

COLUMBIA DEMOCRAT.

"That Government is the best which governs least."

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY LEVI L. TATE:

BLOOMSBURG, COLUMBIA CO., SATURDAY, FEB. 3, 1849.

OLD SERIES--VOL. TWELVE.
VOL. 2, NUMBER 46.

Columbia Democrat.

The Drunkard's Remorse.

BY PROF. LONGFELLOW.

Ain't I in writing on the stair, Mary?
I'm thinking on thy smile, Mary—Thy bright and trusting smile—
In the morning of our youth and love, Ere sorrow came, or guile, When thine arms were twined about my neck,
And mine locked into thine,
And the heart that throbb'd for me alone Was nestling close to mine.
I'm thinking of the night, Mary,
The night of grief and shame,
When with drunken ravings on my lips,
To thee I homeward came—O, the tear was in thy earnest eye,
And thy bosom wildly heaved, Yet a smile of love was on thy cheek, Though thy heart was sorely grieved.
O, my words were harsh to thee, Mary,
For the wine-cup'drove me wild,
And I said those things that were sad,
And curs'd thee when they smiled, God knows I lov'd thee even then,
But the fire was in my brain,
And the curse of drink was in my heart To make my love a bane.
Thou'rt resting in the church-yard now,
And no stone is at thy head;
But the sexton knows a drunkard's wife Sleeps in that lowly bed—
And he says the hand of God, Mary, Will fall with crushing weight On the wretch that brought thy gentle life To its untimely fate.
But he knows not of the broken heart I bear within my breast, Or the heavy load of vain remorse That will not let me rest:
He knows not of the sleepless nights,
When dreaming of thy love,
I seem to see thine angel eyes Look coldly from above.
Thou'rt slumbering in the peaceful grave,
And thy sleep is dreamless now,
But the soul of an undying grief Is on thy mourner's brow—
And my heart is chill as that of Mary,
For the joys of life have fled,
And I long to lay my aching breast With the cold silent dead.

THE FISHER-MAN.

BY JOHN G. Saxe.

There lived an honest fisherman,
I know him passing well,
Who lived hard by a little pond,
Within a little dell.
A grave and quiet man was he,
Who loved his hook and rod;
So soon ran his line of life,
His neighbors thought it odd.
For science and for books, he said, He never had a wish,
No school to him was worth a fig, Except a "school of fish."
The single minded fisherman A double calling had—
To tend his dock in winter time,
In summer fish for shad.
In short, this honest fisherman All other toils forsook, And though no vagrant man was he,
He lived by "hook and crook."
All day that fisherman would sit Upon an ancient log,
And gaze into the water, like Some sedentary frog.
A cunning fisherman was he,
His angles were all right,
And when he searched his aged poll, You'd know he'd got a bite.
To charm the fish, he never spoke, Although his voice was fine,
He found the most convenient way Was just to "drop a line."
And many a "gudgeon" of the pond, If made to speak to-day, Would own, with grief, this angler had A mighty "taking away."
One day, while fishing on a log,
He noticed his want of luck,
When suddenly he felt a bite,
And jerking—caught a duck.
Alas! that day the fisherman Had taken too much grog, And being but a fisherman, he,
He could not "keep his log."
In vain he strove with all his might
And tried to gain the shore, Down, down he went to feed the fish He'd baited off before!
The moral of the mortal tale
To all is plain and clear:
A single "drop too much" of rum May make a wotery beer,
And he who will not sign the pledge,
And keep the promise poor,
May be, in spite of late at night, Cold water man or leet.

WISCONSINIANOUS.

From the Boston Olive Branch.

Ellen Thomson, The Tailoress.

BY D. G. COLWORTHY.

Let others sing of lips and eyes,
As more than half divine;
The virtues of the heart I prize,
And those, I know, are thine.
The noble virtues of the heart
In every look I trace;
The graceful smile which'er thou art,
And 'tis a pleasant place.
As the times are hard, mother, and you find it difficult to get along, I have been thinking of learning a trade.
Learning a trade, Ellen! Your father would never consent to it I know.
Why not?
Because he has repeatedly said that none of his daughters should go into a tailor's shop. He believes it to be injurious to a female's health, to be confined all day in a close shop, and obliged to work as hard as some of the poor girls do. And then, your father is a proud-spirited man, and would think it too humiliating to have a daughter learn a trade.
I believe father would consent to it; I will ask him at dinner-time. Why, mother, if I could get a trade, only think how much I could earn—and every dollar helps in a family like ours—more especially as we have become somewhat reduced in our circumstances.
You may ask your father, but I have no idea that he will give his consent.
When Mr. Thomson, Ellen's father, came home to his dinner, his daughter remarked—Father, what do you suppose I've been thinking about?
I'm sure I cannot tell;—what is it?
If you will not object to what I want to do, I will tell you.
That I cannot do, unless I know about it.
Well, I will tell you then. You know you have to work hard to get along, having an expensive family to support. I've an idea of learning a trade.
Pshaw, child—you know I will never consent to it.
And why not, father?
Because, I am not so poor as to be obliged to come to that. How do you think I should feel to have a child at work in a tailor's shop, among I don't know who. No, no—so long as I can support my children, they shall never become slaves to others, and drag out a miserable existence at the needle!
Why, father, I could go with Mr. Chase, and he would not make me work hard. Clara White is learning her trade of him, and she tells me it is a pleasant shop to work in, and that Mr. Chase is one of the kindest of men.
No matter for that: I am decided upon it—I cannot give my consent.
Think how much I could assist you, after I had learned my trade. I could buy all my own clothes—help pay our poor tax, and bring a great many things into the family. I wish you would think about it a little while—perhaps you may be disposed to let me go.
I don't think I shall ever give my consent. I have too much regard for my children's health and future welfare, to permit them to do any thing that will injure them. You have no idea how hard and difficult a tailor's trade is.
I'm sure, father, don't hard. I should not have to do half as much as mother does. The work would not be half as hard. Now you think of it a little while, and let me know. I do hope you will give your consent!
Well, I'll think about it.
Dinner being nearly ready, Mr. Thomson and his family sat down to the table.
Mr. T. had been an extensive merchant, but on account of bad debt speculations and misadventures, he became somewhat reduced. At the time of which we are speaking, he was employed on a salary, which, only by strict economy, he was able to make support him. He had been entirely free from debt, he could have gone into business again; but there were a few men who were not disposed to favor him, and would come to no terms, except he should pay the whole amount of his debts. On this account, he was obliged to write on a comparatively small salary.
About a week after the conversation we have recorded, as the family were sitting around the hearth, Ellen remarked, addressing her father—What do you think about my learning a trade?
I hardly know what to think. If I thought you could stand it, and would not be obliged to work hard, or stay at the shop after dark, I don't know but I might be induced to give my consent.
I'm sure, father, I am strong and hearty, and work would not injure me in the least. As for staying at the shop evenings, I could easily make arrangements to leave at dark. Perhaps I might be longer learning the trade.
I will see Mr. Chase about it, myself.
Can't you see him to-morrow?
I will endeavor to.
The next day Mr. Thomson called upon the tailor, and made known to him his daughter's request. Mrs. Chase stated that she should be pleased to learn Ellen's trade, and would not object her to work evenings. The understanding was that the girl should learn to make vests, and work about three months of her time for the purpose.
On the following Monday, Ellen arose early assisted her mother in washing and getting breakfast, and then prepared for the shop. Mr. Chase was a pleasant man, and he gave her instructions about her work, which Ellen performed to the utmost of her ability. She had always been expert with her needle, and had the name of doing as neat work as any female in the neighborhood.

Now she took hold of her new business as if she understood it, and in a very short time, some of the nicest vests for customers were put into her hands to make. Ellen rose early every morning, so as to render her mother all the assistance she could, before going to the shop, and her evenings were as profitably spent. In sewing or knitting, or in work taken home from the shop, she employed every moment, and never was there a girl more cheerful and contented.
I shall soon be through my trade," she would often remark to her father, "and then I shall earn something myself."
When the mind and hands are agreeably employed, a few months slip away almost impercep-tibly. This certainly did to Ellen Thomson.— She had completed her trade, and Mr. Chase remarked to her—I shall depend upon your working for me. I never had a better vest maker in my shop, and I shall give you the highest wages.
Pleased with her trade and her employer, Ellen gladly engaged to work for Mr. Chase, and every moment of her time was diligently employed.
Mr. Thomson, instead of regretting that his daughter had learned a trade, was pleased at her success, more especially as the first money she earned, went for the purchase of a vest, which she cut and made, and presented to her father.
One morning, a gentleman called upon Mr.
Chase. "I have a vest which I wish to have cut and made to day," said he. "I wish it to be done well, by one of your best hands. Can you do it?" Yes, sir—I think we can accommodate you.
And Mr. Chase took the gentleman's measure, cut the garment, and carried it to Ellen. "Here is a very nice vest," said he, "which must be done today. I want you to finish it in your very best style. It is for a gentleman who will call for it to-night."
Ellen commenced on the vest, and worked diligently all day upon it, and just at sunset, completed her task. In a few moments it was called for by the gentleman, who paid for the work and took it away.
Every nice vest that was brought to the shop, was given to Ellen to make. Everything she did was neat and strong, and many were the uncommended ones that were bestowed upon her.
Ellen Thomson continued to work at the shop till late in the fall, when her parents advised her to take her work at the house, as during the winter season the weather would be such that much of the time she would be obliged to stay at home.
Mr. Chase sent her work as often as he had it to do, and as usual, found it neatly and faithfully done.
One cold morning, as Ellen was assisting her mother in ironing clothes, some one rapped at the door. Mrs. Thomson went to see who it was, and on returning said—"There is a gentleman in the parlor who wishes to see you." See me, mother—who is it?
I'm sure I do not know. He is a well dressed gentleman.
What in the world does he want?
He has a little bundle under his arm—it may be he wants some work done.
Ellen instantly entered into the room, without asking—"How do I look?" or changing her dress, or arranging her hair before the glass.
Are you the young woman that formerly worked for Mr. Chase?" the gentleman inquired, as soon as Ellen entered the room.
I am one who worked for him.
Yes, your name Miss Thomson?
Yes, sir.
Then you are the lady Lyvett. About eight months ago, you made a vest for me that I left at Mr. Chase's, and I have just been there to get another made. I requested him to give it to the same person; but when he said you were not in the shop, I took the liberty to inquire your residence and bring you the vest. Is it convenient for you to make this for me by to-morrow, night?" Yes, sir, I can do it, and thank you for the work.
Bidding her good morning, he left the house, while Ellen put aside her ironing, and commanded working on the vest.
Do you know that gentleman?" inquired her mother.
I do not recollect of ever seeing him before.— He appears to be a fine man.
He dresses neatly, certainly.
I shall take pains with this vest, and perhaps it will be the means of earning me my first wage.
I shouldn't wonder. You will get better pay than for what you do for me now.
Long before she had finished, Ellen had completed her vest. "There, mother, look at this, there's a great deal of work in this vest—my party done well, and I think it will give the gentleman an satisfaction."
Taking the vest, and examining her own work, he nearly exclaimed—"What a beautiful job you have done!"
After some time was passed, as usual, in the parlor, the gentleman was called to the door. He was about to depart, when he had a sudden recall, which he did not hesitate to "The vest is beautiful," said Ellen, as I hope it will give you satisfaction."
The gentleman looked at it, and remarked—

"It is very neat. How much am I to pay you for it?"
"About fifty cents, sir, I suppose I must charge you."
"Only fifty cents! I paid Mr. Chase more than double, and I will give you the same. It is well worth it, considering the work you put into it.— I never had a neater vest in my life than the one you made me last spring." The stranger took one dollar and fifty cents from his pocket, and offered it to Ellen.
It is too much, sir. I should be glad to make vests all the time for fifty cents apiece." Here—you shall take this, and by and by I shall have more work for you." I thank you, sir," said Ellen, as she took the money from the stranger.
After conversing a few moments, the gentleman left the house without giving his name. He promised, however, to call again, as he should have another vest to make in the course of a few weeks.
He is a very liberal man," Mrs. Thomson remarked; "I should like to know who he is."
I don't know when I have seen a man more pleasant and agreeable," said Ellen. "He is quite handsome, too—don't you think so, mother?" Yes—he is very fine-looking."
When Mr. T. returned from his business, the mother and daughter tried to describe the gentleman, to learn whether he was not acquainted with him. But from the description given, he could not tell his name.
With her wonted industry, Ellen continued to work when she could get it to do, and whatever she earned was given to her parents.
One afternoon, her mother being out, as she was washing the floor, Ellen heard a slight rapping at the door. Without stopping to roll down her sleeves or take off her apron, she ran to see who it was, when to her astonishment it proved to be the gentleman for whom she made the vest.— Without blushing at her appearance, or fainting away because she was found in the studs, she invited the stranger in.
You see," said she, "I am obliged to work.
My mother has feeble health, and I had rather do the hard work myself, and we are not able to employ help."
I'll please me much to see you industrious," remarked the gentleman. "I would rather rather find you so employed, than see you lounging upon a piano from morning till night. I admire your industrious habits. My mother always taught me to work, and none of her children were ever indolent. I cannot endure idleness, and when I cannot get employment at my trade, I love to do house work." Well, Mrs. Thomson, I have brought you mother job. If you can do it, will you do it in a day or two?
I thank you, sir. I shall be pleased to do it.
Leaving the work, the stranger took his leave.
The next day Ellen saw the gentleman, the next day she saw the gentleman, and when a little boy came for the vest, she inquired of him the name of the individual who left it.
Don't you know him? said the boy. "Why, it is Mr. Jameson."
Who is he?
The rich Mr. Jameson's son, who lives in that great house in — street.
And he is the finest man I know of," said the boy. "he is always willing to pay me when I go of his errands, and he makes me a great many presents."
Holding Ellen the amount which was paid her before, which the boy had been instructed to do by the gentleman, he took the vest, and left the house.
Ellen, as well as her parents, were astonished to learn that it was Mr. Jameson's son for whom she had been doing work, for he was heir to a large property; his father being the wealthiest man in the place, and one of the best of citizens.
A few evenings after, Mr. Jameson called at Mr. Thomson's, and during the conversation, he remarked, "There are several young men and women who contemplate visiting Penn's Neck to-morrow if it should be pleasant, and I have been invited to make one of the party, and have called this evening to ascertain if I could have the pleasure of company."—Addressing Ellen,
With a slight blush, Ellen looked up, and replied—"I should be pleased to go." We shall come in the way of the Bowyers, and perhaps spend a short time at the Cape Cottage." So, that will be delightful." After spending a pleasant evening, Mr. Jameson took his leave, remarking to Ellen as he left the door, "I shall call about eight o'clock in the morning."
Mrs. Thomson, finally dared to hope that the next morning she would have some company. She was sitting by the side of the window, and was looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she was sitting alone. The door opened, and the gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was quiet, and she
was sitting alone. The door opened, and the
gentleman entered. He was dressed in a fine
suit, and he looked very much pleased. He
was sitting by the side of the window, and was
looking out at the street, when she felt an interest in her heart. The house was