

THE OLD SOLDIER.

BY H. HASTINGS WELD.

He had been to the Pension Office. The generosity—if generosity consist in deferring a benefit until the recipient is past the enjoyment of it—or justice, if justice consists in withholding the veteran's dues till he is ready to go down to the grave, (generosity or justice—call it what you will, we can call it neither), had at last awarded with a pension, an infirm old man. The burden of old age and hope deferred, had made him sick of life. The death film was even now measurably drawn over the eye, once sparkling; the pace, which was once firm and confident in the strength of youth and the pride of patriotism, had become irregular and tottering; and the manly form, once erect and commanding, was bowed down—age and suffering had done it. He was a stranger in the metropolis; infirmity and neglect had broken down his body, but his spirit could better sustain itself; and a bitter sense of neglect had kept him in solitude. He would not offer a living comparison between the men who have perished by the achievement, without exhibition of their own. The conscious victim of cruel neglect and ingratitude, he considered the tardy justice of his country a mockery, and sought but his subject poverty, and a wish to die—'square with the world,' had induced him to apply for it.

"And now," said he, "I will pay my debts—and die."

The change of objects in the city bewildered him. He gazed upon the spacious and elegant edifices which had in his absence superseded old and familiar objects—but he gazed with hurried uncertain glances, as if doubting his senses. The bustling forms of a generation who have forgotten the Revolution, flitted past him without heeding him; the pensioner was alone in the city! Amazed that the lapse of time had wrought such wonders, he felt like a stranger in a strange land, and that, too on the very soil he had defended.

His venerable appearance attracted the notice of a passer by, who perceived the old man was bewildered. Tendered his services to conduct him home.

"Home! I have no home. I was at home here in '76—but I am forgotten now?"

A transient gleam of anger flashed from the veteran's eye—but in a moment it passed away, and the vacancy of his countenance returned.

"Where am I? Oh! I have been to take the gift of Congress—let me go and pay my debts before I die."

The girl—here again his eye was lighted—and his bearing spoke the proud and wounded spirit—broken, but not subdued. An honest feeling of indignation mastered him; striving, as it were, in the pride of youth, to avoid the unfeeling and impertinent curiosity of the crowd who surrounded him, he sunk exhausted on the pavement.

"Take him to the police office for a vagrant!" said one of the crowd.

"Take yourself off for an unfeeling brute!" said the honest fellow who had addressed the veteran. "But! jesting him by the collar as he essayed to walk away—stop first and give the old man's pocket book! I saw you take it—hand over, or I'll tear you limb from limb!"

"Throttle him," cried one of the crowd—"a scoundrel! rob a pensioner!"

"Take him to the police!" and the old man's wallet fell from the culprit in the scuffle.

The pensioner was recognized by some one in the crowd, and he passively suffered himself to be put into a coach. He was conveyed to a shelter, and having happily fallen into good hands attention for a couple of days partially restored his exhausted energies. An indistinct remembrance of the events which have narrated flitted occasionally across his mind, but he remembered the evening of '76 better than those of yesterday, and the countenance of those who had been his companions in arms were more distinctly marked in his memory, than the new ones he had seen the day before. When about to be put on board the stage to be conveyed home his mind again wandered.

"That's right—carry me to Congress—give me my due. I have fought for it! Congress said I should have it? The old man's wallet was put into his hand.

"Oh, yes, I knew I should get it—they could not so soon forget the old soldier—but so late let me pay my debts and die! I can live no longer! But somebody stole it—they got it away from me; they couldn't do it fifty years ago but I've got it now, haven't I? No, they didn't keep it—they would steal the old man's money! They could not keep it—the God of battles would blast them for it—God have mercy on them—they didn't fight for it! Let me pay my debts and die! My children are all dead—my wife died in—the poor house—and me—I don't want to live any longer—nobody knows me now—let me die!"

The stage stopped at—Hitherto during the ride the old man had been silent. Forgetful of the present, inattentive to things about him, his mind was back among other scenes. A long, long reverie—and one from which he was never to awaken! His lips moved rapidly, though no sound was audible, involuntary and spasmodic emotions vined the activity of his mind. He was busily communing with the friends and reviewing the events of youth. Poor old man! fifty years since seemed to him but yesterday. One of the lone survivors of another race, he had no communion with those around him. Dwelling upon the hardships, the privations, the dangers, the escapes, the victories of another age, his frame in firm and old, could not support the recollections, as once in the day of his strength, he withstood the reality.

"Hark!" murmured the old man. All eyes turned towards him. He raised himself on his staff and leaned forward. His eyes beamed with supernatural animation, and contrasted fearfully with his shrunken countenance; his hat had fallen, and his silver locks moved on the light air—his lips compressed, his posture firm! On God was his death struggle! The roll of a distant drum tell on his ear—he grasped his staff firmly as once he held his firelock. A bugle sounded clear and full beside the coach—"For Congress and the People, cha!"—His voice ceased, he fell back to his seat, a husky rattling in his throat succeeded—

The spirit of the Revolutionary patriot had departed.

A SECRET WORTH KNOWING.

Truth is strange—stranger than fiction! Under this heading the Long Island Star publishes an interesting tale, for the extended details of which we cannot find room, but must content ourselves with giving the leading facts in a condensed form, for the benefit of our readers.

A young grocer of good character and correct habits, commenced business in a good and improved neighborhood. His stock was small, as were his means, and stock of customers were still smaller. His sales hardly met his expenses, and he was evidently going 'down hill,' and an old grocer on the opposite corner predicted that he would soon be at the bottom.

That the young grocer had reason to regret this opinion of the old grocer will appear. The latter had a daughter who had won the heart of the former. He offered himself to her and was rejected. It was done however with the assurance that he was the man of her choice, but she acted in accordance to her father's commands.

Assured of the affections of the woman of his choice, he sat himself about removing the only obstacle in the way of their union the father's objection to his peculiar prospects.

A year had elapsed and lo, what a change! The young grocer was now going uphill with the power of a steam locomotive; customers flocked to his store from all quarters, and even many had left the old established stand on the opposite corner, for the younger favorite. There was a mystery about it which puzzled the old grocer sorely, but which he could not unveil. He at last became nearly sick with losses and aggravations, and vain attempts to discover the secret of his neighbor's success.

At this juncture, Angelica—for that was the daughter's name—contrived to bring about an apparently accidental interview between the parties. After the old man had become, through the intervention of the daughter, tolerably good humored, and he inquired with great earnestness about the young man, how he had contrived to effect so much in a single year, to thus extend his business and draw off the customers from the older stand.

The young man evaded an answer—but inquired if he had any further objections to his union with Angelica. None? replied he, "provided you reveal the secret of your success."—This the young man promised when his happiness was made complete.

The old man commended his prudence on this point. The affair was all settled and the marriage soon took place.

The friends of the young couple were all assembled, and among them many of the customers of both stores. Angelica and Thomas looked as happy as well could be, and the old gentleman was, if possible, happier than they. The bridal cake was about to be cut, when the old man cried out for "THE SECRET."

"Aye, the secret," the secret," exclaimed fifty others.

"It's a very simple matter, said Thomas, I ADVERTISE!!!"

The old gentleman was very old fashioned, and while he shook Thomas heartily by the hand, and kissed Angelica fifty times over, he merely muttered.

"Why the dickens didn't I think of that!"

WORMS KILLS THOUSANDS.

CHILDREN are most subject to them, but persons of all ages are liable to be afflicted with them. Bad breath, paleness about the lips, flushed cheeks, picking at the nose, wasting away, loquacity, pain in the bowels, joints or limbs, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, moaning and sometimes of voracious appetite, are among the symptoms of worms. Many are doctored for months, for some other imaginary disease, when one box of Sherman's Worm Lozenges would effect a cure. Dr. Ryan, corner of Prince street and the Battery, cured a man of worms that was reduced to a skeleton, and by only one box of Sherman's Worm Lozenges. Let us now as an Alderman. Th. Hon. B. B. Beardsley has saved the life of one of his children by them. The sale of over 3,000,000 of boxes has fully testified to their efficacy. They are the only infallible worms destroying medicine known. What family will be without them!

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Coughs, Asthma, and all affections of the lungs, will find a healing value in Sherman's Worm Lozenges. They saved the Rev. Richard De Forest; the Rev. Mr. Street, Jonathan Howarth, Esq., and that worthy old man, Leonard Rogers, from the consumptive's grave. They cured in one day the Rev. Mr. Dunbar, the Rev. Mr. Handcock, Wm. B. Atree, Esq. of distressing coughs. They are the pleasantest, cough medicine and cure the soonest of any known remedy.

Headache, Sea-sickness and Palpitation, relieved of from five to ten minutes by Sherman's Worm Lozenges. Persons attending crowded rooms or travelling will find them to impart buoyancy and spirits and renew their energies. Those suffering from tooth-ache will find a few of the lozenges to dispel the humors and loosen of spirits. Mr. Knath, of the Hudson Mercury, has repeatedly cured himself of severe headache by them. Captain Chudwick of the packet ship Wellington, has witnessed their efficacy in a great many cases of sea-sickness. They operate like a charm upon the agitated or shattered nervous system. Sherman's Plaster does upon rheumatism, lambs leg pain or weakness in the side, back, breast or any part of the body. Mr. H. G. Boggs, 30 Astor street; Henry R. Goulding; 35 1/2 Chatham street; Moses J. Henriques Esq. and a multitude of others have experienced the wonderful effects of these Plasters. Price only 12 1/2 cents. Caution is necessary to see that you get the genuine Sherman's Worm Lozenges and Plasters, as there are many worthless articles attempted to be palmed off in place of them, by those who would trade with your life for a dollar.

HISTORY OF WYOMING BY CHARLES MINER.

DESCRIPTIONS are respectfully solicited for the forthcoming History of Wyoming. The work, now ready for Press, will make an Octavo volume of about six hundred pages, of which five hundred pages will embrace the main body of the narrative. The Appendix, besides a variety of curious and illustrative articles, will contain the "Traveller's Travellers," revised with numerous additions, personal anecdotes, incidents and sketches of character, making about an hundred pages.

The author thinks proper to say, that no pains have been spared to obtain information upon every point connected with this subject. He has flattered himself, as Wyoming has become classic ground in regard to its story, and as its very interesting civil character has been severely touched upon, that almost every gentleman would desire to possess a copy of it, as an authentic narrative. The purpose of taking up subscribers is to enable the author to judge what number of copies it would be proper to publish.

The Book will be neatly printed in Octavo form, on excellent paper, with several illustrative plates, bound in cloth, in modern style, and delivered to subscribers at Two Dollars a copy. No money to be paid until the Book is delivered. Subscriptions received at this Office.

He deems it unnecessary to go into the minutiae of the PROFESION OF GARMENT CUTTING as his shop is of long standing, and his work he thinks will speak for itself, and far more loudly than words. But, he would merely say that, he warrants his work done with neatness, durability, and in the latest fashionable manner, and will ensure a good fit in all cases.

Brandreth's Pills.

READ and understand! The time will come when the medicine, Brandreth's Pills, will be appreciated as they ought and deservedly it will be understood that Dr. Brandreth has the strongest claims upon the public. It is true that every individual who makes a trial of the Brandreth's Pills, will find them to be the best medicine they ever used. They are indeed a medicine which will change as ours cannot be sufficiently appreciated. A free preparation is at once resorted to, and the cure effected, and consumption is prevented. Those who have a redundancy of bile find them to be the most essential service, and should there be a deficiency of that important fluid the Brandreth's Pills have an equally beneficial effect. Often has this important medicine saved valuable lives in those cases where the deadly yellow fever was prevailing. A few doses taken immediately upon the infection being received into the system, will be all that is needed to prevent any material increase of the kind at that stage of this dreadful epidemic. It is a powerful medicine as the Brandreth's Pills. Let the medicine be judiciously used in the disease, and the loss of blood allowed, and very few would be its victims. So it is with cholera. Assist nature with this all important medicine to remove morbid humors from the blood, and do not resort to bleeding or mercury, and you shall have a very great number of persons afflicted with cholera. The following is the true and original knowledge, ever which we are the Jews, are afflicted with cholera. Follow nature. Use the medicine which harmonizes with her, which mildly but surely removes all the impurities of the blood, which strengthens the feeble and yet reduces those of too full habit to a healthy standard. Let me again say that every department of the manufacture of Brandreth's Pills is personally superintended by me, and that every box with my three labels upon it may be relied upon to have the beneficial effect described if used according to the directions accompanying it.
