MARCH The stormy March is come at last,

With wind, and cloud and changing skies, I hear the rushing of the blast, That through the snowy valley flies

All! passing few they are who speak Wild, stormy wouth, in praise of thee; Yet, though thy winds are loud and block,

Porthog to northern lands again The glad and glorious sun dost bring.

And thou has joined the gentle train.

And wear'st the gentle name of Spring.

And in the room of blast and storm Similar many a long bright sunny day.
When the changed would are soft and warm And heaven puts on the blue of May

Then sings about the greining cits. And the full spring from frost set free That brightly leaping down the hills, Are just set out to meet the sea.

Of wintry storms the sub or threat; But, in thy earnest from abuses A look of kindly promise yet.

Thou bring'st the loops of the executar skies, And that soft time of summy abovers. When the wide become on suith that has it seems of a brighter world than ours.
