Benjamin A. Bidlack.

The cumored death of the Hon Benj. A. Bid lack, our Minister at Bogota, New Grenada, as published last week, is now, we are happy to my, contradicted. Letters, from him to his family in Wilkesbarre, bearing date subsequent to the 6th of January-the time he was said to have died-represent him in usual health. Beside neither received any such information, nor has it made any communication of his death to Mr. B's family, which would seem to strongly indicate the falsity of the aforesaid rumor,

James Buchanan.

Hon JAMES BUCHANAN, late Secretary of State for the United States, having finished his official public carreer in that important capacity with the termination of the late administration, of which he was the life, the mol, and actuating spirit, and which "closed in a braze of glory," has recurred to the bosom of his numerous friends in Pennsylvania. Before leaving the Seat of Federal Government the democratic citizens of Washington tendered Mr. Buchanan a public dinner, in testimony of their respect for his commanding talents as a public officer, and their es- don to commence negotiations. teem for his worth as a resident citizen, the acceptance of which his natural modesty forbid .-In the next place, the Dimocratic Members of the Pennsylvania Legislature extended him an invitation to visit the Seat of State Government, on his return home, for the purpose of interchanging a piece of board on which he had written, " I am old assocciations and forming new acquaintances, accompanied with the most cordial expression of their approbation of his distinguished public career in the secies of his county in the most trying times, during more than a quarter of a century in the councils of the nation. To this invitation he acceded and has been spending a short time at Harri barg, where he received the respect of all parties due his elevated standing and transendent abilities.

Mr. Bugnanan has settled down on his beautiful farm and again become a resident citizen of Lancaster county, where it must be a source of the highest gratification to the retired statesman, that he carries with him the confidence and res pact of his democratic fellow citizens alike of Pennsylvania and the entire United States.
