He was bashful extremely so, was Josioh Hawley-at least in the presence of young ladies-most of all in the presence of the girt he loved. No young farmer in all the country possessed a better kept farm, with unusual care to spend an evening at or talked with more confidence among his compeers of stock and crops, and on kindred subjects. But the glimpse of some pretty face or foot coming in his direction affected him like a flash of lightening. On such occasions he never knew what to do with his hands or eyes, and always felt like screwing himself into a mouse hole. How he ever contrived to approach Hester Thomas on the subject of his preference for her, probably remains as much a mys tery to himself as it is to others.

But the young lady had quite an amount of tact and eleverness stowed away somewhere in her pretty little head albeit it was ders of seventeen. table set back against the wall, the crumbs brushed from the clean home made carpet and Hetty's work stand drawn up in front of the blazing fire. A beautifully piled plate of great red apples, and a plate of eracked walnuts were on it, in close proximity to Hetty's work basket.

On one side of the fire sat Mrs. Thomas, fat and fair, and at peace with all the world; rocking and knitting, and refreshing herself at sundry intervals with a bite from a half eaten apple that lay on the corner of the table, and touching every now and then, in a caressing manner with her foot, a sleek, lazy eat, that purred and winked on the rug before her. A good deal of can't is written and spoken respecting the zeal of mankind to make money. It is also stated very often, and yesterday. Wealth is said to corrupt our species We do not believe it. Wealth is one of the great civilizers of man. Wealth corrupts when it is suddenly got, or unjustly distributed; when, owing to monopolies or entails, or some other barbarous system, it is prevented from diffusing itself naturally and justly. Two or three over-rich families in a community of poverty-stricken wretches-that is indeed most corrupting; it corrupts equally those who have wealth and these who have not.
