

she had as long been separated; and the news of her arrival added new flame to his already kindled ardor to urge him to acts of mighty daring in the approaching combat. ere the Phœbian steeds had begun to breathe out their gold bespangled rays, lighting the eastern horizon, Washington was in silent march for the surprise. Never did the soldiers march with more determined zeal. Wenton seemed to surpass himself, "wherever the battle raged," there hurried he at the head of the troop, "for he should soon meet Elphisia safe," and he wished to carry some noble deed done in his country's cause. No knight could be more brave, no lover more enthusiastic.

Two weeks the captive wife had enjoyed the gladdening sweets of her regained home, and her spirits were light in glad hope, when one day as she sat smiling upon her little son who had been asking many questions of "Papa's return," and bravely declared that he would not be afraid to run to him and kiss him if he did look like a soldier, a loud and continued shouting was heard in the street that drew her to the window in some alarm; but it had passed; the sound grew distant, and she beheld only some small parties of men seemingly much excited, hurrying down the street whither it proceeded. She wondered what could be the cause, and, she knew not why, her anxiety increased. She knew important news was expected from the army, and she was every moment expecting word from her husband or his joyful return. As the crier advanced the throng increased; soon the whole town was in motion. It was an express from the army. In a moment a thousand were inquiring, "What news?" It was answered with the petrifying words: "The army is routed at Germantown, and Washington put to flight!" Had the crash of a thousand worlds struck their ears, it had not been more terrible; or had the whole British navy suddenly appeared before the town, the consternation had not been greater.

Not long and the ill news reached the boding Elphisia; yet she did not despond; "the might be safe," she hoped not; long for the next day brought official accounts of the defeat—gave a death blow to all hope—told her that her husband was a captive. Her griefs were now as sad as her anticipations had been cheering; no scene of future joy rose in prospect before her; all was dreary; sorrow seemed but just begun. Wenton had truly become a prisoner, but not till after many a feat of daring, and he had wrested many a soldier from the same fate. This hard fortune at once blighted the prospects of the Exiles; for being known as a zealous actor in the rebellion from its commencement, his release, or rather exchange was doubtful; and should his true character be disclosed, all was over. Of this there was fear, for it was announced that he with some others would be taken to Halifax, where soon after they arrived and was strictly confined.

This now happy country, during the Revolution appeared, as it were, one vast, continually changing scene of joy and fears;—small circumstances gave cause of great exultation, or the darkest apprehension. The Exiles were partakers of these in every extreme. The capitulation of Burgoyne, which gave great promise to the patriots, was not without its influence upon them; but there was no change; he still remained a prisoner—she wore daily a more settled gloom. Her only comfort was in her boy, whose age began to make him interesting,—the more to her as he shone the likeness of his father; and her only delight was in comforting those who had suffered in their country's cause, many of whom lived long to bless her feeling heart and giving hand.

But things were coming to an issue; the happy fruits of glorious opposition were to be tasted—drank in full draught—Peace and Prosperity. Many marriages, arduous and brave, were performed, which resulted in Cornwallis possessing Yorktown. Here the quick perception of the great leader was directed. It was soon planned: Yorktown grew magnetic, and the Patriots hung upon the Loyalists like a nightmare suffocation.

They saw the mountain roll, but could not fly, and found no friend that knew their chattering. The move was made and all the land cried "Victory!" Elphisia was still sorrowful, but when consoling friends brought the glad tidings of victory and pictured to her the prospect of peace and restoration of captives; she smiled, and her heart grew light as she thought of her long absent husband once more returning.

It was the evening of this same day when Boston was lighted with triumphant bonfires and the air above was blazing with meteor-like rockets, that a man of tall figure, intent and eager countenance, was seen hurrying through the crowded streets; he made his way direct to the dwelling we have thrice spoken of; his rap was quick and with a shrill voice he asked: "Does Lady Wenton reside here?" Being answered "A letter you will deliver immediately," and he retraced his steps in the same hurried manner. She heard it announced and sprang to receive it. "He lives, my Alpheus!" she exclaimed as she kissed it and broke the seal. These words were first to catch her eye: "I am known; all has been discovered and I am condemned to the gibbet. Ere this reaches you your unfortunate husband is no more." The letter dropped and she sunk upon the floor. She groaned not; her grief was too deep; her heart was broken;—and, as the last rocket was shot in the air amid the triumphant shout of a thousand hurrahs, her spirit, as if it had been by signal, took its upward flight.

AUSTRALIAN, MODE OF DUELLING.—Mr. Hate, the Philologist of the late Exploring Expedition, gives the following account of an Australian duel, which, by the way, is a decided improvement upon the Method in vogue in this country:

"The parties meet in presence of their kindred and friends, who form a circle around them as witnesses and umpires. They stand up opposite one another, armed each other with a club about two-foot long. The injured person has the right of striking the first blow, to receive which the other is obliged to extend his head forward, with the side turned partially upwards. The blow inflicted with a force commensurate with the vindictive feeling of the avenger. A white man, with an ordinary errand, would be killed outright; but owing to the great thickness of their skulls this seldom happens with the natives. The challenged party now takes his turn to strike, and the other is obliged to place himself in the same posture of convenience. In this way the combat is continued, with alternate buffets, until one of them is stunned, or the expulsion is deemed satisfactory."

INGENUOUS TEST.—A few days ago a merchant, in prosecuting his morning tour in the suburbs of Edinburg, found a purse containing a considerable sum of money. He observed a lady at a distance, whom he thought might be the loser. Determined to be correct, he fell upon a strange yet ingenious plan. He resolved to act the part of a "poor distressed tradesman," and boldly went forward, hat in hand, and asked an alms. This was answered with a polite "Go away, I have nothing to give you." The man, however, persisted in his entreaties, and would not go until he had "relief for his famished wife and children." The lady at last condescended, but to her dismay found that the wherewith was gone. The merchant now satisfied that he was correct, with a polite bow returned the purse, with an advice that in the future she should be more generous to the distressed and destitute.

DEATH OF A VETERAN CLERGYMAN.—We find the following announcement of the decease of a veteran, a "fighting clergyman" of the revolution, in the Louisville Journal:

"At his residence, in Mercer county, Ky., on Friday, the 26th ult., the Rev. Thos. Kyle, in the 89th year of his age. He was several years a soldier in the war of the revolution, and bore upon his head an honorable mark received in that glorious conflict from the sword of a British officer."

A VOLUNTEER.

Our friend Capt. Church, of the Bulletin on his late trip up from New Orleans brought with him a number of officers just from the army. They were full of anecdotes, of course, and the following little illustration of character is interesting as well as amusing:

Among the volunteers was a 'gentleman's son'—a full private, who heartily sick of rainy weather, mud, and no shelter, first went to his captain with his complaints, but meeting with no particular sympathy, resolved to have a talk with Gen. Taylor himself. Arrived at the commander's quarters, the General was pointed out to him, but he was rather incredulous. "That old fellow Gen. Taylor? Nonsense! Satisfied, however, that such even was the case he marched up, and, rather patronizingly, opened his business.

"Gen. Taylor, I believe?"
"Yes, sir."
"Well Gen. I'm devehleish glad to see you—am indeed!" The General returned the civility.

"Gen. you will excuse me, but since I've been doing all I could for you—have, indeed, but the fact is, the accommodations are very bad—arr, indeed, mud and actually mud!" "b'egged to be down in it, actually, and the fact is, Gen. I'm a gentleman's son, and not used to it."

The Gen. no doubt deeply impressed with the fact of having a gentleman's son in his army, expressed his regret that such annoyance should ever exist, under any circumstances, in a civilized army.

"Well—but Gen. what am I to do?"
"Why really I don't know unless you take my place."

"Well now that's civil—'tis indeed: Of course don't mean to turn you out but a few hours' sleep—a cot or a bunk, or anything—would be so refreshing! Your place—where is it General?"

"Oh just drop down—anywhere about here—any place about camp will answer!"

The look which the 'gentleman's son' gave the General was rather peculiar.

"Well, no wonder they call you 'Rough and Ready!' said he, and, smilng the smile of all but 'Rough and Ready' himself, the gentleman's son returned to take his chance of the weather. —St. Louis Reveille.

THE GREATEST IRON GUN EVER CAST YET.

Yesterday afternoon another stupendous piece of ordnance was cast at Alger's Foundry, South Boston, which, when finished will exceed Capt. Stockton's celebrated "peachmaker" by 5000 pounds in weight. The arrangements for the operation were commenced in the morning, by filling the furnaces with metal, and firing up. The quantity of metal used was about 45,000 pounds, and the amount of coal consumed in reducing it to requisite state of fusion, was eight chaldrons. At six o'clock, P. M., repeated experiments having been made with it in small quantities, the metal was pronounced to be in a fit condition for use, and the grand operation of casting was commenced. The two furnaces were tapped, and the boiling & blazing liquid gushed forth, rushing and leaping through the iron canals, which emptied into the mould, sank twelve feet into the solid ground. The flaming streams continued to run for fifteen minutes down through the flask or shell of the mould, the metal in the meantime bubbling and revolving as it rose in the inner shaft of sand, which in fact formed the actual mould for the cannon. The metal having reached the level of the mould, a supplementary or cap mould was put on, and filled with some tons of metal poured into it from a crane ladle.

The object of this addition is to give, by means of dead weight above, steadiness to the process of chrysalization in that portion of the mass out of which the cannon is to be turned. Ten days will elapse before the metal will have become sufficiently cool to admit of the removal of the flask, by digging away the compact ground in which it stands embedded; and then, in the space of five weeks, the gun can be finished and got ready for mounting on Fort George, in our harbor, for which it is designed.

The casting was done under the personal supervision of Mr. Alger and Col. Bonford the inventor of this species of ordnance. The first specimen of which Thomas Jefferson, 1309, gave the name of the "Columbiad."

The weight of the gun, when finished, will be 25,000 pounds. Length, ten feet; diameter at the base ring 30 inches, length of chamber 13 inches, diameter of chamber 9 inches length of bore 9 feet 1 inch, diameter of bore 12 inches. Weight of round shot which it will carry, 230 pounds, weight of shell 150 pounds. Range of shot at shell, 3½ miles—being ¼ of a mile greater than the recorded performance of the largest and latest invented mortar in England, and half a mile beyond the reach of any gun in the castle of San Juan de Ulloa, a Vera Cruz.

The cost of this immense instrument for harbor defence will not exceed $1700; or one-sixth the cost of the wrought iron gun procured in England by Capt. Stockton. —Boston Post July 9.

DEMOCRAT A V.

"TRUTH WITHOUT FEAR"

BLOOMSBURG.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR CANAL COMMISSIONER,
WILLIAM B. FOSTER, JR.

Removal.

The Office of the "COLUMBIA DEMOCRAT" has been Removed into the new Brick Building, South side of Main street, a few doors below Market.

AGENCY.

V. B. PALMER, Esq. is authorized to act as Agent for the "COLUMBIA DEMOCRAT," and receipt all monies for Subscription and Advertising at his Agencies in Philadelphia No. 59 Pine-street.
New York "160 Nassau-street."
Boston "16 State-street."
Baltimore S. E. cor. Balt. and Calvert-sts.
Merchants-Mechanics and Tradesmen may find it to their advantage to advertise in this paper, as it is the only one published at the County Seat, and has a greater circulation in the County than any other paper published within its limits.

The Canal Commissioners passed up the North Branch canal on the 11th inst., on a tour of inspection, and returned on the 14th.

A small break occurred in the canal a short distance below Catwissess, on Tuesday last,—it was however repaired and the water let in again on Wednesday evening.

Cool, Very.—The Locomotive and Sunbury American are loud in favor of the one term principle, and yet, in the same breath condemn the Canal Commissioners for removing Thomas Bennet from the Supervisorship of the West Branch Canal, after he has held the office for three successive years. Of consistency thou art a Jewel.

FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

By late arrivals at New Orleans, we have news from the army at Matamoros, to the 3d inst.

The Mexican forces are supposed to be concentrated in the vicinity of Monterey, under the immediate command of Paredes. The Army appear to be on the point of taking up their march to penetrate as far as Monterey. The American Army was in good health and fine spirits, and anxious to start in pursuit of Paredes. Great rejoicing in the camp upon the receipt of the news; that Gen. Taylor was not to be superseded by Gen. Scott.

Santa Ana.—The N. Y. Tribune of Friday says:

"If we may rely on the confidential advices of those who have the best opportunities of knowing, Santa Ana and Almonte leave Havana this day to resume in Mexico the sway of which the former has been temporarily deprived by the revolution of Paredes. We understand that Santa Ana did not originate the various outbreaks against Paredes which have occurred, and even refused, at first, to place himself at the head of his partisans. He demanded assurances that the troops at Vera Cruz, at least, should rally round his banner as soon as it should be unfurled in their vicinity, and these have been given him. His reluctance, real or affected, to brave once more the storms of Mexican public life, having been overcome, he now commits himself to their chances."

We have hardly a doubt of his success in overthrowing Paredes. The army which the latter is now impelling on Monterey, will be glad of a fair pretext for avoiding the fatigues and privations of a long march under the midsummer sun of the tropics, with the certainty of severe fighting at the end of it. They will declare for Santa Ana, in the secret hope of avoiding by a revolution the toils and privations now before them. Another month will suffice to reestablish Santa Ana in power, at the head of a nominally Federal Republic, but practically a centralized despotism."

Magnetic Experiments.—Cist. of Cincinnati, says Mr. Saunders, of that city, is engaged in a series of experiments upon opening magnetic telegraphic communications on a principle entirely different from any in use.

Gov. Ford on the Mormon Disturbances.—Gov. Ford, of Illinois, has the most singular notions we ever heard expressed of the duties of an executive, in times of civil commotion, and the necessity of preserving order and enforcing the laws. In relation to the late disturbances at Nauvoo, he writes the following curious letter:

SPRINGFIELD, June 19, 1846.

Sir—Your favor of the 16th was received last evening. I concur with you fully as to the proper mode of treating the disturbances in Hancock county. I think it best to let the parties fight it out this time; and it is very probable, if they know that there is no interference, there will be but little fighting after all. Some of the boys want some body to hold them, and then they would have all the credit of being the victors, without the danger. But, seriously, I know very well that if I were to order a force into Hancock county, they would all swear that they never intended to have any disturbance. The troops would return, for they cannot be kept all the time, and then the beligerents would assemble as before. I would have to do the thing over and over again for ever, every time making the County of Hancock and the whole State more ridiculous than before.

If they want to fight, and I think that if fifty would be killed off it would have a most wholesome effect. I fear there never will be any submission to law in Hancock until the boys and get tired of it.

I am, respectfully,

Your obt. servt.

THOMAS FORD.

This is the richest specimen of general wisdom exhibited in the 19th century. To preserve peace, and protect life and property, robbery, arson and murder must be allowed. After such amusement the mob will, no doubt, be appeased, and settle down into peaceable and well disposed citizens, having a firm reliance on the supremacy of the law.

THE FLYING ARTILLERY.—Captain Washington's company of Flying Artillery, from Carlisle, Pa., arrived here yesterday and shipped for Texas; on the steamboat Hellen. The corps consist of 23 men about 45 of which are old and well drilled soldiers, the balance raw recruits of less than 2 months service. They are mostly Vermonters. Their horses, 120 in all, were generally well made and in fine order. They had 6 field pieces, 3 of 6 and 3 of 12 pounds, and all the baggage necessary to a travelling company.

They are ordered to St. Antonio, Texas, and will land at Alexandria, La. to march across the country. We are informed that the encampment is as healthy as any part of the United States, and the country around abounds with game, finest fish and the best water. —Wheeling Times, Wednesday.

Suffering Condition of the Mormons.—The St. Louis New Era states that a company numbering some fifteen or sixteen belonging to Choteau's fur company, arrived on the 3d inst. on the steamer Balloon. The only item of news they bring, is the arrival and encampment of a large body of Mormons, three or four thousand in number and nearly one thousand wagons at Bellevue a short distance below Council Bluffs. They had been there and on the road several months and were suffering severely, many were reported in an actual state of starvation.

Three messengers were seen by our informants on their way from Fort Leavenworth to them but not as has been supposed for the purpose of enlisting men for the Santa Fe expedition of quite a different nature were their errand but the exact purpose of which is unknown. It is said that it is the intention of the caravan to cross the Missouri and take up their winter quarters on Platte river above the Pawnee country and next spring to go on to Oregon.

Another Fighting Parson.—A full company of volunteers was enrolled in Jasper county Illinois of which Rev. J. C. Wheeler was elected Captain. It is said that he has great success in fighting Old Sontie, from which we judge he will make short work with the Mexicans.

Curious Statistics of New York.—The census of last year reports 265 farmers in the city of New York.
