A QUEER CUSTOMER.

"It is most amusing," said Richard Mervyn, as he relinquished the attempt to rise from the gutter at the corner of — and — streets. "It is really astonishing how soon this dreadful climate of America brings one's spirit down. I shall never succeed to get home and write book about the place—never. Here I am, ~~s~~ set two, without my stockings, crawling in a dirty, republican gutter without being able to help myself out of it. There's a limp winking and blinking in my face, as if it wants to laugh, and would if it had a mouth, and a big eye of a dog just now caused me to see whether I was good to eat. What a country!—what gutters! and what I quarrel—I only took nine smashes of whisky, and what with that and premature old age, I verily believe I am assassinated—I am gone chicken!"

Mr. Mervyn now clamored so loud that assistance soon came.

"Silence then!—what's the matter?"

"Matter yourself—I'm being done, or as some people say, I'm doing. The match of mind has tripped, and Richard Mervyn is too deep for himself. Help me out—gently—there. Ain't I in a pretty pickle? This is what the doctors call gutta serena, isn't it?"

"When I was at school the boys would have called you a gulfar."

"They would have known much grammar, if they did. I'm a liquid—see me drip?"

"'Oul no!' said the watch, don't try to be funny; I know you well enough, now you have washed your face. You are the chap that locked me up in my box once, and when I burst open the door, you knocked me heels over head, and begged it!"

"That's me. I did that thing. How do you like the ups and downs of pub life? Isn't variety charming?"

"It wasn't that I'm a public functionary, and mustn't give way to my feelings, I'd crack your cocoo, and essay my mind of doing as I was done by. I'll make an example of you, however. You're my prisoner. Holly chocha to the watch 'us,'—That's the Dutch for being took up."

"Well, give us your arm. Don't be afraid of the mud. Gutter mud is very wholesomes. Look at the pigs how fat it makes 'em; and if you take fat pork why shouldn't you like what makes pork fat? So—so—steady. Now I'll tell you all about it another night. I was passing your box in a friendly, promiscuous sort of a way, I thought you were asleep, or had run down, and I turned the key to wind you up, it can't either keep good time, or even go."

"Why, then I watched the box, and when you come out, I boxed the watch.—That's all. It grew out of my obliging disposition."

"He's very obliging. Now it's my turn to wind you up, and, to do it in the same way, I'll take you before the watch-maker, to be cleaned and regulated. You go fast, but I'll put a spoke in your wheel, he'll set you by the regulator, and make you keep good time."

"Why, watch, you're a wag. Why don't say that I was a horizontal, and that you lifted me up like a patient lever? You're awake now; but that night you was't up to try, or you would have caught me. I caught a wessel asleep that time—I put fresh salt on you for once."

To add one more to his vagaries, Mervyn now refused to walk a step. In the end sitting down on a step, loudly vowed his resolution, and declared his name was not Walker.

"Whether your name is Walker or not, you must go."

"Not without a go-cart—you can't force me to go—I'm a legal tender, and you must take me. Hav'n't I got an office, or at least a public situation, here on the step? If I must go, it shall be on the Yankee principle of rotation, bring me a wheel barrow? Reform me out regularly." It was protracted and a way they went. So we go," said Mervyn, "Charley's making a harrow-sough of me. Gently over the stone! I don't like bumps, except when I get them of porters. This is the way to wheeling—barrel cart before the horse." Arriving at the watch house, he insisted upon being wheel'd up stairs, and sat led the place a barrage and case. "I'm a modest man," said he, "and we start. If I can't have a ride up I think myself entitled to drawbacks?" So saying he attempted to escape, but was soon caught being as he said, this Goldsmith's works beautifully chased!—The master was carried off, and next morning, sober and penitent, paid his tuppence fine and his carriage fare with a doleful countenance.

NEW SERIES

OF THE CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE AND APPENDIX.

TO BE STEREOTYPED.

The undersigned originated the mode of publishing the proceedings of Congress which preceded them entirely. Their publication was the first and only one that gave each successive step in every measure in both branches of Congress; a brief of all debates, every important vote; and an Appendix including at full length all the revised speeches delivered during the session. The work thus conducted by them is a most perfect political history. The Senators from the States and the Representatives from every section of the Union bring with them to Congress a knowledge of the feelings, sentiments, and interests of their several constituents. Public opinion and the public information, as it exists among those they represent, are embodied by them, and in the crucible of Congress the wisdom of our times is brought to its test, and is there concentrated, in directing the political movements of the whole country.

The money may be remitted by mail.

It should be here by the December, at latest, to procure all the numbers promptly.

Proprietors of newspapers who copy this Prospectus, and send to us one copy of their paper containing it, shall have their names entered on our books for one copy of the Congressional Globe and Appendix during the session.

The prices for these papers are so low that we cannot afford to credit them on account of the number consumed.
