We are frequently asked, "Are coal ashes of any benefit as a manure?" That they are of some benefit, there can be no doubt. Numerous analyses of coal ashes have been made. We have now before us analyses of ashes from seven different kinds of coal. They vary considerably in composition, but on an average contain about 45 per cent. of silica, 40 of alumina and oxide of iron, 12 of sulphate of lime or plaster, 3 of magnesia, and 1 of phosphoric acid.
