

THE STATE BANKS.

We copy from the Democratic Union, an article of the individual liability of the stockholders of Banks, which is deserving of all consideration. The principle of individual responsibility has been adopted by several of the states, and so far as we can learn; in all cases, with decided beneficial results. The last state that has acted on the subject is New Hampshire; and we join with the 'Union' in expressing the hope that Pennsylvania will follow so good a lead; and not only Pennsylvania, but all the other states of the Union.

Nor is this all that ought to be done to prevent the Banks from again running riot and involving themselves and the country in one common ruin. Among the many reforms that are required, a system of the most rigid accountability should be created to prevent all their officers or directors from misapplying or wasting the funds, or appropriating them to their own use; and the best plan to prevent these evils would be to abolish all secrecy in the conduct of affairs; at least so far as that any of the stockholders might at all times know what is going on in the institution.

For ourselves, we think the public at large have a full right to know, as well as the stockholders, the nature of the security they have for the notes they are every day obliged to take. So long as the bank issue a currency, so long ought they to be considered public institutions, and open to the examination of the public. If the veil of secrecy had been withdrawn several years ago from their proceedings, what losses and suffering would have been prevented or avoided?

Now is the best time to investigate and regulate the whole system. There is a calm favorable to the formation of right judgment. The stockholders—the real owners of the banks—have found out by their losses that the system has been all wrong, and they will give their aid now to reform. That which they opposed a few years ago as destructive of their interests, they would now accept as their best protection. The directors and officers of some of these institutions might oppose measures calculated to limit their privileges, but they are now too weak to bribe or intimidate the Legislature; before they grow strong again, let the chains be put upon them, that will forever prevent them from again going mad, and inflicting deep wounds, first upon the people and then upon themselves.—Pennsylvanian.

Progress of Irish Repeal in France.—The enthusiasm of the French is displaying itself in the readiness and spirit with which they respond to the call of the Repealers in the United States. A banquet was held in Paris on the 14th ult, by those friendly to the cause. One hundred persons were present, among whom were deputies of the extreme gauche, members of the Institute; literary men, commanders and officers of the National Guard, and a deputation of the 'Patriots of Orleans and Rouen.' M. Ledru Rollin (a deputy) opened a subscription for the Central Fund of the Repeal; and at the pressing invitation of the assembly, promised to proceed forthwith to Ireland, to visit the directing committee of the association, and be the bearer of the relief to be forwarded to them as a testimony of the lively interest Frenchmen take in the cause of all oppressed nations. The meeting promised that, should the struggle become violent, France would be no more deficient to Ireland than she was, half a century ago, to the efforts of the American people.

Fishing with Sledge Hammers.—A person writing from Frankfort, Kentucky, to an eastern editor; states a new mode of fishing, which is practised in the small streams in Kentucky, during low water. It is termed 'sledge hammering,' and is performed by a man wading about with a sledge hammer on his shoulder, and to every rock which he approaches he gives a violet blow with his hammer. The stunned fish rise from beneath the rock to the surface, and are basketed. The bottom of South Elkhorn, a beautiful stream; abounding in black perch, which affords fine sport to the angle, was nearly macadamized last summer by the wonderful sledge hammer, and consequently this season the fish are very scarce.

Mortality at Sea.—The brig Aurora, arrived at Wilmington, N. C. last week, from Cienfuegos, had five different captains during her voyage. She cleared in March for the West Indies, but encountered a gale off Frying Pan, returned to port, when the captain then in charge left her. Another took his place, who died in a short time in the West Indies. Another and another still, successors, died, and she was brought home in charge of the mate of a Boston vessel.

The United States revenue accruing at the port of New York during July, after making deductions of drawbacks &c is $1,000,000.

'Who make you dat Wig?' said a little French perruquier to us the other day.—Madame la Nature, assisted by Dr. Jaynes Hair Tonic, was our reply. 'Sacrel!' exclaimed the coiffeur 'why your tete was smooed as de block in my shop tree mont since, 'very true,' was our reply; 'but as my head is not a 'block,' Dr. Jayne's Tonic—which will make the hair grow on any thing but a block—has reclothed it as you see.' Shrugging his shoulders, and venting another 'Sacrel!' in a tone of mingled astonishment and admiration, the little hair dresser went on his way marvelling. For sale at J. R. MOYER'S, Bloomsburg.

The Hand of Death is sometimes uplifted and ready to strike; when we are unconscious of the jeopardy in which we stand. A slight cough neglected for a short time, may be fatal. The progress of pulmonary disease in some constitutions is fearfully rapid; and when once tubercles are formed in the lungs, the case of the patient is usually looked upon as hopeless. Jayne's Expectorant will always cure every complaint incident to the organs of respiration up to the period when human means can arrest the work of destruction. Dr. Jayne does not arrogate to himself the attributes of omnipotence, by asserting that his medicines can work miracles. He leaves such blasphemy to unscrupulous and ignorant empirics and charlatans. All he avers is that his expectorant has saved the lives of thousands of sufferers from pulmonary diseases, who had been declared by medical men beyond the reach of human skill. For sale at J. R. MOYER'S, Bloomsburg.
