

HE WAS MY HUSBAND, AND HE LOVED ME.

Some years ago a Spaniard was arrested in Havana, charged with the horrible crime of assassination. He was known to be a depraved and desperate individual, who had been engaged in piracy, and was suspected of other heinous crimes. The evidence against him was conclusive—no voice was heard in his favor—no mitigating circumstances were adduced. He was condemned to the punishment of the garrote—and the execution took place at the allotted time without the walls of the city, at the place appointed for the capital punishment of malefactors.

The instrument of execution, an iron collar, which, by turning a screw, produced instant strangulation, was applied and the exertions of the throng, which had gathered around for the horrible purpose of witnessing the last dying struggles of a human being—and that crowd had dispersed, a woman, young and lovely, but with disheveled hair and disordered dress, while grief had impressed livid signet on her pallid cheeks, forcing her way through the throng, and rushed frantically towards the terrible apparatus of death.

'Who are you, and what have you in common with that pirate and assassin?' demanded one of the stern satellites of the law.

'Oh!' cried the woman, in a tone of agony which thrilled every bosom—'He was my husband and, he loved me!'

This reckless, bad man, had by some mysterious influence, thrown a chain around the heart of this young and beautiful woman, and united it to his in bonds which could not be broken even by death. All his errors, all his crimes, and they were many and dreadful—were not seen and known, they were forgiven or disregarded. It was enough for her that he was her husband, and he loved her. This, in her estimation, would atone for all his transgressions. She looked for no more—she asked for no more. Her world of happiness was centered in her husband's affections—and there surely must have been some redeeming trait in the character of the assassin which could have gained the love of woman, and retained her dearest affections even after his life had been forfeited to the laws and ignominy rested upon his name. But 'he was her husband, and she loved him.'—Boston Journal.

INSTINCT OF THE GOOSE. The following incident, was related to us by a highly respectable lady, and shows that even a Goose is not destitute of the higher order of instinct.

'My father had been presented by old Gov. Gill with a goose imported from Europe, of superior beauty. Like the venerable donor, she was long unblest with progeny. Whenever the other geese brought broods of goslings, this childless matron manifested great uneasiness. At length at the suggestion of my mother, the 'solitary bird,' was 'set,' on ducks eggs. With this arrangement she appeared delighted, and the duties of incubation were performed with the utmost fidelity. In due time a brood of ducklings were the reward of her anxious care. No mother was ever prouder of 'little Willy,' when for the first time, he 'exchanged his 'robes,' for a masculine dress, than was mistress goose of her fledglings. She led them to the water, and initiated them into aquatic mysteries, brooded them with tender solicitude, and duly hissed at all intruders upon her domestic immunities. But alas, for all earthly joy, a change soon came over the brightness of her creature bliss. I was standing at my window one morning, admiring the exhibition of maternal affection, when her attention was arrested by a family of goslings, feeding quietly some ten rods distant. She paused, looked at her ducklings, then at her own again, as though solving an intricate question. At length, it seemed that light had broken upon the darkness of her instinct, and for the first time she became sensible of the deception practised upon her, and discovered that the brood she had so painfully nurtured, were another species of the feathered tribe. Her rage was now uncontrollable. With a fury that Socrates never witnessed, she seized the innocent objects of her new born hatred by the neck, and in a few moments they were laying lifeless around her work of death, she uttered a scream loud as that which saved Rame, assaulted the goose whose legitimate family had excited her envy, drove her from the yard, and took possession of her brood, which she brought up as though they had been the offspring of her own eggs.' Many student of natural history a veritable parallel to this Gosh story?

A Spanish Archbishop having a dispute with an opulent Duke, who said with scorn, 'What are your titles and your revenues are only for your life,' answered with an pathetic truth, 'And for how many lives does your grace hold yours?'

No Humbug! CHARLES KAHL Tailor.

EMBRACING the present opportunity of expressing his thankfulness to his friends and the public generally, for the liberal patronage he has heretofore received, informs his friends and the public in general, that he still continues to carry on the above business at his old established stand, on the corner of Main and East streets, where he hopes, by strict attention to business, to receive and merit a share of public patronage as heretofore. He deems it unnecessary to go into the name of brag, or to use any soft adjectives about his SKILL in the PROFESSION OF GARMENT CUTTING as his shop is of long standing, and his work he thinks will speak for itself, and far more loudly than words. But, he would merely say that, he warrants his work done with neatness, durability, and in the latest fashionable manner, and will cure a good fit in all cases.

N. B. Charges moderate to suit the times. All kinds of country produce taken in exchange for work, at market prices.

Brandreth's Pills.

READ and understand! The time will come when the medicine, Brandreth's Pills, will be appreciated as they ought and deserve; it will be understood that Dr. Brandreth has the strongest claims upon the public. It is true that every individual who makes a trial of the Brandreth Pills concede them to be the best medicine they ever used. They are indeed a medicine about which there is no mistake. Their value in a climate so changeable as ours cannot be sufficiently appreciated. A free perspiration is at once restored, the cure colds, and consumption is prevented. Those who have a redundancy of bile find them the most essential service, and should there be a deficiency of that important fluid the Brandreth Pills have an equally beneficial effect. Often has this important medicine saved valuable lives in those regions where the dreadful yellow fever was prevailing. A few doses taken immediately upon the infection being received into the system, will be almost certain to prevent any material inconvenience. And at no stage of this dreadful epidemic is there so proper a medicine as the Brandreth Pills. Let this medicine be universally used in this disease, and no loss of blood allowed, and few, very few, would be its victims. So it is with other diseases. Assist nature with this all important medicine to remove morbid humors from the blood, and do not resort to bleeding or mercury, and you shall have a very great scarcity of persons afflicted with chronic maladies. The feathered tribe—the animal kingdom—over which we are the lords, are not afflicted with chronic maladies; neither should we be if it were not for our pride which occasions them. Follow nature. Use the medicine which harmonizes with her, which mildly but surely removes all the impurities of the blood, which strengthens the feeble, and yet reduces those of too full habit to a healthy standard. Let me again say that every department of the manufacture of Brandreth Pills is personally superintended by me, and that every box with my three labels upon it may be relied upon to have the beneficial effect described if used according to the directions accompanying it.
