preservation. This grand improvement, which is destined to form a new era in the business, effecting an entire revolution in the art of printing mammoth newspapers will be introduced, by permission of the patentee, into the Philadelphia Saturday Museum, commencing in May next.

In announcing to the friends of the newspaper press throughout the country a discovery, which will add so immensely to the value of newspapers, the publishers of the Saturday Museum, have, also, the proud satisfaction of announcing the complete and triumphant success of their new Family newspaper. The liberal patronage already secured for this new and popular enterprise, has not only surpassed the most sanguine expectations, but is entirely unprecedented.

IMPROVEMENTS IN "THE MUSEUM."

'The Museum' is now so fairly and firmly established, that we feel warranted in making some very extensive and important improvements. By the first of May, we shall have completed all our arrangements. We shall have in the first place, a beautiful, clear and bold type—in the second, a superb smooth and white paper—in the third place we shall make an ingenious and novel change in the arrangement of the matter—in the fourth place we shall increase our corps of contributors in all the various departments of a Family Newspaper—in the fifth place, we have secured, at a high salary, the services of EDGAR A. POE, Esq., a gentleman whose high and versatile abilities have always spoken promptly for themselves, and who, after the first of May, will aid us in the editorial conduct of the journal.

The 'Narrative of Townsend's Journey over the Rocky Mountains,' one of the most interesting and valuable ever published, is sent to all new subscribers. At its conclusion, our readers will find themselves in possession of a work which alone will be worth double the subscription to this paper. We shall continue, also, of course, the 'Biographical Sketches and Portraits,' which are now exciting so unexampled an interest. With these and other features continued, and with the improvements in contemplation, it remains to be seen whether we do not amply fulfill our determination of making the very best newspaper in America.

Persons wishing to secure six thousand large octavo pages of useful, interesting, and unexceptionable reading for the select family circle, for the small sum of Two Dollars per year—being at the astonishingly low rate of thirty pages for one cent, or equivalent to one hundred and twenty pages for four cents—should hand their names in now.

TERMS.—Two Dollars per annum. Three copies for Five Dollars, or Sixteen copies for Twenty Dollars, is the extra inducement offered at present for clubbing.
