THE POOR AND THE RICH.

BY JAMES RUSSEL LOWELL.

The rich man's son inherits lands. And piles of brick, and stone and gold, And inherits soft white hands, And tender flesh that fears the cold. Nor dares to wear a garment old, A heritage, it seems to me, One would not care to hold in fee.

The rich man's son inherits cares, The bank may break, the factory burn, Some breath may burst his bubble shares, And saft, white hands would scarce earn, A living that would sait his turn; A heritage, it seems to me-One would not care to hold in fee.

What does the poor man's son inhern? Stout Muscles and a sinewy heart, A hardy frame, a hardier spirit? King of two useful toil and art, A heritage, it seems to me, A king night wish to hold in fee-

What does a poor man's son inherit! A patience learned by being poor, Courage, if sorrow come, to bear it, A fellow feeling that is sure To make the outcast bless his door, A heritage, it seems to me: A king might wish to hold in fee

Oh, rich man's son, there is a toil That with all others level stands. Large charity doth never soil, But only whitens soft white hands, A heritage it seems to me, Worth being rich to held in fee.

Oh, poor man's son, scorn not thy state, There is worse weariness than thine, In merely being rick and great Work only makes the soul to shine. And makes rest fragrant and begin, A heritage it seems to me Worth being poer to hold in fee,

Both heirs to some six feet of sed Are equal in the earth at last-Both children of the same dear Ged Prove title to your heirship vast By record of a well filled past! A heritage it seems to me Well worth a life to hold in fee.

A PAIR FAIRLY BOXED

A reverend doctor was an inordinate snuffer; but having qualms of conscience as to the rectitude of the habit, he one day ascended the rostrum sans his box. He got on most lamely without it, indeed he Hunting and other Cost Buttons; Hooks and Eye thought he would have stopped in the very introduction of the discourse, but, at the juncture, a deaf old man took up his station on the pulpit stairs, came close to him and inhated a tremendous thum bful. This was too much. The doctor convulsively clutched the mtill, and passed the Rubicon by, throwing up a cloud of the sable dust. and forthwith became luminous as he had never before been, even in the memory of the oldest sitter. He kept possession of the box the whole time; and at the end, askwith the souff?

"I dinns ken," was the answer, "for I dinme hear a word withest it."
